Uncommon Sense

By John Blake
© Bell Syndicate—WNU Service.

It has been a long time since parents believed that it was the duty of a school teacher, entrusted with the education of young people to "lick 'em, an' larn em."

I am told that corporal punishment is nonexistent in the schools today. In my time it was pretty prevalent, too much so for the happiness of myself and my fellow pupils. But I do not believe it ever did any good.

Today, the teachers' profession, while still not paid as highly as it should be, is the most important calling in any civilized country.

The teachers themselves have been taught scientifically. They know better how to gain and hold the attention of their pupils.

They are more tolerant with dullards, who, from no fault of their own, are slow to learn.

School teaching is a highly important business. It is important because it arouses in the minds of young people a desire for knowledge that desire is fulfilled in the school room or outside, it does not make much difference.

Whether that desire is fulfilled in the school room or outside, it does not make much difference.

Convince a youngster that the more he knows, the happier, and, probably, the more successful he will be, and more than half the battle is accomplished.

The teachers in this country are very well paid, according to the old standards.

But they are not as well paid as chauffeurs, or horse trainers, or baseball players, whose value to the world is very much less than their own.

Today, fortunately in this country, education is compulsory. But, compulsory or voluntary, you must want it, or you will not get it.

You must be interested and ambitious, and determined to get out of yourself the best results possible.

Otherwise the time you have spent in learning will be of no possible use to you.

In these days of colleges and educational institutions of all kinds, it is getting harder and harder for a half-taught boy or girl to get any position at all.

This has been especially evident in the last year or so. But those who suffer the least from the conditions out of which we are now passing are those who have used their opportunities to stock their minds.

If every young man or woman, starting out in life knew exactly in what direction to go, there would not be nearly so many failures in life.

What Women Do so many failures in life. But, unfortunately, what one wants to do, and what one can do best, are not always the same.

If you asked the average high school girl today what her chosen walk in life would be, she would probably tell you that she would rather be a motion picture actress than anything else.

And one time out of a hundred, a motion picture actress' life might be open to her if she worked hard.

In the other ninety-nine cases, if she persisted and got as far as Hollywood, the result would only be disappointment, perhaps tragedy.

The people who do not know what they want to do are still in a majority, and they are to be pitied.

They may have real intelligence and ability, sometimes actual talent. But if they try this thing and that, and are always hoping that some new opportunity will turn up to give them a chance, their whole life may be wrecked.

Today conditions of this kind are not so serious as they used to be. There are wider opportunities for women. Indeed, in many cases, women are doing the same kind of work that men are and gaining fame and fortune.

But these are exceptions. What the average girl ought to do is to get married and have a family of her own.

And that is what she usually does, if she has the chance. But if the chance doesn't come along, and it often doesn't, the future looks very dark.

But the clouds are not so menacing as they were. In newspaper offices where I have worked I have known bright, intelligent girls, who were doing the same kind of work as men, and getting the same pay.

You find shops of all kinds, once operated only by men, with women at their head, often the owners of the place.

One of the largest chain of restaurants in New York is run by a woman, with great success. Women have wide opportunities when they go to work in big department stores, and often earn salaries that would put some of their male workers in the shade.

And all this has been accomplished within the last twenty or thirty years. And as a result man is beginning to find out that the words "superior sex" are an anachronism.

Women at last are quite able to look out for themselves, and many do.

Thoroughly Converted Malaysians in different localities and at various times have been converted to Hinduism, to Mohammedism and to Christianity; some have been conquered by the Dutch, by the English, by the Portuguese and the Spanish.

Once Called Sommer Bermuda has not always had its present name. According to an old record, it was first called "Sommer Island," as well in respect of the continual temporal area as in remembrance of Sir George Sommer.

Slenderizing Lines Characterize Frock

PATTERN 9321

Quite the neatest trick we've observed for a long time is this cleverly arranged, yet delightfully simple, home frock. Especially nice for those of us who gain and lose weight or who just naturally love a smart looking wrap-around for sheer comfort and convenience. And, of course, a boon to expectant mothers. Note how the belt slips through a slit and may be simply adjusted to fit the figure. Meanwhile, one has stepped right into it as into a coat. No petticoat needed. Nice shoulders and back, aren't they? Most attractive in solid color cotton broadcloth or printed or plaid cotton of any sort.

Pattern 9321 may be ordered only in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, and 48. Size 30 requires 4 1/2 yards 36 inch fabric.

SEND FIFTEEN CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, STYLE NUMBER and SIZE.

Address your order to The Sewing Circle Pattern Department, 232 West 18th Street, New York, N. Y.

THE INEVITABLE AMERICAN BOOM

In view of the recent Supreme Court decisions on the NRA, the Frazier-Lemke Act, and other matters, I believe that we are definitely headed into a period of either credit or monetary inflation. Although the Supreme Court has headed off the Administration in some of its most important New Deal experiments, yet these decisions do not change the desires of the American people for a short cut to prosperity.

These decisions may even result in the President's relaxing his firm attitude against currency inflation. He may turn to it as his only method of quickly bringing back good times. Producing prosperity by currency inflation, however, is like showing a good bank statement by falsifying the books. On the other hand, if the President takes his cue from the Court and swings toward the right he may create enough confidence among business men to get credit inflation under way. Hence, I believe we may be approaching one of the biggest booms in American history, although eventually we must face the day of reckoning. I am optimistic for the next few years, however, owing to the great potential markets which exist today.

In the first place there is replacement of worn-out machinery. Back in the prosperous twenties, expenditures for machinery averaged $6,600,000,000 per year. In the course of the depression this total was slashed to $2,700,000,000 annually. The machinery trade has estimated that it would take $18,000,000,000 to make up this deficit and to put American industry back on an efficient operating basis. Being conservative, I would put the figure at $10,000,000,000. The same situation exists in all branches of the heavy or capital goods industries, such as construction, railroad equipment and the like, where the total deferred demand is estimated at about $49,000,000,000.

The railroad industry is very interesting from this angle. It is estimated that 15,000,000, or seventy-five per cent, of all freight cars now in use in the United States are more than twenty years old. Since 1929 only 160 locomotives have been ordered annually compared with 1,000 in normal years. The same situation holds true of passenger cars. In fact, the large percentage of rolling stock today is hopelessly antiquated. The great savings possible by use of efficient rolling stock would go a long way toward putting the railroads back on their feet. Radical new designs of all railroad equipment, as typified by streamlined trains, are creating a tremendous market. The "if" in this situation is the fact that the railroads are as poor as church mice.

Then there is the building industry. Volume of construction per year in normal times is figured at over $6,000,000,000. In the last three years it has averaged only a little more than $1,000,000,000 and fifty per cent of this was publicly financed. There are still limitless possibilities for public works such as prevention of soil erosion, reforestation, flood control, and the like. These are now being tapped by the $4,800,000,000 Emergency Relief program. The Federal Power Commission reckons that $300,000,000 of new generating capacity is necessary to prevent a shortage of electric power when industry gets back to normal.

With the automobile becoming a constantly greater factor in American life, we have only scratched the surface of the potentialities of road building. As more super-highways radiate out of the cities, the suburbs will move further and further into the country, bringing radical changes in residential building. A deficit of about 200,000 homes per year has accumulated since 1929. This means that at the present time there is a shortage of over 1,000,000 dwellings, which, figured at the average cost per house built in 1934, means a market of $3,400,000,000! Furthermore, a large percentage of existing homes, as revealed by a recent survey, need complete overhauling. Growing shortages of single dwellings and apartments are reported in half the leading cities.

The development of the automobile industry was a big factor in the prosperity of the twenties. There are today two potential developments in housing which may prove to be the "automobiles" of this recovery period. First is air conditioning. Introduced just prior to the crash, it remained in the experimental stages during most of the depression, but improvements have been made right along. Today, air conditioning equipment is a practical product whose price is within the reach of a great many home owners. In time, air conditioning equipment in the average home will be just as common-place as a central heating plant is today.

The other possibility is the factory-built house. Already this type of residence has practical possibilities and is ready for marketing. These houses, built of steel, aluminum, asbestos and other fire-resisting materials, are equipped with the most modern ventilating, electric, oil and gas appliances. Delivered, erected and equipped at a price of $4,000 to $10,000 these houses will save owners thousands of dollars not only in original cost, but in operation and maintenance. They add to the possibilities of these embryonic industries the vast markets awaiting perfection of the "flivver" airplane and the Diesel engine!

These developments are coming at a very fortunate time. Money is exceptionally cheap. Interest rates are at the lowest level in thirty years. Credit reserves are the greatest in our history. Today's gold holdings would permit a credit expansion to the amount of about $23,000,000,000 compared with an actual figure of $55,000,000,000 at the 1929 peak and $43,000,000,000 at present. Business men have all the financial backing they need for tapping these great markets. If the Administration would only forget for a while its "reform obsession" and emphasize recovery, business men would soon take heart again. Then the wheels of heavy industry would start moving and the inevitable American boom would be on!
