

THE HARRINGTON

TWENTIETH YEAR

HARRINGTON, DELAWARE

P.-T. ASSOCIATION HELD CONVENTION AT STATE CAPITAL

Affair Was Held In Dover Presbyterian Church Last Saturday

DR. LUCY WILSON WAS SPEAKER

Citing a substantial increase in membership in the Delaware Parent-Teacher Association, President Howard T. Ennis, at the 23rd annual convention held in the Presbyterian Church, Dover, Saturday, April 28th, declared: "Sound thinking people everywhere recognize that the educational system has nothing to fear from parents organized in behalf of their children."

Earlier in the day, Miss Etta J. Wilson, program chairman, made a plea for more enthusiastic interest on the part of the school in providing leadership for one of the major projects of the Parent-Teacher Association, the interpretation of the school to the public.

In response to this plea C. W. W. Schantz, president of the Delaware State Education Association, asked the full cooperation of the school and community to work for the best interests of the child.

Dr. H. V. Holloway, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, had already urged the group to protect the means of supporting education, "the most important function of the State."

At the afternoon session, H. Fletcher Brown, president of the State Board of Education, declared: "I am appalled when the Legislature sees fit to divert money from the School Fund. Do what you can between now and January to make it clear to your people at home that there must be no curtailment of the educational program."

The guest speaker of the afternoon session, Dr. Lucy L. W. Wilson, principal of the Girls' High School, South Philadelphia, and winner of the 1934 Bok award for outstanding citizenship, was enthusiastic in her praise of what had already been accomplished in Delaware schools. In her opinion, Delaware can realize the ideal in education and help the rest of the country to realize it.

The report of the resolution committee, presented by H. W. T. Purnell, chairman, included one of opposition to the policy of those who would limit or curtail or in any way jeopardize the School Fund.

Among the special speakers on the program were: Mrs. A. D. Warner and Mrs. P. B. Lightner. Mrs. Warner as president of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. Mrs. Lightner was honored at the noon meeting of the Board of Managers, composed of the executive committee and the presidents of all local associations, for her long term of service to the Parent-Teacher Association.

Adopting the report of the Nominating Committee, presented by Mrs. Edwin C. Marshall, Lewis, the following officers were elected: President, Mrs. Robert P. Robinson, New Castle county; Vice-Presidents, Mrs. M. P. Northam, New Castle county, Mrs. Robert E. Lewis, Kent county; Mrs. H. W. Hecker and H. T. Ennis, Sussex county. Secretary, Mrs. Orville R. Wright, Kent county; Treasurer, Mrs. W. R. Keys, Kent county; Auditor, George S. Williams, Sussex county.

Members at large: Mrs. Charles Duke, New Castle county; Mrs. C. Elliott and H. W. T. Purnell, Sussex county. The Board of Managers elected Mrs. Robinson and Miss Etta J. Wilson delegates to the convention of the National Congress of Parent-Teachers which will be held in Des Moines, Ia., May 13-19. Mrs. Robert E. Lewis and Mrs. Orville Wright were elected alternates.

At the morning session the treasurer, Mrs. W. R. Keys, reported a balance of 0388.76. Mrs. Robert E. Lewis, State Chairman of Membership reported 7317 members.

Dr. A. C. Jost, Executive-Secretary of the State Department of Health expressed appreciation of the health work done by the Parent-Teacher Association. Correction of remediable defects and preventive health work have been one of the major projects of the Delaware Parent-Teacher Association since the White House Conference on Child Health and Protection.

Doyle E. Hinton, Executive-Secretary of the Anti-Tuberculosis Society offered to cooperate with local chairmen in any way possible. Mr. Hinton pointed out the fact that tuberculosis is the chief cause of death among boys and girls.

Other reports were presented by Mrs. Mrs. Glenwood Harrington, Membership, Mrs. Reyden Hammond, Librarian, Mrs. W. R. Keys and Mrs. J.

JELLY MAKERS, TAKE NOTICE

Extension leaders who were trained in making jelly last month, are giving back the work to their clubs this month. The method used at their leader groups, conducted by Miss Pearl MacDonald, of Newark, involves a new principal, that of determining the exact amount of pectin in the fruit juice used. This method will largely take away any guess work in jelly making and the women are most anxious to learn more of it.

Schedule for the month is as follows:

- May 1—Laws, Mrs. Thomas Chambers.
- May 3—Andrewville, Mrs. Earl Griffith.
- May 4—Fellton, Mrs. Alfred Dill.
- May 7—Harrington, Mrs. Elmer Cain.
- May 8—Oak Grove, Mrs. Frank Lafferty.
- May 9—Viola, Mrs. D. C. Moore.
- May 10—Houston, Mrs. Ralph Jump.
- May 11—Farmington, Mrs. Robert Ross.
- May 15—Frazier's—Mrs. William Thomas.

DRESS MAKING CLASSES HELD IN KENT COUNTY

This past month 140 members of Home Demonstration Groups have met with Mrs. McKinley, State Leader of Demonstration Work, to cut out and make wash dresses. Each club that signed up for these lessons met two days—and in nearly every case dresses were fairly well completed under Mrs. McKinley's instructions.

Making garments at home is still considered a profitable thing to do and these classes were held with this economy in view, as well as to give special instructions to beginners in sewing.

Club women are now looking forward to a cotton dress contest the latter part of June, at which time entries may be made by any club member in one of the two classes. Cotton morning dress or afternoon dress. The style show and the awards to the winners of each class will be held in Dover, sometime the latter part of June and any club member may compete. A speaker of interest will also be on the program the afternoon of the contest.

These dressmaking classes were planned for this county-wide event. They were held at Hickman, Rising Sun, Hazletville, Cheswold, Down's Chapel, Leipsic, Millwood, Canterbury, Viola, Felton, Harrington, and Oak Grove. Two more will be scheduled for Kenton and Andrewville in the near future. These classes were arranged by Louise R. Whitcomb, Home Demonstration Agent for Kent County.

FELTON AVON CLUB

Music Day was observed by the Felton Avon Club on Wednesday, April 25, in the club room with Miss Lucretia M. Stevenson as chairman, assisted by Mrs. Norman Burton.

The opening exercises were followed by the club chorus singing "Welcome, Sweet Springtime," after which Miss Stevenson presented the following program: Piano duet, "March," Miss Stevenson and Mrs. B. T. East; reading, "Songs for My Mother," Mrs. A. C. Dill; cornet solo, "Lullaby" and "Waltz," Miss Sara Case; vocal solo, "Sing Me to Sleep," by Mrs. Robert A. Saulsbury, of Dover, was greatly enjoyed. Mrs. Saulsbury was accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Grace Chason, of Harrington. A reading, "My Old Dog," was given by Mrs. John Hargadine. A song, "Aloha Oe," was sung by the club, this being followed by a piano trio, "Polonaise in A Major," by Miss Stevenson, Mrs. Burton and Mrs. East. Mrs. Saulsbury then sang "Old Fashioned Garden." A piano solo, "Impromptu," by Rheinhold, was played by Mrs. Norman Burton.

Invited guests were Mrs. Noah Cain, of Harrington; Mrs. Elizabeth Bringham, Mrs. Paul Hughes and Miss Dorothy Heyd. Mrs. Roland Diefenderfer, of Wilmington, and Mrs. Irvin MacKrell, of Philadelphia, were also present.

A business meeting followed the program and several communications were read and the nominating committee for election of officers submitted their report.

Mr. and Mrs. William Sneath are spending the week-end with relatives at Mechanicsburg, Pa.

Miss Esther Moore, who is teaching near Wilmington, is spending the week-end at home.

Arnold Barth, of Nanty Glo, Pa., is spending two weeks with relatives here and near Milford.

Clark, Health, Mrs. May B. Leasure, Program, H. W. T. Purnell, Safety Education and Mrs. Orville R. Wright, Publicity.

Another Sewer Election

Everyone is looking forward to the realization of having the work soon to start on the installation of the Sewer System.

Word has been received by the Town Council that all legal proceedings have been approved by the United States government that are necessary to hold the final election for Sewers and May 15th, has been set for the election.

Although it is necessary for the Town to again vote on the question of Sewers, the benefits and residents and places of business will gain by having a sanitary and convenient means of removing and disposing of household wastes is well worth this effort.

The unsanitary conditions of our community is becoming steadily worse and the continual use of overflowing cesspools and privies are dangerous to the health of everyone and are a source of spreading sickness.

Notwithstanding the delays that have prevented the people from having this much-needed improvement, the Federal authorities have officially notified the Town Council that if the voters pass favorably upon the election on May 15th the Public Works Administration will still furnish the funds to finance the cost of the Sewers by taking the bonds at par for an interest rate of 4 per cent and the United States government will make a gift to the Town of $28,000.00 toward the cost.

There is no doubt but that this is a golden opportunity for the people of Harrington to obtain the advantages of a low-price Sewer system as it will be many years before the prices can be as low as those obtained from the contractors last Fall. Financing terms are at present most favorable and it is the last chance for a Federal gift.

The work will provide employment for the Town's unemployed as provisions have been made in the contracts with the Contractors that Harrington men be given first choice and this will help not only the unemployed, but also the merchants and all others for at least $60,000.00 will be paid this labor, and most of this sum will be spent here at home.

There has not been any change in the method of financing as decided upon last Fall and the costs to the taxpayer will be as low as that published in the circular distributed by the Chamber of Commerce prior to the September election, as the contract price for the Sewers is within the original estimates furnished by the Town's Engineers and the Federal loan and gift is exactly the same.

NO TURTLE SOUP AT PRESENT

Prospects of building up a profitable industry through the marketing of turtles and terrapin caught in the marsh areas around Lewes and Rehoboth, seemed bright to the boys of CCC Company 124, located at Lewes, and working at Mosquito control ditching.

Since the announcement last week that a number of turtles and terrapin were found in the marshes, where drainage ditches are being dug, the matter has excited considerable interest among out-of-town prospective buyers; inquiries have been received from a large hotel and an exclusive club in Philadelphia, while a prominent club in Wilmington promptly placed a large weekly order.

As the diamond back terrapin and the turtle are considered table delicacies, a good profit was expected by the boys, for they can easily catch them in great abundance in the course of their ditching activities.

But unfortunately, every dream must have its painful awakening, and in this instance the CCC boys' dreams were shattered by the appearance of a State Game Warden to inform them there is a law against catching the tide-water reptiles at present; that the season for snappers doesn't open until November 15th.

$77,000 WAS AWARDED FORMER DOVER WOMAN

A verdict for $77,000, the full amount sought, was returned by a jury in Federal Court, Philadelphia, Tuesday, in favor of Mrs. Edna Bice Sayre, formerly of Dover, before Federal Judge George T. Welsh.

The suit was to collect $77,000 life insurance on her husband, who disappeared in January, 1931. Two and a half years later a headless body was found in the Schuylkill, A belt encircling the body had a silver buckle identified by Mrs. Sayre as a present she had made to her husband.

CEDAR BEACH HOTEL DESTROYED BY FIRE

The old abandoned Cedar Beach Hotel passed away by fire last Monday afternoon, thus ending all semblance of a has-been shore resort of many years. The old structure stood in the edge of the water at high tide and was without either windows or window sash, doors or flooring on the first floor that was worth considering. It was abandoned as a habitation for the public many years ago, and only squatter's rights were exercised by any person desiring to use it. The old structure was valueless as it stood.

The fire is supposed to have been of incendiary origin, or spite work of an individual. For many years Cedar Beach has passed from the list of resorts along the Delaware Bay Shore. There was no convenience for either man or beast, so gunners never came near it. Only Fort Saulsbury visitors and the seine fishermen visited the spot. The highway across the marsh was and is used by traffic to and from Slaughter Beach. The fish factory at the mouth of the Mispillion River and the Fort drew the only traffic that came to the shore at Cedar Beach; so the last old landmark, the abandoned hotel property, is gone from the picture. The jetty cut off all water communication many years ago.

The Kent County Relief Office has been closed for relief since April 21st, and some families are in dire straits. Those in particular who have no men to get jobs on the farm or on the road.

The Relief Office is receiving pitiful letters for help. Some of the people are well known as they have had help for over a year. The women could support their families while the sewing centers were working. Now there is nothing for them to do.

One has a sick boy, in bed, helpless with rheumatism. The mother worked in the basket factory near Denton; it is closed now; the family has no income at all. Another is living near Leipsic. Her husband is a helpless alcoholic and the mother is the sole support of the family, five children, herself and husband.

The situation will be much worse after the road jobs are ended, as they are supporting many families at present. If our Legislature could only see one starving child it is believed they would vote money for direct relief quickly.

FREDERICA

Mrs. Anna S. Ashmead, widow of Dr. Horace Ely Ashmead, and the daughter of the late P. L. S. Virden, of Dover, passed away on Thursday evening at her home in Frederica. Mrs. Ashmead, with her daughter, Emma, and son, Peter Virden Ashmead, moved to Frederica from Philadelphia about two years ago.

Our community was greatly grieved to hear of the death of Mrs. Elizabeth Morris, one of our oldest and much beloved women. She was 81 years old and had lived in Frederica about sixty years. For several years she had been blind and early in the winter she had a serious fall from which she did not recover.

Miss Dorothy Thornton and Raymond Thomas, of Wilmington, were married in Frederica on Sunday at 5:00 P. M., at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Thomas.

Mrs. W. F. Hoey and Miss Anna Biglow, who have been spending the winter in Providence, R. I., and Ohio, have returned home.

A delightful surprise party was given Mrs. Henry Purnell on Saturday evening. The party was arranged by Miss Evelyn Purnell, her daughter, the occasion being the birthday anniversary of Mrs. Purnell. Home-made ice cream and cake were served in abundance.

Thomas Reynolds, of Philadelphia, spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Howard Rogers.

Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus Palmer and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Palmer, of Wilmington; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bradley and daughter, of Chester, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo Morris.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Carpenter and family spent Sunday at Lewes with Mr. and Mrs. John Greenlee.

Mrs. Joseph Frazier, who has been spending several weeks in Philadelphia, has returned to her home in town.

Mrs. Henry Case, of Doylestown, Pa., is visiting Mrs. C. H. Speel.

The Frederica Fire Company was called to the home of Burris Spurry. A slight fire was caused by an overheated stove, but the fire was extinguished by the time the company arrived.

COMMITTEE HELDS MILFORD MEETING

Members of State Farm Debt Group Hear Federal Authority on Agriculture

SAY MANY FARMERS NEED AID

County and state farm debt adjustment committees are doing fine work all over the United States in saving the homes of worthy farmers from foreclosure, stated Dr. H. C. M. Case, Assistant to the Governor of the Farm Credit Administration of Washington, D. C., at a meeting of the Delaware Agricultural Advisory Council held Wednesday afternoon in the Hotel Windsor at Milford. This meeting had been called by C. A. Newton, of Bridgeville, Vice-Chairman of the Sussex county committee.

The members of the entire State Committee attending the meeting were: John Nivin, President, Newark; Ed William, Jr., secretary, Newark; Oliver A. Newton, vice-chairman for Sussex county, Bridgeville; Frank C. Bancroft, vice-chairman for Kent county, Wyoming; John D. Reynolds, vice-chairman for New Castle county, Middletown; Frank Richardson, Camden; M. C. Vaughn, Lewes; C. A. McCue, Newark; Robert W. Knight, Kenton; Pusey Passmore, Wilmington; Charles E. Reed, Milford; John A. Tubbs, Selbyville; E. W. Palmer, Delmar; Jacob H. Roosa, Milford; Frank H. VanGesel, Harrington.

"This group of men here today," stated Dr. Case, may have a lot of this type of neighborly conciliation work to do or you may not, according to the number of cases to be considered. This work will call for some time and effort in trying to assist individuals whom they come to you with their problems. The central thought in this work that most debt cases can be adjusted best by conciliation rather than by hasty court action is rapidly gaining approval.

Inquiry made through our offices shows that many farm debtors who need assistance of the county committee are still uninformed of the appointment of their local committee members. It is the responsibility of each local committee to see that their work receives the widest publicity possible.

This committee, appointed by Governor C. Douglass Bunk on a State and county basis, have had or will have instructions today and are ready to serve both farmer and creditor upon invitation of the parties considered.

"Their work is to prevent," concluded Dr. Case, "unnecessary foreclosures by composition, scale down, extension or other means of adjusting farm debts, thus avoiding expensive litigation, which too often proves unsatisfactory to both parties. The committee are to work for the benefit of both debtor and creditor and the success of their efforts will be determined largely by the fairness and equality with which the cases under their jurisdiction are handled, as they have no legal authority to enforce their recommendations. The committees are composed of public-spirited men who are serving without pay, realizing that by their efforts they can accrue benefits for both debtor and creditor.

"Farmers wishing to take advantage of this service should first contact an individual member of the county committee. Failing to make proper adjustments, the individual member can lay the problem before the whole county committee, who in turn can call upon the State committee if the occasion demands.

"It should be remembered that this service is organized to aid the farmer in distress and to see that the creditor interests are justly protected. Cases where the debtor is not in distress will not be considered by the committees.

Inquiry Fishing Expedition May Shock

Washington.—The senate has started another investigation. It has determined to go on a fishing expedition into the several industries that manufacture things that are used in making war. There will be a long-drawn-out inquiry; there will be seizure of papers and there will be smearing, some justified and some unjustified, of leaders in the shipbuilding, munitions and aircraft industries. It is liable to be a nasty thing before it is concluded and a report made to the senate.

There was no noise about passage of the resolution which was proposed by Senators Nye of North Dakota and Vandenberg of Michigan. The resolution creates a special committee which already has begun work. Its passage actually was noted in the newspapers that I saw with no more display than a couple of paragraphs. But the proposition ought to be among those to which attention is closely directed. Unless the bulk of the observers is wrong, the investigation that the Nye-Vandenberg resolution started is going to have a far-reaching effect both in domestic affairs of the United States and in the international field.

One of the reasons why it is so important to give thought to the investigation is the particular time at which it arrives among the window displays of government activities. It hardly need be stated here that international relations are strained in many parts of the world. There is nothing on the horizon to indicate that they will improve. Strained relations, if they continue, lead inevitably to war, and I reported to you several months ago that some nations are headed in that direction if the information our government has is correct. It is naturally to be expected then that overt acts on the part of some of the disturbed powers are going to follow, and the disclosures which the Nye-Vandenberg committee are prepared to make will help the international situation not one bit.

Senator Pope of Idaho, temporary chairman of the committee, told me that the country is likely to be shocked "when it learns the ramifications of the situation," referring to the operations of the shipbuilding, aircraft and munitions companies. While he did not say so, I drew the inference from his remarks that he believes there has been collusion of some kind or other among some of these industrial leaders in order to engender ill will among nations already suspicious of each other.

"We are going to find out how many American shells are going to be used to kill American soldiers later," said Senator Pope.

Bad Time for Fishing

And so we are off on another crashing, smashing, bull-in-the-china-closet type of inquiry. All of us remember the famous investigation of shipbuilding activities at the Geneva armament conference. The committee smeared one William Shearer when Shearer was serving as agent for several of the shipbuilding concerns. None was sure when that investigation started where it would lead. The same can be said of the current inquiry.

To my way of thinking, however, the inquiry is much more important in the effect it will have upon international relations than in the smearing of men and corporations. Frankly, the opinion I have formed after many conversations with men and women of sound judgment is that this is an exceedingly bad time for such a fishing expedition. Any disclosure of relations between a munitions company and a foreign nation are going to be seized upon by that nation's neighbors as evidence and there will be blood in the eye in a hurry.

I hope my observations and conclusions will not be taken as condoning any crookedness. My point is that business relations between a private corporation and its customer should be allowed some degree of secrecy so long as they are not contrary to public good. Governments are going to buy munitions; they are going to buy aircraft, and they are going to have ships built. The question naturally follows, then, whether it is proper or improper for an American plant to sell something it makes to a foreign nation even if it knows they are to be used in fighting. I can see where those commodities ought not to be sold for use against America, but our government buys such supplies constantly and buys them from American makers. If other governments can buy them here, I fail to see why they should not be allowed to do so unless such sales have the aftermath of dragging the United States into war.

These Japanese assertions, or inferences, that "white hands" must stay out of China are not reassuring. The inability of the Europeans to get together in a solution of their own problems is also disconcerting. It cannot be doubted that some of the foreign nations are sitting atop of a powder keg. It is just possible that the Nye-Vandenberg resolution may strike a match above the powder, as well as serving to embarrass and delay efforts of the various industries to get production expanded that more employment will result.

General Johnson and his NRA has come into more trouble. The National Recovery Board More Trouble for NRA. A detached group responsible only to the President, has written a report of findings in several cases where small plants have complained about the effect of the codes. And the report of the board, headed by Clarence Barrow of Chicago, the famed attorney, is a scathing denunciation of some of the code provisions. In fact, some members of the review board take the position that the codes have permitted the great industries to grind the smaller ones, the little fellows, to a commercial death.

The President's views of the report are not known at this time, but it has leaked out that Mr. Roosevelt is willing to have the review board call a spade a spade. Knowledge of his attitude came through devious channels. There was rumor around Washington that the President was going to try to kill off the board by withholding funds from it. The board was the idea of some of the senators, anyway, and it was believed the President felt none too warmly toward it. Yet it has now been established that the President is going to uphold the hand of the board, notwithstanding extreme pressure that is coming from NRA quarters to get rid of it.

In some Washington offices there is a very definite belief that Mr. Roosevelt is entirely willing to let General Johnson retire. General Johnson's bombastic style of speech and his "crack-down" threats have not been so well received in many places and there is opinion available that the general ought to fade out of the NRA. Mr. Roosevelt can't fire him. That would be a dangerous thing to do from a political standpoint. It does seem, however, that a change is coming.

Business leaders have begun to preach more strongly against the codes and they are getting more and more adherents. Some economists who were thoroughly "sold" on the codes have begun to doubt that the types of regulations adopted are all that they have been advertised. As the things are put in practice, their weaknesses develop. Whether they can be corrected for practicable application remains to be seen.

With all of this war talk hither and yon, I inquired from the War department and found that our army forces are roughly one-third of the United States. The latest official tabulation shows the army as having 12,156 officers, 885 warrant officers, and 123,450 enlisted men, including around 11,000 Philippine Scouts. Of these, 2,200 officers, 140 warrant officers and 35,036 enlisted men are on posts outside of continental United States.

The matter of the location of our army personnel is pertinent at this time, too, because of the possibility that the United States government sooner or later will grant independence to the Philippines. I hope it is later, rather than sooner, for I hear so much discussion of dangers that appear certain to develop if the Philippines become a nation unto themselves. The consensus seems to be that the natives will be able to govern themselves, but whether they can protect themselves is another matter.

The United States has an army strength of 553 officers, 51 warrant officers and 4,004 enlisted men in the Philippines. In addition to the Philippine Scouts who number 62 officers and 6,388 enlisted men. That is quite a force and an influence against any ideas that foreign powers must overcome before they seize the Philippines. It should be mentioned that the force and influence existent there also includes some rather important American gunboats and a naval base, Pearl Harbor, which undoubtedly is the defense key. So no bloodthirsty foreign statesmen are going after the little islands as long as our forces are there.

There is an international phase to be considered at this time, one that is not as apparent as it is real. I refer to the tangled skein of circumstances resulting from Japanese declarations of a right to influence Chinese affairs and to use force if necessary. That threat—and it cannot be called by any other name—is notice to Russia and to all of the Western powers, the United States included, that the Japanese program of territorial expansion is going forward. It may be that many powers will be involved before Japanese statesmen are made to understand, but certainly it is not a time in which to consider withdrawal from that important position that our nation has in the Philippines.

But to get back to the distribution of our troops abroad: the army has men stationed in Hawaii, China, Alaska, Panama and Puerto Rico. But in anticipation of withdrawal of the troops from the Philippines, little has been done in improving or strengthening the Philippine fortifications in the last year, and less expenditure is planned there for the future. Instead, the Canal Zone and Hawaii are the outposts where money is being spent. It is readily understandable why the Canal Zone should be fully prepared. In event of war in which our country is involved, the Panama canal is worth hundreds of millions of other expenditures, since it is under American control and no other ships can pass there without our consent.

The largest overseas force of the American army is the contingent in Hawaii. Its strength is 816 officers, 47 warrant officers and 13,843 men, compared with minor contingents on the remaining posts on the Pacific side of the continent. The Alaskan post has only 11 officers and about 300 men and the force in China consists only of the 40 officers and 724 men who are a part of the international force stationed at Tientsin. It is evident, therefore, that in time there will be greater numbers of fighting men in Hawaii, particularly if the troops are withdrawn from Manila. Improvements are being made in and around Honolulu in order to accommodate more soldiers if need be.

Site of the Grand Coulee Project on the Columbia

MORE than 4,000 men will be given jobs on the Grand Coulee project on the Columbia river in the state of Washington. This power development project which has been described as "the Muscle Shoals of the Northwest" is being built and will be operated by the federal government. The Public Works Administration has made an allotment of $15,000,000 to the bureau of reclamation, Department of the Interior, to carry the work forward. The dam and power plant will cost about $83,000,000. The picture shows a portion of the east excavation. The dam will create a lake in the river 50 miles long. It will be built to a height of 335 feet. It is proposed to install eight generating units with a capacity of 700,000 horsepower.

BEDTIME STORY FOR CHILDREN

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

THE SQUEAKY VOICE

"WHO'S that?" Peter Rabbit pricked up his ears and stared up at the tops of the trees in the Old Orchard.

Instantly Jenny Wren popped her head out of her doorway. She cocked her head one side to listen, then looked down at Peter. "I don't hear any strange voice," she snapped. "The way you are staring, Peter Rabbit, one would think you were hearing something new and worth while."

Just then there were two or three sharp, squeaky notes from the top of one of the trees. "There!" cried Peter. "There! Didn't you hear that, Jenny Wren?"

"For goodness sake, Peter Rabbit, you don't mean to say that you don't know whose voice that is?" cried Jenny. "That's Rosebreast. I didn't suppose there was anyone who didn't know that sharp, squeaky voice. It rather gets on my nerves. What anybody wants to squeak like that for when he can sing as Rosebreast can, is more than I can understand."

At that very instant Mr. Wren began to scold as only he and Jenny can. Peter looked up at Jenny and winked slyly. "And what anyone wants to scold like that for when he can sing as Mr. Wren can is too much for me," retorted Peter. "But you haven't told me who Rosebreast is."

"The grosbeak of course, stupid!" spluttered Jenny. "If you don't know Rosebreast the Grosbeak, Peter Rabbit, you certainly must have been blind and deaf ever since you were born. Listen to that! Just listen to that song!"

Peter listened. That song was coming from the very tree from which had come those squeaky notes a few minutes before. Peter looked puzzled. "Do you mean Welcome Robin's song?" he asked sheepishly.

"No, I don't mean Welcome Robin's song," snapped Jenny. "What good are a pair of long ears if they can't tell one song from another? That song may sound something like Welcome Robin's, but it's different, and it's better. That is Rosebreast singing, and there he is right in the top of that tree. Isn't he handsome?"

Peter looked up to see a bird nearly the size of Welcome Robin. His head, throat, and back were black. His wings had patches of white on them. But his breast made Peter catch his breath with a little gasp of admiration. It was a beautiful rose red. The rest of him underneath was white. It was Rosebreast the Grosbeak.

"Oh!" cried Peter. "Isn't he lovely?"

WITH macaroni, spaghetti and noodles pushing themselves into our menus from soup to dessert, we are obliged to note some new ways of serving these most wholesome foods, if we keep up to date.

Spaghetti Alaska.

Cook one-half pound of spaghetti in boiling salted water until tender. Drain, cut into pieces and chill. Remove the bones and skin from a large can of salmon and shred into fine pieces. Add one teaspoon of grated onion, one tablespoon of lemon juice, one-half cup of chopped celery and season to taste with salt. Pour boiling water over a package of lemon gelatin, using one cup of water, stir until dissolved, then add three-fourths of a cup of cold water and set aside to thicken. Mix one-third of a cup of mayonnaise with the salmon and gelatin and pour into a mold and chill. Whip one cup of cream until stiff, add two tablespoons of vinegar, salt and paprika and the cooked spaghetti. Unmold the salad and serve on a bed of lettuce with the spaghetti

Sheep in the Rain

By ANNE CAMPBELL

THE sheep on the hillside are caught in the rain. Like us they are powerless under its beat.

We push on the starter and struggle in vain To climb the tall hill where the two roadways meet.

The car and its master, impatient and worn, Seem helpless as sheep, and almost as forlorn.

But soon we will be at the top of the hill, And the sheep without shelter will face the storm still.

Resigned to their fate, with a patience as vast As the world, they will wait till the tempest is past.

They are wiser than we, for they know—the storm done— Their Shepherd will send them his blessing—the Sun!

Ireland Rightly Proud of Old City of Derry

The most northerly sizeable town in Ireland, and one of the most prosperous, Londonderry nestles comfortably on the banks of the famous River Foyle. It is locally known as Derry, having been named for the "Queen of Erin's daughters, fair Daire." The prefix came when James I granted lands in the vicinity of Derry to the city of London.

For the traveler Derry has a charm greater than its hustle and up-and-doing atmosphere—the story of a past replete with romance, devotion to principle and the exhibition of an indomitable spirit.

Columbia, greatest of the Irish saints after Patrick and Brigid, founded his abbey here, calling it Daire-Columbkille, or Columbia's Oak Grove, within the shadow of a great fort on a nearby hill. In order that his sanctuary might have military protection.

In vain did he reckon his chances against the Danes and Saxons. Time and again they pushed their boats against his shores. Despite their plundering and burnings, the settlement grew and maintained its independence until overcome by the English in 1600. Derry was then given to the corporation of London, which took on the prefix London.—New York World-Telegram.

THROUGH A Woman's Eyes

COURSES FOR PARENTS

"WELL, of all the presumptuous Courses for parents! I'd like to see anybody tell me how to take care of my own child. When it comes to a doctor telling you about physical care, that's one thing. But the idea of people who are perfect strangers to your child—and half the time they're men and women who are not even married—telling you how to understand your own child! Why, next they'll try to teach the mother bird how to care for her young!"

I heard a woman say that with reference to the "Courses for Parents" offered by a Child Study association. And I felt sorry for her child.

For to understand, to "take care of" a child, requires first of all a certain breadth of vision and—humility. The last job in the world for the woman who thinks she "knows it all" is the care of a child.

It is so big a story, all that must go into "course for parents," that it can be no more than suggested here. The first point about it is the recognition that the mere having of children does not necessarily presuppose the right equipment for the best and wisest treatment of them. That is an idea that has long ago been disproved. So-called parents are naturally experts—if we may use a metallic sounding term on this subject—as well fitted by nature for their work as is the mother bird. Some are not. But all can gain by wise counsel. The wise counselors may have less opportunity than they themselves for knowing their children. But they can help parents, through their deep study and understanding of human beings and the problems of young human beings—how to interpret what they know of their children in a way that will be infinitely useful to them and beneficial to the children.

Some one has asked Albert Edward Wiggam, the psychologist, if women are quicker than men to take hints. We do not know Wiggam's answer, but we do know that women are quicker than men to give hints.

That idea of having cots sent to the State House so that the members of the Delaware Legislature might sleep, was a good idea, but it came rather late in the session. The cots should have been sent in at the first of the session, along with an abundance of chloroform.

On Thursday they positively identified Dillinger as the man who robbed a Postoria, Ohio, bank, and the next day they claimed that he was on a steamer nearing the British Isles. People will "identify" Dillinger in every petty theft until he is apprehended.

The Journal is late this week because notice of the sewer election did not reach us in time to go to press at the usual time. As the election must be advertised at a specified time, so many days in advance of the election, to make the election valid, we could not go to press at the usual time without the possibility of affecting the validity of the election.

Dollar Days were not a tremendous success in Harrington this week, due to the two days of rain, but they proved of benefit, both to the business men and the purchasers. It demonstrated one thing—that you must wave the baton to win success these days.

The nominating committee of the Harrington Chamber of Commerce made a wise choice when it decided to re-elect the present officers of the organization: E. B. Rash, president; Randall H. Knox, secretary; C. Fred Wilson, secretary. These officials have been tireless in their work in behalf of the organization during the past two years and the body has accomplished much during their tenure of office. Mr. Rash's distinction has been exceptional in that he is the only president of the organization to hold the office three years.

Harrington is to have an opportunity to vote on the sewer proposition again. And it's just as essential for you to vote right this time as it was before. We still need the sewers and we still need the work for our unemployed. If the vote is favorable, it will not place the work on a competitive basis with the farmers, because most of the farm work is done in the spring and the early summer, and work on the sewers will run far into the winter. And we should get out and work for this proposition, more determined than ever, because of the attempts of a few who were successful in thwarting the will of the people before.

The Most Famous American Mother

The Reconstructed Fort Dearborn

Whistler's Portrait of His Mother

Self-Portrait by Whistler (1859)

Bust of Whistler in Hall of Fame, New York University

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

WHEN the special Mother's day stamps were placed on sale recently, there was added another chapter to the romantic story of a woman who is undoubtedly America's most famous mother. For the stamps bear the reproduction of James Abbott McNeill Whistler's famous painting which is called "Arrangement in Gray and Black," but which is more familiar to his fellow-Americans as "Whistler's Portrait of His Mother," or, more simply still, "The Mother."

Although Anna Mathilda McNeill Whistler needs nothing more than this painting to guarantee her immortality, yet the choice of her portrait for reproduction on a special commemorative stamp issue this year (the first time, incidentally, that such notice has been taken of Mother's day) is an additional honor conferred upon her. In all of our history, only three other women have had that distinction. They were Pocahontas, the Indian princess; Isabella, the Spanish queen; and Martha Washington, wife of our first President. But Anna Mathilda McNeill Whistler is not the only one who is honored in this year's Mother's day stamp. It was issued also to commemorate the one hundredth anniversary of the event which took place in Lowell, Mass., on July 10, 1834—the birth of the son who was to achieve such world-wide fame for her by his portrait of her.

It is doubtful if any other painting ever put on canvas is so well known to so many people. Reproductions of it, running up into the millions in numbers, have been printed and these prints have gone to every corner of the earth. During the last year and a half, while it was in this country under a loan agreement from the French government, it was exhibited in 12 leading cities throughout the United States and it is estimated that during its triumphal tour more than 2,000,000 persons viewed it. Several hundred thousands more will have been added to that number before it is sent back to Paris late this month (for the agreement with the French government calls for its return by June 1) to resume its honored place in the Louvre.

For five months of the time that the painting was on a tour of the country it was exhibited at the Chicago Art Institute in connection with A Century of Progress. But among the thousands who saw it there and who also saw the replica of Fort Dearborn on the exposition grounds it is doubtful if one in a thousand realized that there was a historical, if not a cultural, link between the world-famous painting, the highest exemplification of a man's skill in the line of fine arts, and the crude architecture of a building which had only the very utilitarian purpose of preserving the lives of its inhabitants from savage hatred. That link is the theme of this story.

The story has its beginning in Ireland more than 175 years ago. In the year 1758 there was born to an English family named Whistler, living there, a son to whom was given the name of John. Long before he had reached his majority young John Whistler ran away from home and joined the British army. In 1777 he came to America as a soldier in the expedition with which "Gentleman Johnny" Burgoyne intended to deal a crushing blow to the American colonies. But the rapier thrusts of Daniel Morgan and Benedict Arnold warded off that blow at Saratoga, and the end of the year saw John Whistler a prisoner of war along with the rest of "Gentleman Johnny's" army. Mark that fact well, for it has a curious aftermath!

Before the end of the Revolution, Whistler, as a paroled or exchanged prisoner, was back in England where he soon afterwards was discharged from the army. Then he fell in love with the daughter of one of his father's friends, eloped with her, came to America a second time and settled at Herndon, Md. In 1791 this soldier who had worn the scarlet uniform of Old England put on the nondescript uniform of a lieutenant adjutant in the levies which made up a part of the army of the new republic. From that time on he served continuously on the Northwestern frontier under St. Clair, Wayne and others who were trying to break the power of the savage tribes that were resisting the westward push of the American frontiersmen.

In 1797 it was "Captain" John Whistler and in 1803 he was stationed at Detroit. The Louisiana Purchase had flung our frontier from the Mississippi back to the Rocky mountains, but if we hoped to make good our possession of this vast empire there must be garrisons in the heart of the Indian country. One of the strategic places for such a garrison was at the foot of Lake Michigan at a place variously called Chicago, Chikago, Chokakon and a half-dozen similar spellings. So, early in 1803, the inspector general of the army stationed at Cumberland, Md., gave orders for the building of a post there and named Capt. John Whistler as commandant.

Accordingly the fort was built in the summer of 1803, given the name of Fort Dearborn, in honor of Gen. Henry Dearborn, then secretary of war, and thus Capt. John Whistler became the real "father of Chicago." The original draft for the plans of the fort, drawn by Captain Whistler, is still in the archives of the War department at Washington—a good soldierly job, it is, but revealing none of the artistic qualities which were later to make the name of Whistler so famous.

second largest city in the United States. But the building and the commanding were not the only contributions he made to the history of Fort Dearborn and the beginnings of Chicago. He brought with him a growing family, some of whose members were destined for renown even greater than his.

His eldest son, William Whistler, accompanied him to Chicago as a second lieutenant and served there throughout the elder Whistler's term of service. His eldest daughter, Sarah, was married in November, 1804, to James Abbott, a trader of Detroit, thus becoming Chicago's first bride. Another daughter married Lieut. Joseph Hamilton, who was also a subaltern under Whistler at Fort Dearborn.

But our chief interest is in a toddling child of three who came with his father to Chicago in 1803. His name was George Washington Whistler. Thus did the ex-British soldier honor the great commander of the "rebels" against whom he had fought under Burgoyne. Young George Washington Whistler grew up into sturdy boyhood along the marshy banks of the Chicago river and on the sandy shores of Lake Michigan. He was only ten years old when, as the result of a garrison feud, the War department thought it advisable to scatter the officers at Fort Dearborn to various posts in the Middle West and the boy accompanied his father back to Detroit. And there, two years later, young George Washington Whistler probably witnessed the scene which made his father unique in American—and perhaps in any other—history.

For Capt. John Whistler and his elder son, Lieut. William Whistler, were officers in General Hull's army when that flustered American commander surrendered the fort at Detroit to the British at the outbreak of the War of 1812, and tradition says that the captain was so enraged over the capitulation that he broke his sword over his knee rather than surrender it to the enemy. Perhaps it was only the shame of a surrender without firing a shot that caused him to do it. Or perhaps it might have been his realization that he was destined to go down in history as the only British officer who, having once surrendered to a victorious American army, became in turn an American officer who surrendered to a victorious British army.

In due time John Whistler was exchanged for a British prisoner, and the choleric old captain remained in the American army only until the close of the war when he was honorably discharged. He died September 3, 1829, but he lived long enough to see his son, William, win some renown as the officer to whom the Winnebago chieftain, Red Bird, surrendered in 1827, thus bringing to a close the brief and now almost-forgotten Winnebago war. William also served honorably in the Black Hawk war of 1832 and in 1845 became colonel of the Fourth Infantry. Incidentally, among other subalterns who served under him in that regiment during the Mexican war was a short, stocky young lieutenant named Ulysses S. Grant.

Old Capt. John Whistler also lived long enough to see his youngest son, George Washington Whistler, graduate from West Point at the age of nineteen and assigned to the artillery branch. But he was not to have the satisfaction of knowing to what heights his son would rise in another profession, nor to what greater heights this son's son would rise in still another.

While George Washington Whistler was still a cadet at West Point he once visited, while on leave, the home of a classmate, William Gibbs McNeill. It was a great brick mansion which had been built on a plantation near the Cape Fear river in North Carolina before the Revolution by one Donald McNeill, scion of a Scotch family that had emigrated to America from the Isle of Skye in 1739. There Cadet Whistler made the acquaintance of Anna Mathilda McNeill, the eldest of a family of five children.

It would be pleasant to be able to record the fact that it was a case of love at first sight for Cadet Whistler and Anna McNeill. But that is doubtful, for soon after he was graduated from West Point he was married, but not to Anna McNeill. Shortly afterwards young Whistler was left a widower and early in the '30s he again met the motherly older sister of his classmate, William Gibbs McNeill, and married her. In 1833 Whistler resigned from the army and the next year to George Washington Whistler and Anna Mathilda Whistler was born a son to whom was given the name James Abbott McNeill Whistler, thus perpetuating the name of his uncle, James Abbott, the Detroit trader at Fort Dearborn, as well as his paternal and maternal families, the McNeills and the Whistlers.

After George Washington Whistler's resignation from the army he rose to eminence as an engineer and in 1842 he went to Russia to enter the service of the czar in the construction of the railroad from St. Petersburg to Moscow, winning for himself from Czar Nicholas the decoration of the Order of St. Anne. To Russia with him went his wife and their two sons, one of them a slender, weak lad, affectionately known to his mother as "Jamie." And "Jamie" he was to her to the end of her days, even when he became a world-famous painter. For the close tie between the mother and the son who was to immortalize her on canvas began during this Russian experience.

She nursed him during those bitter years and when they were ended in the death of Major Whistler and when the widow and her two sons were reduced to poverty, she brought them out of the land of snows back to her sunny North Carolina. When "Jamie" grew up he decided to follow the profession of his father and become a soldier. He secured an appointment to West Point in 1852, but his career there was a short one. In fact, it lasted only two years.

Years later Whistler humorously remarked: "Had silicon been a noxious gas I would have been a general today." And therein lies the reason for the failure of the line of soldiers, beginning with old John Whistler to continue beyond James Abbott McNeill Whistler. One day Cadet Whistler and the others at the Point were taking a chemistry examination. One of the questions was to define silicon. Whistler guessed on that one and he guessed wrong. It is probable, however, that it was only one of several mistakes that he made in the examination. At any rate, he was "found"—that is, discharged from the academy for deficiency in chemistry.

But the loss to the military world, if indeed it was a loss, was the gain of the world of art. After leaving West Point, Whistler went to Paris, resolved to become a painter, and his career in that role is too well known to need further comment. During the years he was rising to fame his mother was in Europe, also, not with him always, but nearly in case he should have need of her. For somehow her little "Jamie" never seemed to grow up enough to be without his mother. In 1860 Whistler left London for three years more of study in Paris and his mother returned to America for a last visit with her relatives in North Carolina. For Whistler had decided never to return to his native land to live. So his mother was going to wind up what few affairs she had there and then return to London, where they would live on the scant means which the son could provide.

While she was visiting in Cumberland and Bladen counties in North Carolina, the storm of the Civil war broke and her return to Europe was postponed indefinitely. Finally early in 1864 came word from her son that he had returned to London and established himself there. So she announced her intention of joining him.

Her relatives tried to deter her. Up in Virginia a bearded little man in a blue uniform was dealing the sledge-hammer strokes around Richmond which were sounding the death-knell of the Lost Cause. His name was Ulysses S. Grant, who as a lieutenant had clicked his heels in salute to his colonel, William Whistler, back in the Mexican war days. Along the Atlantic coast Union warships were tightening the blockade of the ports of the Confederacy which was slowly but surely strangling it to death.

But no matter how much her relatives told Anna Mathilda McNeill Whistler that it would be impossible for her to go to Europe now, her only reply was the calm statement that her "Jamie" needed her and she was going. And so she did. Somehow she arranged to take passage on the Confederate blockade runner, the Advance, which was preparing to leave Wilmington, N. C., taking 2,000 bales of cotton to the cotton mills in England—if the Advance could get through the blockade. Another passenger on the same ship was William Laurie Hill, going on a mission from the Confederate government to London. He knew that he was taking a long chance of getting through alive, but the urgency of his mission permitted no delay.

The Advance stole out of the harbor one night under the cover of darkness. Outside was a massed fleet of 150 Union vessels, concentrated against the last surviving port of the Confederacy, which was guarded by Fort Fisher. By some miracle the Advance made her escape and arrived safely in England.

There Anna Mathilda McNeill Whistler lived to the end of her days, the inseparable companion of the man who came to be hailed as one of the greatest painters in the world.

Britain Would Buy Island?

Possession of Sleepy Little Timor Said to Be Needed by Great Empire as Link in the Projected Europe-Australia Air Route.

The British government is reported by a news dispatch from London to be interested in Timor island of the East Indies as a possible sea and air base. An offer of $25,000,000 to $50,000,000 may be made for the island, it is declared. The eastern part of Timor and a tiny nick of the western part now belongs to Portugal, and the remainder to The Netherlands.

"Timor is the eastern 'jumping-off place' of the Sunda Islands, that chain of land spots which is strung out from Sumatra eastward toward the north coast of Australia," says a bulletin from the Washington (D. C.) headquarters of the National Geographic society. "It is about 300 miles from the Timor coast to Australia. Timor is thus a vital link in the Europe-Australia air route."

"Although Timor had a Portuguese settlement on its coast more than a century before Capt. John Smith with his band of English colonists disembarked at Jamestown; and although the Dutch landed on the island about the time of the Capt. John Smith-Pocahontas life-saving episode in Virginia, Timor shows little effect of its contact with the western world."

"About 300 miles long and averaging 60 miles in width, the island has but few settlements that even can be called townships. Even Koepang, capital and largest port on the Dutch or western end of the island, has only 5,500 inhabitants; and Dili, which is the chief town in the eastern, or Portuguese portion of the island, can account for only 3,500 permanent residents."

"There are no railroads on Timor and one of the best roads of any great length is a horse trail that traverses the island. No cable links it with other islands. Steamships that touch other East Indian islands stop at Timor ports to deliver cotton goods, oil and wine, and to take away coffee, copra, hides, cacao, shells, wax and sandalwood which are the leading exports. And now and then an occasional visitor off the beaten tourist path, walks down a steeply ascending bank bent upon roaming over the mountains and through valleys where live most of the island's 800,000 inhabitants—largely a racial mixture of Malay, Polynesian, and Papuan blood."

"The natives are divided into many tribes, ruled by chiefs whose jealousy of neighboring leaders, and land-grabbing habits, frequently have caused bloody clashes. Bows and arrows and spears are the war weapons of the natives. For hunting game, they use blow guns and small darts."

"While the loincloth still constitutes the entire wardrobe of the men of some of the tribes, other tribesmen wear two-piece cotton garments and turbans. The women don colorful sarongs and shawls. From the appearance of exposed arms and other portions of the natives' bodies, it is evident that tattoo artists are kept busy in Timor. The tattooing is done with crude instruments and dyes which sometimes cause blood poisoning and death."

"There appear to be no limits, other than wealth and inclination, to the number of wives a tribesman may have. The native home is a round, one-room, wooden structure with a roof of grass or palm-leaf thatch, and not too clean inside or out. To appease the angry gods and to avoid destruction by evil spirits, the tribesmen place palm branches before fruit trees, houses and growing crops. Agriculture is carried on with crude, primitive implements; and, although there are many streams on the island, irrigation is hardly known. During the dry season vegetation bows to the torrid sun even to the extent of the trees losing their leaves."

"If the reported purchase is consummated it will not be Great Britain's first possession of Timor. In 1797 the British attempted to drive out the Dutch, then dominantly in control of the island. At first they failed. Later the British succeeded, and the Dutch flag was lowered. Portuguese influence then swept the island until 1814, when, by treaty, the Dutch resumed their old status."

"Today, the Dutch portion of Timor is about 5,000 square miles with 360,000 inhabitants. The Portuguese portion is 7,335 square miles with about 442,000 people. Both portions are mountainous. Many peaks are more than 6,000 feet high. Mount Rameau, near the center of the island, rises 9,600 feet."

Comprehensive Map
After nine years of labor by expert topographers, about one-third of a huge map of the United States has been completed at Wellesley, Mass. When finished, this map will be 63 feet long, 45 feet wide and will show every mountain and valley in the country reproduced exactly to scale in height and size. Eventually, it will contain 900 blocks. When the map is completed, it is expected to be of invaluable service to rail and airline engineers in mapping new routes. It is constructed on a curved surface representing the exact curvature of the earth.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

SOME NEW FACTS IN THE HISTORY OF GOLD MONEY

It is quite a comedown for gold to be used for money or the basis for currency. It would require a combination of historian, philosopher, banker, politician and mystic to write the history of the precious metal. Dr. Frederick G. Howe, consumers' counsel of the Agricultural Adjustment administration, told the Cosmos club the other night.

Among the ancient Hindus it was revered as sacerdotal. "He who tampers with it," said the law, "dies on a dunghill and rots in hell to the end of time." Only princes could so much as touch it.

Gold was first demoted to the profane status of "money," Doctor Howe said, by the Lydians, who put the king's stamp upon it and used it as a medium of exchange. Interest immediately arose to 36 per cent, farmers lost their land and sold themselves and their families into slavery in order to live.

This 36 per cent, Doctor Howe said, was the first money interest and arose naturally out of the former Lydian system of doing business.

"Trade had been primarily in cattle. When cows were sold on credit it was assumed they would have calves. So the seller demanded the price of a calf as additional payment. This was calculated at about one-third the value of a cow."

"When you pay interest to the bank today you are paying, genetically considered, the price of the calf of the cow you borrowed."

Other notes on gold from Doctor Howe's studies:
All the gold on earth is worth about $11,000,000,000. It could be stored in a room of 30 cubic feet. The workers of the United States could earn it all by working 90 days at $5 a day. They could earn all the gold in their own country in 20 days. The total of gold in the United States has about the same intrinsic value as to total of diamonds.—Washington Star.

M. P. CHURCH NOTES

The election of a delegate and an alternate to the next session of the annual conference to be held at Western Maryland College, Westminster, Md., on June 13, will be held at the close of the morning service on Mother's Day, Sunday week. All members of the church eighteen years and over are permitted to vote, and are expected to do so.

The regular monthly business and social meeting of the Loyal Workers Class will be held at the home of the president, Mrs. H. L. Boyer, on Monday evening. This is a very important meeting, as the annual election of officers will take place at this time.

On Wednesday afternoon the Ladies Auxillary will hold their regular monthly meeting. This is also to be held at the home of Mrs. Boyer. All those interested in the cause of missions are invited to be present. The Ladies Auxillary of our church entertains the district next month, and this is the last meeting before that occasion.

On Tuesday evening, the ladies pay their forfeit to the men as a result of having lost their recent contest. All men who helped plaster this defeat on the women are urgently requested to be present to be informed on some very vital matters. The ladies are expecting you, so don't disappoint them.

Don't forget that this is Missionary Sunday in the Sunday School. The entire offering goes to this worthy cause, and you receive credit for it on the board and on your pledge. The conference year is almost over.

This Sunday is also Communion Sunday. Be sure to be present to carry out the command of the Master. "This do in remembrance of me." An opportunity will be given any who may desire to join church on Sunday.

A very fine program is being prepared for Mother's Day, morning and evening. The evening service will be an entirely young people's program.

The Intermediate Christian Endeavor Society has been taken over by Mrs. R. W. Sapp and has been reorganized with Frances O'Neil as president, Mary Anne Fleming, vice-president, and Frances Rash secretary and treasurer. Come out and join this young people's organization this Sunday at 6:45 P. M.

DAYLIGHT SAVING IN WILMINGTON

Persons having business in Wilmington and Philadelphia, will do well to remember that these cities are now on daylight saving time. The change was made last Sunday.

Much confusion resulted the first of the week when the change was made, but things have now settled into the regular summer routine. Lower Delaware will remain on standard time again this year.

Don't Be 'BALLYHOODED'—when buying Fuel

Play safe, order 'blue coal'

THOUSANDS of home owners—disappointed at the failure of substitute fuels to justify their claims—have shifted to 'blue coal'.

Then why risk your good money on fuels of uncertain burning qualities? Or on fuel that gives off a black, sticky smudge to ruin drapes and furniture? Why gamble on any substitute when you can be sure of clean, steady heat with 'blue coal' and save money.

*For generations high-grade anthracite has been the favorite fuel of home owners everywhere. 'blue coal' is the cream of Pennsylvania Hard Coal—colored blue for your protection.

'blue coal' sends heat up fast on cold mornings—keeps your home at a cozy, uniform temperature all day—and bakes perfectly at night.

To get the best every time you order always specify 'blue coal'. Your nearest 'blue coal' dealer is listed in the "Where-To-Buy-It" section of your classified telephone book, under the words 'blue coal'. Phone your order to him today!

62,388 CHEVROLET UNITS DELIVERED IN TWENTY DAYS

A total of 62,388 units were delivered by Chevrolet dealers during the first twenty days of April, according to W. E. Holler, general sales manager of Chevrolet Motor Company. Sales for the year thru this period total 235,332 units as compared to 154,526 units in the same period of 1933, making the period 152 per cent of the corresponding period in 1933.

Sales reported for the twenty days of April are more than 180 per cent of the corresponding 1933 April figure of 34,354 units.

Retail deliveries of commercial cars and trucks continue to gain; 16,221 trucks were delivered during the April period, which triples the 1933 figure of 5,304 units for the same period. Sales in the commercial field have shown steady increases, Mr. Holler pointed out, and at the close of this April period had reached a record figure of 73,619 units for 1934.

The Home Safety Division of the Delaware Safety Council has designated the week of May 7-12 as Delaware's Home Safety Week. Home Safety Week will be inaugurated by a luncheon to be held in the Gold Ballroom, Hotel duPont, Monday, May 7. Louis H. Clerf, M. D., Professor of Bronchoscopy and Esophagoscopy, Jefferson Medical College, will be the principal speaker. His lecture on "Hazards of the Home" will be illustrated with especially prepared stereopticon slides. Dr. Clerf is a former associate of Dr. Chevalier Jackson, inventor of the bronchoscope. Representatives of the Wilmington Public Schools and the Adult Education Group will briefly outline the advantages of adequate home safety instruction. Music will be furnished by George Madden and his orchestra.

Home Safety Inspection blanks will be distributed to Delaware's 500,000 school children urging them to participate in a state-wide search for home accident hazards. Home safety information will be distributed with the Delaware Power &

Light Co.'s gas and electric bills and the Diamond State Telephone Co.'s bills. Through the courtesy of the leading Wilmington dairies, pert-home safety messages will be displayed on the milk bottle caps. Radio safety addresses will be broadcast each evening over Station WDEL at 7 o'clock, daylight saving time.

Many people fail to realize that home accidents are second only to those caused by automobiles. Needless home mishaps killed 60 Delaware citizens last year. The principal causes of home accidents are: falls, burns and scalds, asphyxiation, poisons, cuts and scratches.

An analysis of Home Accidents reported during 3 months to four large Wilmington hospitals reveals the startling fact that the majority of home accidents occurred on Saturday afternoons to male members of the household. These accidents happened in the kitchen and were caused by falls.

Kent County Bankers Association

All banks* are required to operate under a Code; and in order to comply, and at the same time conform with sound banking practices adopted throughout the United States, the Kent County Bankers Association has adopted a number of rules and regulations, effective May 1st, 1934.

BANKING HOURS FOR ALL MEMBER BANKS SHALL BE 9 A. M. TO 3 P. M., EXCEPT SATURDAYS, WHICH WILL BE 9 A. M. TO 12 NOON.

The public is assured that there will be no charge except on those accounts, after analyzing, show the bank sustains a loss, which may be caused when the balance is very small or the account very active, either or both, as the case may be. Then, when after analysis a charge is found necessary, the minimum fixed by the Code is 25 cents per month.

We invite our customers to discuss with any of our officers any feature of the Code they are personally interested in.

All the Banks in Kent County, including The Milford Trust Company in Milford are in one District and are organized as Kent County Bankers Association. This plan has been adopted by the Association as a whole.
