ANNUAL EDUCATION BILL IS 2 BILLION DOLLARS (From Rotarian Magazine)

Education of their children costs parents in the United States 2 billion dollars annually. They support a 10-billion-dollar educational plant. They make it possible for a million and a half American young persons to attend college, compared with 50,000 not many years ago. Over three-quarters of all children in the United States now get to school.

"Are the results worth the price?" That's the question Dr. Henry C. Link, psychologist and author, asks after presenting the above figures, in the current Rotarian Magazine.

"The free education which parents so often force on their children," says Dr. Link, "may be a source of more harm than good. The ideal educational program would be one in which all children, rich or poor, had to work to pay at least part of their expenses, especially during the summer months. Some colleges already follow this plan, with very satisfactory results.

"In the absence of the ideal program, parents can make further education of their college student contingent upon his getting a job during the summer, doing some paying work at school, or, at least, keeping his expenses to an absolute minimum. If a student has time for nothing but his studies, and even so finds college difficult, then probably he would do better to get a job.

"The longer a young person postpones getting a job, the less likely he is to find it, or the less fit he may be for it when he does find it. This is a matter of personality; not economics, and personalities make economics, not as we are so often told, the reverse."

FARMERS TO STUDY COST OF PRODUCTION

In cooperation with the Libby, McNeill & Libby Company and the American Potash Institute, the agricultural extension service of Kent and Sussex counties will conduct cost of production records and potash demonstrations this year with a selected number of tomato and cucumber growers in an effort to increase the yields per acre and improve the quality of these canning crops.

For the purpose of explaining to these farmers the details of these cost of production studies, and the fertilizer demonstrations, arrangements were made by W. J. Dufendach, manager of the Houston plant of Libby, McNeill & Libby; Kent County Agent Russell E. Wilson, and George R. Cobb, agronomist for the American Potash Institute, for a dinner meeting, which was held last Thursday evening in the Fire House at Houston. The dinner was served by the ladies of the Houston Century Club, and was attended by forty men including representatives of the local canning factory and the extension service of the University of Delaware, in addition to those farmers who were invited as the guests of the American Potash Institute.

The tomato growers in Kent county who will cooperate in this project include George Simpson, R. C. Butler, R. L. Pearson and George Sharp, of Houston; L. S. Creadick, Dorsey Torbert and W. A. Hudson, of Felton; Thomas M. Chambers, of Harrington; William C. Gray and Louis Kiehlbass, of Farmington, and C. W. VanVorst, of Millford.

In Sussex county the cucumber growers who have been selected include Eli Short and Granville Goslee, of Georgetown; Daniel Rogers, Ernest Hudson, Elijah Toomey and Frank Hudson, of Millsboro; William Caeson, of Milton; John McCabe, Sr., and William Vigors, Jr., of Frankford; Leroy Murray and Fred Hudson, of Selbyville.

The importance of production cost records in determining those factors which influence profit and loss was discussed by R. O. Stelzer, extension economist of the University of Delaware. Sussex County Agent C. Russell Snyder and Assistant County Agent Byard V. Carmean also spoke concerning the value of such records, and requested the cooperation of farmers in this project.

Dr. F. T. Manns, plant pathologist of the Delaware experiment station, presented timely information in regard to disease control and seed treatment for tomatoes, cucumbers and other truck and canning crops.

An outline of the fertilizer demonstrations to be conducted on these twenty-two farms was explained by George R. Cobb, who also stated that soil samples have been obtained from these farms for testing for fertilizer and lime requirements. S. D. Gray, manager of the north-eastern territory for the American Potash Institute, spoke briefly concerning the cooperation between this organization, the Libby, McNeill & Libby Company and the Delaware experiment station and extension service in the solution of problems in crop production.

SAFETY COUNCIL NOTES

Sometimes driving seems to bring out the worst in human nature. Selfishly, a driver will hug the center of the road, refuse to let others pass, weave in and out of traffic, or cut across a line of cars when he wants to make a turn.

According to Delaware Safety Council, the courteous driver is the better driver and usually gets places just as fast. He invariably shows his driving ability by adopting good road habits.

He always gets into position well before turning. If he plans to make a right turn, he pulls over into the lane nearest the center of the road and gives the proper signal before he reaches the corner. He never cuts a left-hand turn short, as this is not only a dangerous thing to do, but is also discourteous to other drivers as well as to the pedestrian. He respects the rights of other motorists, keeping away over on the right-hand side of the road and always leaving plenty of room for oncoming and passing traffic.

Before over-taking a car he makes sure that he has plenty of room to pull out of his road to get back with ease and safety. He never crowds other cars into a ditch. He gives warning signals with his horn but never uses it unnecessarily.

When traveling at 30 miles an hour on the open road he keeps about five car lengths behind the vehicle ahead, and more when traveling faster.

He doesn't pass standing street cars where no safety zones exist and never passes one on the left hand unless so directed. He realizes that coasting is dangerous and that passing another vehicle on a curve or a hill is attempted only by extremely poor drivers.

If carelessness or circumstances should put you into an accident, remember then that the smartest and the most decent thing to do is to identify yourself and render help whenever possible.

WORTHLESS MEDICINE BEING SOLD OLD AGE PENSIONERS

A joint warning has been issued by the Old Age Welfare Commission, the State Board of Pharmacy and the State Board of Health against the activities of persons purported to be illegally posing as physicians and selling allegedly worthless medicine to old age pensioners, and others in Sussex county.

On such medicine, salesman is said to claim that he was sent by "a lady very much interested in the cause", refuses to give his name, furnishes them with an un-labeled bottle of medicine, and charges from fifteen dol-

Another, giving his address at Seaford (where investigation has failed to disclose any physician of that name), travels among these poor people selling Indian herb or root tonics at $1.25 a bottle.

These cases are the more despicable because, in many instances, the pension received from the State is the only living these poor people have.

The facts of these sales, insofar as known, have been turned over to the office of the Attorney General, and an investigation is being conducted.

Fingerprints Faked

French police are baffled over a demonstration in Paris of a method of faking fingerprints. The demonstrator said that one must have a genuine fingerprint to start with, and this can be obtained by shaking hands with the "victim." The faker wears a glove having a plastic substance attached to the back. This takes and keeps the impression, which may be transferred anywhere the faker desires to put it.

Hundred-Year-Old Chintz Is Useful

By BETTY WELLS
"I was digging in an old trunk the other day," writes Mrs. M. S. S., "and I ran across a piece of glazed chintz more than a hundred years old. It's a wonderful fabric in dark red with large rose colored flowers scattered over it. So I'm using it in doing over one of my bedrooms into what I call my old-fashioned room, using family heirlooms. I have a canopy poster bed, a chest of drawers, washstand, several old mahogany mirrors, and three ladder back chairs.

Chintz a hundred years old.

"I have had the walls papered in a pale pink with a pattern of old time dark red and tan flowers. How shall I curtain the windows? There are two of them side by side. What use shall I make of the chintz?"
How lucky to have that old chintz! I think it would do nicely for the bedspread.
For the windows, you could get light blue window shades, then use sheer lace net curtains over them, looped in lovely wide swoops. Then if you could have a soft gray-blue plain rug, that would be nice. You could use light gray-blue in quilted material for slip covers for a pair of easy chairs—if you've any red chintz left, you can add little fat round cushions of it.

Barren Backyard Plot Can Be Converted Into Attractive Garden at Amazingly Low Cost—If You Work Carefully and Plan Details in Advance

HOW a distinctive flower and vegetable garden can be grown on the smallest backyard lot was demonstrated last summer by the National Garden Bureau. Current observance of National Garden week focuses attention on this fascinating work. Illustrated above are the barren plot in early spring, then the half-finished project, and next the same garden a few months later.
This plot was divided in two and separated by an archway. On one end was a flower garden, on the other a vegetable patch. Common annuals were grown, started in seed-boxes or flats during early spring. Flowers ranged from the prolific morning glory which covered the fence to miniature zinnias in the border.
The vegetable garden was laid out and length of bloom. The same applies to vegetables.

Prepared in Illinois, this tiny garden cost less than $10 to plant, including the price of seed and fertilizer. Some of the vegetables were being eaten in 20 days. Flowers bloomed in 36 days. Full maturity of the garden was reached in about 30 days, and it lasted a full seven months. Vegetables alone were valued at $75, according to the market, and were of course much higher in quality because they could be used when needed and were garden fresh at all times.
Prospective garden planters are urged to lay out their plot on paper before attempting actual spade work. This simplifies the work and gives much more effective results.

A STORY FOR BEDTIME

By THORNTON W. BURGESS
BUSTER BEAR was feeling lonesome. The truth is, Buster Bear had felt lonesome most of the time since coming down to the Green Forest from the Great Woods, where he used to live. Up there everybody knew him, and they were so used to him that they were not so terribly afraid of him. They knew that as long as they kept out of his reach they had nothing to fear.
So Buster was feeling rather lonesome as he prowled through the Green Forest and had almost decided to go back to the Great Woods from which he had come. Presently he came to the pile of brush under which Peter Rabbit had hidden when he was chased by Reddy Fox, and as he walked around it found Reddy hiding. Reddy sprang away with a frightened yelp and sat down at a safe distance. Then Buster found Old Man Coyote and came a few steps nearer. Old Man Coyote looked at Hooty the Owl and came a few steps nearer.

"The one who is closest is the one who will be the most likely to catch that dinner you all seem to be waiting for," said Buster.
Granny Fox looked at Reddy and then she came up very near. Reddy looked at Old Man Coyote and then he came up very near. Old Man Coyote looked at Hooty the Owl and then he came up very near. Hooty the Owl looked at all three and didn't move. It certainly seemed as if poor Peter Rabbit hadn't a chance in the world.

Peasant-y

Purple, red and white combine stunningly in the peasant influenced dress designed by Dolly Tree for Virginia Bruce in "The First Hundred Years." The tight jacket centers interest in front detail and sleeve treatment. The skirt swings in fullness and the Puritan hat is of purple felt with red grosgrain tie.

TWO-MINUTE BIOGRAPHIES

DAVID LLOYD GEORGE
At seventy-five, the stormy little Welshman of British wartime fame has become more kindly and philosophical, completely retired from the active political scene where he reigned until 1922. An orphan, David Lloyd George was raised by a pious shoemaker uncle. Welshmen knew him as a little boy, as the hero of the local debating society and a young lawyer of 21, and as the unimpressive fellow they sent to the house of commons in 1890. Today, nearly 50 years later, he still represents Carnarvon.

Lloyd George may not have been impressive looking, but he has always possessed boundless physical vitality and was the strangest person the house of commons had ever seen.
So magnetic was his personality, so vital a force did he become, that the Welshman was named prime minister in 1916, a Napoleon of his times. He was one of the triumvirate, consisting also of President Wilson and Premier Clemenceau.
At Versailles he was a leader, and his last important act was to defend the "freedom of the Straits of the Dardanelles" in 1922. Then the Tories left the coalition and Lloyd George resigned.

Secret of the Sphinx

In Greece is a famous town called Thebes. The story goes that a riddle was asked the inhabitants by a female monster called the Sphinx, who murdered everyone who could not give the correct answer. The word "sphinx" means "strangling one," and the Sphinx had the body of a lion with the upper part of a woman. She sat on a rock waylaying every Theban who passed by, and the Thebans promised the kingdom to anyone who would slay her. This was the riddle: "A being with four feet has two feet and three feet, and only one voice; but its feet vary, and when it has most it is weakest."
Oedipus solved it by saying it was man, who crawls on all fours as a child, walks upright as a man, and creeps about with a stick as an old man. The Sphinx immediately threw herself down from the rock and was killed, and Oedipus became king.

Italian Hemstitching for a Chair Set

THE chair set shown here is made of an even meshed cream linen, marked off in squares of Italian hemstitching. Tiny scrolls in outline stitch with two diamonds in satin stitch are embroidered in all the outside corners. The scroll motif is shown at lower left. The tassels are made by raveling strips of the material and then rolling them.

The chair back piece measures 15 by 10 inches finished, and the chair arm pieces 7½ by 7½ inches. Allow ¾-inch at all edges for the rolled hems. The hemstitched squares measure 2½ inches. Mark them in pencil. The method of hemstitching the rolled edges is shown here at A and B. Remember that a moist thumb always helps in rolling an edge evenly. Italian hemstitching is really just two rows worked together as shown at C and D. To prepare the rows, draw two threads, skip four and then draw two more.

Hard Nut to Crack

Despite the vast literature on seeds and seed dispersal, the botanical world does not yet know how Brazil nuts propagate naturally, because they grow—in groups of about a dozen—in a hard, thick, woody case which, so far as is known, can only be opened by the hand of man.—Collier's Weekly.
