

HOUSING SYSTEM TO BE EXPLAINED BY F.H.A. OFFICIAL

Conference Will Be Held At The Peoples Bank, Harrington, On June 9th

PUBLIC IS INVITED TO ATTEND

The citizens of Harrington will have extended to them at the Peoples Bank of Harrington on Thursday, June 9, the same courtesies and privileges as are obtainable under the National Housing Act in a regular district office of the Federal Housing Administration.

A government official, J. J. Doyle, will conduct a "Mortgage Service Conference" at this location in his capacity of Special Representative of the Federal Housing Administration. Mr. Doyle will advise visitors to the conference as to the necessary requirements for eligible mortgage applications covering new residential construction, the purchase of homes and the refunding of existing mortgages on homes under the FHA System of home financing, and endeavor to assist the applicants in receiving favorable consideration in the placing of their mortgages with local financial institutions.

This government official today stated that the applicants for a mortgage under the Federal Housing Plan must have reasonable ability to repay the loan and to carry the property and also emphasized the fact that the government does not lend the money. He explained that the Federal Housing Administration acts as an insuring agency to assist financial institutions in being more liberal in lending on mortgages and to enable a larger number of citizens to buy homes with the feeling of security.

The Federal Housing System is known as the "Single Mortgage Plan". Applications can be made for a first mortgage in an amount up to 80 per cent and for a term up to 25 years on new construction and 80 per cent in the purchase of a home and for a term up to 20 years on a monthly repayment basis.

In building a new home costing $5,000, or less, only 10 per cent is required and in the purchase of an existing home, only 20 per cent is required. In many instances of new construction, the value of the ground is sufficient to represent the down payment.

This modern Mortgage System offers the same convenience to the mortgagor as the payment of rent and an equal monthly payment covers the amortization of the mortgage. 1-12 annual interest, 1-12 of the yearly taxes and all costs involved in carrying the property. All costs are government controlled and the total cost is less than is usually involved in this type of transaction. The Single Mortgage Plan eliminated the evils of second mortgages and the cost incident to the renewal of mortgages. Each monthly payment increases the owner's equity in the property and security is assured in that the maturity date of the mortgage is the same as the date upon which the loan is entirely repaid.

Another advantage in home ownership under the plan is the appraisal and inspection of the property by a well trained and competent valuator and registered architect of the regularly employed organization of the Federal Housing Administration. Assurance of full value, lasting, construction and compliance with Federal Housing standards of sanitation, light and air is given with this inspection and appraisal.

Information relative to loans under the National Housing Act for repair and modernization of homes and the improvement of industrial plants, commercial buildings and other types of structures will be given to interested persons by the Federal Housing Administration representative during the time of the "Mortgage Service Conference" in this community.

It is fully anticipated that a better understanding of the benefits to be derived under the National Housing Act brought about by the conference will enable Harrington to obtain a greater share of the business which has been energized in the building industry throughout the United States by reason of Federal Housing activities.

SUMMER TIME IS "SEASON" FOR INFANTILE PARALYSIS

The infantile paralysis "season" opens with the coming of warm weather and extends until October, and parents should exercise particular care to see that children, at the first sign of any disposition what ever, are examined by a physician according to a warning issued by the State Board of Health.

"Infantile Paralysis", states the announcement by Dr. A. C. Jost, executive secretary, "is notoriously difficult to diagnose in the early stages, and experience in other conditions that might completely elude medical examination unless carefully watched. Ailing children should be taken to a physician at the first symptoms of any indisposition. Under certain conditions a change in the child's disposition may be one of the first things noted."

It is likely, the announcement continued, that more or less danger from infantile paralysis will exist all during the hot weather. Delaware has consistently had a lower number of cases than the national average, even when large numbers of cases have been reported in surrounding states. Only eight cases were reported in 1937.

STATE ACCIDENT BOARD SALARY SUITS UP TODAY

Arguments were heard in Superior Court this morning in connection with the mandamus proceedings instituted by James R. Morford, attorney, to compel State Auditor James W. Wise and State Treasurer Ernest C. Blackstone to pay all arrearages in salaries and administration expenses of the Industrial Accident Board.

The amount in arrears, according to the papers, total $12,820. 55 which includes the salaries of the three members, James B. McManus, secretary of the board and insurance inspector; two stenographers employed in the office and other expenses.

Daniel F. Wolcott, attorney, represents the defendants in the action. Seven separate actions were filed in the mandamus proceedings. The amounts which the three members of the board whose salaries are $3,000 a year, claim, are: Harry V. Lyons, $2,816.67 in salary from June 23, 1937 to March 31, 1938; traveling expenses, $188.96 from July 13, 1937, to March 25, 1938.

His salary is $2,500 a year as secretary of the board and $75 a month as insurance inspector.

N. Y. WOMAN KILLED MONDAY AT GREENWOOD BY TRAIN

A mowman was killed in Sussex County and 13 persons injured in the Wilmington area in automobile accidents on the last day of the Memorial Day week-end.

The death of Mrs. Mary R. Arnold, 58 years old, of New York City, brought motor fatalities this year to 23.

Mrs. Arnold was killed instantly when an automobile operated by her husband, William H. Arnold, 63, collided with a train and express of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

Her crossing, one mile south of Greenwood, shortly after 4 o'clock Monday afternoon.

Mr. Arnold suffered a fractured shoulder and injuries to the neck and thigh. He is in the Milford Memorial Hospital, where he was taken after having been given first aid treatment by Dr. G. Metzler, of Bridgeville.

Mr. and Mrs. Arnold were well known in Delaware. Mr. Arnold has been a novelty salesman in this section for a number of years.

Coroner H. E. Hardesty, of Bridgeville, took charge of Mrs. Arnold's body. The inquest was held on Wednesday.

The train was a holiday special running ahead of the regular express. The accident delayed both trains for more than an hour.

J. H. LATCHUM SLATED FOR REVENUE OFFICE

Willard F. Deputy, Collector of Internal Revenue, District of Delaware, was revealed last Saturday that he was notified Thursday in Washington by Guy T. Helvering, U. S. Commissioner of Internal Revenue, that his term of office as collector for Delaware would terminate on June 30. Mr. Deputy is a resident of Laurel.

Former Senator J. Harry Latchum of Milford, former Democratic leader in the State Senate, is expected to be appointed collector to succeed Mr. Deputy.

The office is one of the most important federal appointments in the state. It pays approximately $5,600 a year.

It is also reported that if Mr. Latchum, a Kent county man, is appointed to the office that an attempt will be made to remove Austin D. Smith as U. S. Marshall. Democrats, it is said, would not want two important federal appointments in the same county. Marshall Smith is a resident of Dover.

The appointment of the new collector will be made by President Roosevelt on the recommendation of U. S. Senator James H. Hughes.

Mr. Deputy was inducted into office as collector on Sept. 1, 1933. Commissioner Helvering, in notifying him of the termination of his office June 30, said there was no justification for the change as the records of his office have been satisfactory.

Mr. Deputy said Helvering told him that the office had been conducted on a high plane. The cost of collection of federal taxes in Delaware was the lowest, with one exception, in the country. The change being made is described as being strictly political in nature.

Many changes in the staff of the internal revenue office are expected soon after the new commissioner is appointed.

MANY OUT OF STATE CARS USED DELAWARE ROADS

Figures given out on Tuesday disclosed only 80 per cent of the 68,965 automobiles which passed State Road during the three-day Memorial Day Week-end count, were Delaware cars. The count was made continuously from 8 o'clock Saturday morning until 8 o'clock Tuesday morning.

Total traffic counted during the three days ending was 5,049 vehicles fewer than counted during the corresponding 72-hour period last year. Of the total vehicles counted during the three days ending Tuesday morning only 4,405 were commercial vehicles. Traffic on the Glasgow and duPont Boulevards, where the counts were made, just below State Road, was nearly equal.

During the three-day period a total of 34,836 vehicles used the Glasgow Road and 34,129 used the duPont Highway. The decrease in traffic was held at least partly due to unsettled weather during the first part of the three-day week-end.

During the 24-hour period from midnight Sunday until midnight Monday night 27,548 automobiles passed State Road. Of this number 13,360 used the duPont Boulevard and 14,188 the Glasgow Road. Foreign pleasure cars numbered 19,027 during the 24-hour count and Delaware pleasure cars 7,172; and 903 foreign trucks and 587 Delaware trucks passed State Road.

The peak hour on the duPont Boulevard was from 6 to 7 Monday night when homeward bound traffic swelled the total of 1,393. The peak hour on the Glasgow Road was during the same hour, with 1,501 automobiles.

C. AND D. CANAL TRAFFIC SHOWS BIG INCREASE

Major C. W. Burlin, U. S. district engineer in a recent statement said traffic through the Chesapeake and Delaware Canal for the 39 days from March 21 to April 20 was the largest in the number of vessels and tonnage on record for the waterway in a similar period.

There were 763 vessels carrying 133,347 tons of cargo to pass through the canal during the period, compared with 535 vessels bearing 114,275 tons for the previous 30 days.

The enlarging of the canal and its use by larger vessels is given as one reason for the increase. There have been 62 more mooring dolphins completed during the past month. A 1,152,000 cubic yard dredging project in the repooling basin is expected to start soon.

Major Burlin reported the contract for the construction of two crescented timber highway bridges over the Assawoman Canal, near Ocean View, has been awarded to W. W. Truitt, of Lincoln City.

SUSSEX WIFE CHECKS COPPERHEAD'S VENOM

Prompt first aid on the part of his wife probably save the life of John Taylor, farmer, living in the Frankford section after he was bitten on the hand by a copperhead snake while working in his sweet potato beds.

Taylor did not see the snake until it had bitten him. Immediately he got a hoe and killed the reptile, went to the house and told his wife who placed a tourniquet about the arm. Then they hastened to the office of Dr. Carlenton C. Fooks at Frankford. An incision was made by the physician allowing the blood to flow from the wound freely. Taylor's hand and arm were badly swollen from the bite and tourniquet and caused much pain. No serious results are anticipated.

Taylor is said to be the fourth person bitten by a copperhead within the past 20 years in lower Delaware, and the second within the past three years. None of them proved fatal.

STATE BLIND TO ENJOY VACATION AT OWN CAMP

Theblind also go camping in the summer.

They cannot romp through fields and woods. They cannot go bird hunting in the early morning, nor see the gradual change of summer to autumn.

But they do have their camp song fests and they can hike through the woods and sit on porches in the summer evenings—like sighted people.

One of the most unusual camps in this area is Camp Landis, the summer camp operated by the Delaware Commission for the Blind.

It is located on one of the farms of Mrs. Irene duPont. Opened in 1930, it has grown steadily since.

Among the latest expansions are the extra porch, additional baths and showers, and the enlargement of the dormitory to accommodate eight more persons.

The camp is a half mile south of Centerville, off the Kennett Pike. There are accommodations for 24 persons, including the housekeeping staff.

As guests of the Delaware Commission for the Blind, every blind person in the state is given a vacation of two weeks and two days, with transportation to and from camp also furnished.

By the use of guide ropes strung through the woods on two sides of the camp to the veranda, even the fairly helpless blind can take walks unassisted. Here the change in surroundings so necessary to all is supplied, independence in getting about alone is acquired and increased courage and ambition gained.

The camp project was conceived by Mrs. Irene duPont and made possible by her and Mr. duPont.

From the large number of acceptances it is expected that there will be an unusually large number of guests at camp during the next four months.

A group of men from Wilmington and rural New Castle County will be the first to be entertained. They will be followed by the women from all three counties. In all there are seven groups to be accommodated.

Arrangements will be made for the transportation of the young men and women now working on the raille project to continue with their work and at the same time enjoy a vacation.

Dr. Sherman H. Stradley, Jr., has been named physician, succeeding the late Dr. Earl Bell.

An innovation this year will be the appointment of clergymen of all denominations to conduct services.

The camp is conducted by Mrs. Anne Rowe Stevens, superintendent of the Delaware Commission for the Blind, Mrs. Lola Fennimore is counselor.

COUNTY FARMERS ATTEND INSURANCE CONFERENCE

For the purpose of discussing the provisions of the Federal Crop Insurance Act, which offers crop insurance to wheat growers, a regional conference was held in Baltimore, Maryland on Wednesday of this week under the direction of the United States Department of Agriculture in cooperation with the state extension departments and representative farmers who are connected with the agricultural conservation program.

This conference by R. Harry Willard, H. Clifford Clark and Laurence E. Cain, members of the county committee of the Kent County Agricultural Conservation Association, C. Arthur Taylor, chairman of the state committee, and County Agent Russell E. Wilson.

According to information which has been received at the Kent county extension office, under the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938, there has been established a Federal Crop Insurance Corporation which will offer wheat farmers insurance on their crop against losses from unavoidable causes such as drought, flood, hail, wind storms, insect pests and plant diseases. Insurance policies will be available beginning with the wheat crop for harvest in 1939, and premiums for this insurance must be paid at the time the policies are issued. The amount of premiums to be paid will depend upon the crop-loss experience both on the individual farms and for the county in which the farms are located.

All premiums are to be in actual wheat or its cash equivalent, and this wheat is to be stored by the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation to pay losses to farmers. The administrative expenses and the cost of storage will be paid by the corporation with funds appropriated by the federal government, and the net cost of this insurance will be borne by the farmers through the payment of premiums.

This program is to be directed by the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation and local administration will be through the state and county committees under the Agricultural Adjustment Administration. Expenditures for administration and operating costs are considered to be in the interest of the general welfare of the nation, as the program is designed not only to stabilize the income of wheat growers, but also to establish reserve supplies of wheat to meet domestic requirements in the event of serious crop failures.

Wheat farmers who are interested in applying for this crop insurance should get in touch with the county extension office or members of the county agricultural conservation committee.

POSTOFFICE AT BRIDGEVILLE IS ROBBED OF $400

Postmaster Slugged With Blackjack By Negro And Money Taken Early Wednesday

STATE-FEDERAL POLICE ON CASE

Armed with a revolver and a blackjack, a masked Negro slugged Postmaster Bradford Jones unconscious and made off with $400 or $500 from the postoffice at Bridgeville early Wednesday morning.

The postmaster was the only one in the office at 6 o'clock standard time, when he heard a rap on the door leading from the lobby into the work room.

Thinking it was a patron seeking a parcel post package, Postmaster Jones opened the door.

He was confronted by a tall Negro dressed in overalls. Over the bandit's face was a dirty blue handkerchief. In his right hand he held a revolver. He kept his left hand behind his back.

The Negro mumbled: "Get back into the room or I'll shoot."

The postmaster walked back slowly, his hands raised over his head. The Negro closed the door.

Before the postmaster could protect himself, the Negro hit him over the head with a black jack several times.

Mr. Jones slumped to the floor. The Negro scooped up a pile of bills on a counter and fled. He did not wait for a quantity of silver in a cash tray nearby.

When the postmaster regained consciousness, he immediately telephoned the state police. Postal Inspector William B. Francisco in Wilmington was also notified.

Within a short time after the alarm was spread, federal and state authorities of Delaware and Maryland were on a manhunt.

Mrs. R. A. Culver, a postoffice clerk, said she saw a tall Negro hurrying past her, going toward the state highway as she was walking to the postoffice.

This was a short time after the robbery happened.

The Bridgeville postoffice, a one story brick building, is on the main street, adjoining the fire house. Postmaster Jones usually goes to the office at shortly before 6 o'clock to accommodate early patrons.

He said he noticed the Negro loitering near the building but he paid no particular attention to him.

The postmaster opened the front door of the building leading to the lobby where the lock boxes are located.

Then he went into the work room. He gathered some waste paper, in a basket and put it outside the back door. He returned and proceeded to open the postoffice safe.

He took out the money—bills and change—and had no sooner placed them on a counter than he heard the rap on the lobby work door.

Officials believe the Negro is a stranger in the Bridgeville district. In the past few weeks, a number of Negroes have been temporarily employed. They have been leaving since last week.

Food Falls Like Manna from Heaven

U. S. Troops Depend on Air Delivery for Daily Rations in Maneuvers

Early in April Uncle Sam sent a platoon of 32 men into the desert near Valentine, Texas, without food. But these men probably fared better than the average soldier on the march, for Uncle Sam was solicitous about sending daily provisions by airplane, delivered via parachute to the hungry men below. Fresh meat, rushed from the cooler, dropped from the skies in a test application of what will probably become common practice in military work.

Large packages of meat, bread and other rations were dropped to the "lost platoon" four successive days during the maneuvers. Huge army planes were employed as "delivery wagons." Their aim was usually good and none of the soldiers went hungry because of spilled milk or prematurely scrambled eggs.

Fresh meat for supper! A hungry soldier unpacks cool frankfurters from the parachute package.

TONIGHT'S BEDTIME STORY

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

If you should meet with Mr. Toad
You scarce would give him half the road.
I wonder if you'd be more fair
If you should meet with Buster Bear?

PROBABLY you would. Indeed, I suspect that you would give him all the road. And the funny part is that it is quite likely that Buster would be quite as polite and would give you all the road. The fact is that, big as he is and strong as he is and fierce as he looks, Buster Bear is very shy and bashful. Little as Old Mr. Toad is he would hardly more than hop out of the way of your feet, while big as Mr. Bear is he wouldn't even let you see him if he saw you first.

That is one difference between Old Mr. Toad and Buster Bear, and, of course, as you know, there are a great many other differences. But in one thing they are very much alike. Yes, sir, Old Mr. Toad and Buster Bear are very much alike in one thing. Can you guess what it is? Well, it is in their fondness for ants. Old Mr. Toad is just as fond of ants as Jimmy Skunk is of fat beetles. So is Buster Bear, and that is how it happened that Buster

He was watching a little ant hill and snapping up every ant that came along.

Bear came to invite Old Mr. Toad to dine with him.

Buster had that lonesome feeling again and was wishing he had some one to talk to him when just ahead of him he saw Old Mr. Toad watching something very intently. Every once in a while he would lean forward, run his long tongue out like a flash, and then smack his lips as if something tasted oh, so good!

He was so busy with what he was doing that he didn't see Buster Bear and he didn't hear him. You know Buster, big as he is, can walk without making the teeniest, weeniest sound. Buster tip-toed a little bit nearer until he could see just what Old Mr. Toad was doing. He was watching a little ant hill and snapping up every ant that came along. Buster nodded his head approvingly.

"I'm glad to see that you have such good taste, Mr. Toad," said he in his deep, grumbly-rumbly voice. Old Mr. Toad gave a frightened little scream and fell right over on his back, kicking his legs feebly in the most foolish way. He looked so funny that Buster Bear just had to laugh. He couldn't help it. And because his laugh was grumbly-rumbly like his voice Old Mr. Toad was more frightened than ever.

"Seeing you eat makes me hungry, too," continued Buster. This sent cold shivers all over Mr. Toad, for he was sure that Buster meant to eat him.

"How would you like to dine with me today?" went on Buster, pretending not to notice how frightened Mr. Toad was. "It must be very slow work catching ants one at a time. What do you say to taking dinner with me?"

Old Mr. Toad struggled to find his voice, for he felt that he must be polite.

"I—I don't feel hungry any more," said he faintly. "I—I think if you will excuse me, Mr. Bear, I'll be moving along."

"Than I will go along with you," said Buster, who was just aching to have some one to talk to.

Poor old Mr. Toad! This was too much for him. He didn't have strength enough to turn over and get on his feet again. He was sure now that Buster Bear meant to eat him when he got ready. Perhaps Buster would be better pleased if that invitation to dinner was accepted. It was of no use to even try to run away, and as for trying to hide under anything—why there was nothing to hide under that Buster Bear could not pull over and catch him.

"I—I've changed my mind; I'll be very pleased to dine with you, Mr. Bear," said Old Mr. Toad in a voice he meant to sound very brave, but which was so faint that Buster Bear cocked his head on one side in order to hear better.

Quaker Squirrels Like 'Em Roasted

New Castle, Pa.—Some of this city's squirrels have lost almost all of their fur and resemble Mexican hairless dogs—because they like their peanuts roasted.

This roasted peanut diet is the cause of the rash which is making the squirrels lose their natural clothing, City Forester Owen P. Fox declared.

He appealed to persons who have been feeding the squirrels to cease feeding roasted peanuts and instead to give the animals raw "goobers." The squirrel-feeding problem is a bit complicated by the fact that the animals have become accustomed to the roasted peanuts and prefer them, he admitted.

Especially the squirrels in Gaston park, a municipal recreation center, have been going "bald all over," he said.

Coolie Influence

Down a country roadway there's no outfit so gay as this. The hat is a colorful yellow panache straw affair with under-the-chin tie of black satin ribbon. The coolie influence is also carried out in a brilliantly flowered cotton jacket, savoring strongly of the Orient. The tailored slacks are of white sharkskin. Posed by Gale Sondergaard.

Holing Through Vehicular Tunnel

New York.—While traffic poured through the south tube of the new Lincoln tunnel between New York and Jersey City, engineers "holed through" on the north tube, just a few feet away. It was formerly believed that a tunnel could not be bored under such circumstances, without disturbance to the existing or companion tube.

TWO-MINUTE BIOGRAPHIES

JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER, JR.
The son of America's pioneer oil millionaire has been taught saving methods since childhood, when he earned five cents an hour for practicing on the violin and one cent apiece for hunting fenceposts that needed mending. Long ago he became leader of the Rockefeller family, John D., Sr., having dropped from the picture except to hand out an occasional shiny new dime.

Rockefeller, Jr., was born in 1874 and entered the business world immediately after his graduation from Brown university in 1897. It was his arrival in the picture that changed the Rockefeller family from a cold, unsympathetic business firm to the humanized organization which emerged under the guidance of Ivy Lee, a famous press agent.

Strikes, and harsh treatment thereof, had given the Rockefellers a bad name when Ivy Lee came along and found a sympathetic listener in John D., Jr. But it was more than a desire for public appreciation that made the younger Rockefeller start foundation after foundation for public service.

John D., Jr., is not active in oil interests; in fact he has made an effort to divest himself of all directorates which carry with them money-making responsibilities.

WHAT to EAT and WHY

C. Houston Goudiss Describes the Place of Fats in the Diet

Nationally Known Food Authority Compares the Different Cooking Fats and Shortenings

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

6 East 39th St., New York City.

THERE are, perhaps, more false notions concerning fats than any other class of foods.

Some homemakers, considering them as "fattening" only, try to eliminate them entirely from the diet. Others have the impression that foods containing fat are difficult to digest, and for this reason deprive their families of many delicious and healthful foods. Both points of view arise from ignorance of dietary facts.

Fats Are Necessary to Health

Fats have a number of important functions to perform. They are a concentrated fuel food, having more than twice the energy value of an equal weight of protein or carbohydrate.

One-half ounce of fat, that is one tablespoon, yields 100 calories, and were he able to eat it, a man could obtain an entire day's fuel from three-fourths of a pound of fat. It is interesting to note that it would require nearly eight pounds of cooked rice to give the same number of calories.

In Oriental countries, where large populations live in great poverty, fat is usually scarce and it is necessary to consume huge quantities of food in order to meet the daily fuel requirements. As a result, most of the people develop distended abdomens.

Children Must Have Fat

Because fat is such a compact food, nutritionists agree that for growing boys and girls, and men engaged in strenuous physical exercise, fat is almost essential, if they are to get enough total calories.

There is also experimental evidence that at least a small amount of one or more of the unsaturated fatty acids must be supplied by the food if normal nutrition is to be maintained. And two competent investigators found, experimentally, that the presence of fat in the diet tends to conserve vitamin B in the body.

Some fats, especially those from animal sources, are rich in vitamins A and D, and fats made from vegetable oils may contain vitamin E.

Fat and Hunger

Perhaps the greatest service performed by fat is its ability to give "staying power" to the diet—to satisfy hunger. In this respect, it directly affects the disposition and may influence the ability to enjoy life.

The shortage of fats in European countries during the World war was graphically demonstrated how a deficiency of this class of foods can destroy the morale of entire nations.

With supplies cut off or very greatly curtailed, the warring countries found it necessary to ration fats closely. As a result, their people were always hungry and dissatisfied, even when their actual needs were satisfied. In this connection, it is interesting to note that a slice of bread and butter or margarine will delay the onset of hunger longer than a slice of bread and jam, even though the number of calories may be the same.

Different Fats Compared

As sources of energy, the different food fats are very similar. Thus, the homemaker's choice may be determined by preference, convenience, economy, and the use to which the product is to be put.

The various forms of edible fats and oils are derived from both animal and vegetable sources. They include butter, margarine, lard, compounds, which are a mixture of animal fats and vegetable oils, hydrogenated fats, and the liquid vegetable oils.

Butter and margarine are used chiefly as a spread, and it is interesting to note that the annual per capita consumption of margarine is steadily increasing, as homemakers have discovered that the use of this less expensive product releases more money for milk, fruits and vegetables. Margarine is interchangeable with butter for dressing vegetables and in doughs containing spices, fruits and chocolate. Its shortening power and keeping qualities are similar to those of butter.

Lards, compounds and other shortening fats are useful not only as a means of increasing palatability and food value, but to add flakiness to baked foods and to produce a crisp coating which seals in the minerals and vitamins of fried foods.

Lard is used chiefly as a shortening for pastry, and a good grade will be found to be white and free from objectionable odors. The highest grade, called leaf lard, is produced from the leaves of fat in the sides of the hog.

When made by a reputable manufacturer, the compounds prepared especially for cake making, for shortening pastry and for deep-frying, are wholesome, highly nutritious and give most satisfactory results. They are a most economical form of shortening.

Digestibility of Fats

Because of their ability to retard digestion somewhat and thus give satiate value to a meal, the impression has grown up that fats are "difficult" to digest. This results from confusing the length of time required for digestion and the completeness with which a food is digested.

When "digestibility" is regarded in the popular sense of the ease, comfort and speed with which the digestive organs carry on their work, it is conceded that fats in general retard the secretion of the gastric juice and thus cause food to remain longer in the stomach.

On the other hand, most fats have such a high coefficient of digestibility, that under normal conditions only about one-twentieth of the fat eaten escapes digestion. Experiments indicate, for example, that the coefficient of digestibility of oleomargarine is 97.55 per cent. It is sometimes erroneously stated that pastry is indigestible. This statement is without foundation, provided the pastry is made from a high grade shortening and is properly baked. Similarly, fried foods come in for a great deal of criticism that should not be charged to the use of fat, but to incorrect methods of cooking. If food is properly cooked in fat that has a high smoking point, there will be no opportunity for decomposition products to develop.

How Much Fat?

Nutritionists have ample evidence that health is best served when 30 to 35 per cent of the total energy value foods is provided in the form of fat. This will include the fat of meat and the fat used in cooking the many delicious fried and baked foods which make eating a pleasure.

Questions Answered

Mrs. M. L., Jr.—Dandelion greens make an excellent food. They contain more phosphorus than any other common leafy vegetable, and supply vitamins A, B, C and G.

Miss C. B. R.—It is difficult to compare the iron content of meats because of variations in the amount of fat. It has been established, however, that organ meats, as liver and kidneys, contain more iron than muscle meats, and that pork and lamb contain much less iron than beef.

Mrs. N. H. R.—As to whether a tendency to overweight is inherited, the body build is inherited. That is, some individuals tend to be short and stocky; others are tall and slender. However, there is no reason why the stocky individual should allow himself to become obese. Frequently, a condition that is blamed on inheritance can be traced to faulty habits of diet, exercise and sleep, passed from one generation to another.

UNEMPLOYED OF OTHER STATES MAY NOW FILE CLAIMS HERE

Although unemployment compensation benefits based on employment in Delaware are not payable until January, 1939, Delaware residents who lose their jobs while located in other states where benefits are now being paid may file claims for such benefits with the Delaware State Employment Service.

However, workers who habitually commuted to and from their place of employment or who live within ten miles of the state in which their claim benefits are not included in this plan.

Dr. Charles M. Wharton, executive director of the State Unemployment Compensation Commission, of which the employment service is a division, said that this procedure was developed as a result of an agreement between states participating in the Interstate Benefit Payment Plan.

The following states are now paying benefits:

Alabama, Arizona, California, Connecticut, District of Columbia, Indiana, Iowa, Louisiana, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Mississippi, New Hampshire, New York, North Carolina, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, Utah, Vermont, Virginia, West Virginia, Wisconsin.

The Delaware Employment Service will serve as registration and claims agents for totally unemployed workers who have rights to benefits in States cooperating under this plan and will forward such workers' claims to the "liable" state for approval, Dr. Wharton explained.

He points out that the unemployed worker will be subject to the same requirements that would apply if he were actually in the state from which he claimed benefits. In making a claim from an unemployed worker, the Delaware agency will not make decisions regarding the worker's rights under the law of the "liable" state.

The employment service will obtain the necessary information from the worker and forward it to the "liable" state in order that the latter may make its own determinations as to eligibility and amount and duration of benefits in accordance with its own law.

$2,592,500 FOR STATE HIGHWAY BUDGET

The State Highway Commission in Dover recently adopted a budget for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1938, that provides for estimated revenues of $3,292,800, estimated expenses of $2,260,500. The excess revenues of $932,291 will be available to match federal funds for the construction of new roads.

The commission was advised that it would not be penalized for the loan of $500,000 to the general fund during the present fiscal year by the Federal Bureau of Roads, at present as action had been deferred on the matter until after the next meeting of the Delaware Legislature.

This does not include, however, the $400,000 expended by the State Highway Department for the construction of Fort Christiana Park and for the sea wall at Rehoboth.

The breakdown of the total estimated revenues shows Motor Vehicle registration fees and operators licenses $1,104,000; title fees, $42,000; fuel tax, $2,058,000; motor fuel licenses, $2,800; fines from state police, $79,000 and public utility rentals, $7,000.

The breakdown of the total estimated expenses shows: Interest on State Highway Refunding Bonds, $63,125; maturity on State Highway Department bonds, $100,000; interest on county highway bonds, New Castle County, $90,717.50; Kent County, $60,050, and Sussex County, $78,187.50. Maturities on county highway bonds, New Castle County, $90,000; Kent County, $105,000, and Sussex County, $75,000; maintenance of roads, state highways, 839.1 miles, $293,685; dirt

He stressed the fact that the United States is the lone bulwark against so many ever-changing "isms." He spoke briefly of the Lee Bill, which, in the event of war, would conscript wealth as well as manpower. This thoughtful address impressed the Rotarians with the fact that members of legislative bodies should be well informed, not only with a keen sense of value of conditions as they are, but with a knowledge of history, the yard-stick of the past—and present.

America's Greatest Food Authority Now Writes for This Paper

C. Houston Goudiss

We announce with pride a new feature in this issue, "What You Eat and Why" by C. Houston Goudiss, noted food authority, radio speaker, author and lecturer, famous as the man who knows food "from soil to serving, from table to tissue."

One of these articles will appear each week, and we know housewives and mothers will look forward to them for the accurate, worthwhile information they contain on foods and their relation to health. This is not a recipe column. Mr. Goudiss has designed it to serve as a link between laboratory and layman in the food field, interpreting modern scientific knowledge in the language of the home maker, giving her the elemental facts regarding new discoveries and the part played by food in building and maintaining health.

Every woman wants to know what foods will benefit her family and why, and that is just the information that Mr. Goudiss will give. Watch for the articles each week make a scrap book of them for ready reference. They contain valuable information every home maker has been wanting.

WE were pretty sure we had a great car when some months ago we checked the final blueprints on the 1938 Buick.

It had the new and mighty DYNAFLEX engine for sparkling action—the sensationally desirable TORQUE-FREE SPRINGING for a lullaby of a ride.

Looking ahead in that promising day, we figured we had every chance of getting our sales share by reason of what this car gave the buyer for his money.

Now, when times are sterner, it appears we built better than we knew—we've got a car folks just won't do without!

This great new Buick was first introduced to the public last fall. Through September, October, November, it sold in steadily increasing volume.

In a period when sales of other cars were sliding off it went ahead, in one month actually outselling one of the Big Three of the lowest-priced field.

It's still going ahead—not car Number Seven or Eight, as one might expect by its price-class, but one of the season's Four Best Sellers!

There is only one explanation of such a record when made by a car in the thousand-dollar bracket.

Such a car is so good—has so much of value in it—people just won't do without it!

They buy it not only in preference to other cars—they buy in preference to waiting for easier times and readier money-to-spend!

That's the convincing sort of car you're about to drive when you first take the wheel of a 1938 Buick.

If you haven't yet handled a new Buick, you ought to—just to see what such a car is like!

"Better buy Buick!"

Crown Prince Gustaf Adolf Coming to Unveil Monument at Wilmington, Del., Where His Fellow-Countrymen Landed 300 Years Ago and to Dedicate Historical Museum in Philadelphia Which They Settled 39 Years Before the Arrival of William Penn.

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

ON AN early spring day in the year 1638 a group of Indians watched the approach of two ships to a point on the Delaware river where the city of Wilmington, Del., now stands. The vessels, which bore on their hulls the legends "Kalmar Nyckel" and "Fogel Grip," had come from Sweden. They had been battered and storm-tossed but they were still sturdy and seaworthy.

Their crews and passengers lined the decks, looking at the land which was to be their future home with a gaze no less filled with curiosity than those of the Indians on the bank. In the eyes of one of them, Peter Minuit, leader of the expedition, especially was shown the relief and gratitude that the long, hard voyage was at last over.

Three hundred years later, in June of the present year, a monument is to be dedicated on the exact site at Wilmington where Minuit and his Swedish colonists landed. On June 27 a Swedish delegation, headed by Crown Prince Gustaf Adolf of Sweden and Crown Princess Louise, will be escorted down the Delaware river to Fort Christina state park, Minuit's landing site and setting for the monument honoring him and his fellow voyagers.

There they will be greeted by President Roosevelt and officials of the state of Delaware. The crown prince will present the monument, carved out of native black granite by the noted Swedish sculptor Carl Milles, to the United States on behalf of Sweden. President Roosevelt will trade and colonization across the seas had been strong in the mind of the great King Gustavus Adolphus and plans had been made for foundation of a colony during his lifetime.

After Gustavus' death, the idea was taken up by other agencies and on the initiative of Axel Oxenstierna the venture was actually begun. A company was formed with Swedish and Dutch stockholders to fit out an expedition of which Peter Minuit, on the basis of his considerable experience in the New World, should be the leader. Lengthy and careful preparations preceded the beginning of the voyage, but eventually the first Swedish emigrants to America saw Fort Gothenburg and the shores of Sweden disappear.

Buffeted by Storm.

The two small vessels, not much bigger than a present-day coast guard cutter, plunged into the huge waves of the North sea and the epic adventure was begun. The first hardship of the journey was encountered almost immediately after the ships had embarked. A violent storm forced the vessels to shelter at the Dutch port of Texel. In a crippled condition, forced to delay for repairs, they had barely escaped being completely wrecked in the storm.

They set out from Texel on the last day of the year, December 31, 1637. History has no record of the voyage from then till the March day they sailed up the Delaware and greeted the Indians at "The Rocks," as the site is still called in present-day Wilmington.

On the day of their arrival, March 29—in the new calendar the date is April 8—five Indian chiefs came into the cabin of the Kalmar Nyckel and sold land to the Swedish government, represented by Peter Minuit, along the western banks of the Delaware river from its mouth as far as the Schuylkill.

This was the first Swedish purchase from the Indians. The colonists drew up deeds and the Indian chiefs signed them with their totem marks. Though the deeds were later lost, testimony to the transaction was given nine months later in the Dutch city of Amsterdam in the sworn affidavit of four sailors from the Kalmar Nyckel.

This affidavit has been preserved and is one of the many valuable historical documents sent by the Swedish government to be exhibited in the American Swedish Historical museum in honor of the three-hundredth anniversary celebration.

After purchasing the land, the colonists built a fort on the banks of the river, calling it Fort Christina. A small garrison was left in the fort under the command of one Mans Kling, and plots of ground were laid out near the stronghold, where vegetables and grain were planted.

After firmly establishing a Swedish foothold on the Delaware river, Peter Minuit left the colony and started for Sweden in the Kalmar Nyckel. At the island of St. Christopher he was invited as a guest on a Dutch ship, the Flying Deer. A storm arose, driving most of the ships in the harbor to sea. The Flying Deer was apparently lost with all aboard, and Peter Minuit, leader of the first expedition to New Sweden, was never heard of again.

In February, 1643, Johan Printz, delegated by the Swedish crown as governor of New Sweden, arrived at Fort Christina to take up his duties. Printz brought with him 28 paragraphs of instructions from the crown concerning the conduct of the colony. This document has been called the "First Constitution" or "Supreme Law" in the territory which later became the states of Delaware and Pennsylvania.

Lasted 17 Years.

The colony of New Sweden lasted for 17 years. Though the sovereignty of the Swedish crown ended in 1655, the Swedish settlers proved themselves adaptable to conditions of life during the Dutch colonial ascendancy, and later through that of the English. They were pioneers of industry, among the first to realize and exploit the natural wealth of the Delaware river valley. They built the first flour and saw mills in the valley and the first ships.

The city of Philadelphia, so identified with the Revolution as the scene of the history-making Declaration of Independence, was actually founded by Swedes one year before William Penn, who is credited with founding it, was born. The city was then called Wicaco. Penn purchased the site of Philadelphia from three Swedish brothers named Swenson. One of the oldest streets in the city is called Swanson, considered by historians to be a reminder of the racial origin of the metropolis.

After the close of the Revolution the Swedish minister at Paris visited the American minister, Benjamin Franklin, and offered to negotiate a treaty of commerce and amity. This action made Sweden the first European neutral power to tender its friendship to the young republic, voluntarily and without solicitation.

The purpose of the Swedish-American three-hundredth anniversary celebration is to keep the memory of all these great names and events alive in the popular imagination. Milles' monument achieves in its design a synopsis of the whole scope of Swedish-American history.

The top figure of the monument represents the Kalmar Nyckel, renowned as "the Swedish Mayflower," riding a granite wave. On the sides of the shaft the sculptor has carved the high light scenes of Swedish participation in the history of the New World.

Some of the scenes are carved in an informal way, where the subject warrants such treatment. For it is Milles' theory that historical monuments need not always be solemn in every detail, since life itself, even in times of crisis, sometimes takes playful turns.

One such scene shows friendly Indians returning to the Swedish colonists a shamfaced and scrawny horse which has apparently strayed off into the woods, while a typical Swedish dog barks angrily at the culprit.

Penn's Purchase.

Another scene shows William Penn with his heavy Quaker hat buying land from the Swedish brothers Swenson for the site of Philadelphia. In their turn the Swedes had bought the land on both sides of the Delaware river from the Indians and on both sides of the monument the original purchasing scene is represented.

Swedish-American history is being commemorated in other ways also. The Swedish general post office has issued a series of tercentenary stamps in five values. These have a uniform inscription—"Nya Sverige Minnet," meaning "In memory of New Sweden."

Persons and places important in the history of the colony are pictured on the stamps. One shows Gov. Johan Printz conferring with an Indian chief. Another shows Queen Christina of Sweden, daughter of Gustavus Adolphus, under whose reign the colony of New Sweden was founded.

One stamp pictures the famous Trinity church in Wilmington, Del., the oldest church still in use in the United States. This church was built in 1639, and is one of five so-called "Old Swedes" churches in the Delaware valley.

The Swedish-American three-hundredth anniversary celebration is receiving the full co-operation of the city of Philadelphia.

King Gustavus Adolphus (in the center shaking hands with Wollmar Bostrom, Swedish minister to the United States) inspecting the monument which will be erected at the site of the landing of the first Swedish colonists in America.

Besides sending the official delegation for the presentation of the monument, the crown has sent to the American Swedish Historical museum an historical exhibit containing priceless documents, relics and curios.

A Priceless Document.

Among other important papers, the exhibit contains the original Constitution of Sweden, drafted in 1634 by Gustavus Adolphus and his minister, Axel Oxenstierna. This document has never before left the Swedish state archives and is the most valuable document ever to be sent out of the country.

ANDREA LEEDS has been stepping right along since she did so well in a minor role in "Stage Door." She went on to do well in "Goldwyn Follies," is working now in "Letter of Introduction," and will play opposite Joel McCrea in a picture called, so far, "Youth Takes a Fling."

Which all goes to show that she was right when she refused to go on as just one more contract player. She felt that she wasn't getting anywhere, you'll remember, and got out of her contract, and all Hollywood said she was crazy, as she had just one performance to her credit at that time.

And then—"Stage Door" and all the opportunity in the world!

The "Lone Ranger" craze is growing every day. The actor who plays the "Ranger" in the screen serial may go on a personal appearance tour. National Broadcasting company has arranged for transmission rights of the radio program for the South, Canada and Australia—at present it's heard on a 42-station tie-up three times a week. There's talk of a circus stunt and a cartoon strip for the newspapers. And the country will be flooded with books, cowboy suits, chewing gum, sweaters, and all the other merchandise that can be used in profitable tie-ups.

Charlie Chaplin's latest discovery, Dorothy Cummingore, has been given a contract by Warner Brothers, and you'll see her first in "Three Girls on Broadway."

The picture business being a bit slow at the moment, picture stars are doing quite a lot of vacationing. Miriam Hopkins and her husband, Anatole Litvak, the director, are at her charming little house in New York. Fredric March expected to have to cut his New York vacation short, and then got word that he might stay on indefinitely. Madeleine Carroll and Wendy Barrie are among the toasts of New York.

Bing Crosby can continue with his present radio sponsors for ten years if he wants to. It's said the advertising agency connected would like him to sign an agreement for that length of time, with the usual year to year options. His present contract still has eight months to run. Of all the Hollywood folks who have gone on the air, Bing has been the most successful and shows no sign of diminishing popularity.

Bing Crosby

Benny Goodman recently gave his second concert in Boston, before a packed house; as in Carnegie Hall, in New York, the first thing anybody knew the younger set in the crowd was out in the aisles beginning to "shag." An usher hurried forward to stop them, whereupon a conservative looking, middle-aged gentleman stopped the usher. Seems he'd decided to learn the "shag" and thought that was as good a place as any to begin.

ODDS AND ENDS... Paul Muni seems to be all set to do "The Life of William Tell" ... When Frank Lloyd directs "If I Were King" with Ronald Colman, Frank's daughter, Alma, will play "Collette" ... Joe Penner's new picture, "Go Chase Yourself," is his best one yet ... Walt Disney divided $50,000 among the people who helped him to make "Snow White" ... Max Baer is coaching Robert Taylor for "Knock Out" ... The objection to Shirley Temple's making personal appearances has been that she was too young to appear behind the footlights ... But Mary Pickford began when she was five, and it didn't seem to hurt her any ... In "Four Men and a Prayer" you'll see Richard Greene, recently arrived from England, who, it is said, will be groomed for stardom ... Now it's announced that Maude Adams' movie tests were so successful that she will not appear in "The Young in Heart," but in a production giving more scope to her talents.

Marrriages in Scotland

Until a few years ago Scotland was liberal regarding marriage. There were no bans or licenses, nor was parental consent necessary for minors. Marriage could be constituted by consent. To avoid the English statutes it was common practice to go to Scotland.

Getting One's Second Wind

The meaning of getting one's second wind is that the body has become adjusted to the demand made on it for more oxygen.

SANITATION WILL HELP SAVE CHICKS

Clean Brooder House Helps Prevent Infection.

By T. F. Brown, Extension Poultry Specialist, North Carolina State College, WNU Service.

Poultry can be one of the most dependable enterprises on the farm, but the birds must be protected from disease. As more birds are raised, and brought into closer contact with one another, the danger of infection increases.

Moving the brooder house to a new location, where it will be on clean ground, will help cut down the chance of infection. Before it is moved, it should be scrubbed thoroughly with a solution of one pound of lye to 15 or 20 gallons of water. If the brooder house cannot be moved, several inches of the top soil around the house should be taken up and replaced with clean soil from an area where no chickens have ranged during the past year or two.

Keep the brooder house clean, and don't feed anything that will attract flies, such as liquid milk. Flies spread tapeworms.

When the chicks are 10 to 12 weeks old, or as soon as they become well feathered, move them to summer range shelters where they can range on clean land.

It is a good idea to place the range shelter on the lower part of sloping land so that it can be moved up the slope occasionally during the summer season. If the shelter cannot be moved, clean it out at frequent intervals.

The brooder house runs or yards should be sown to a grazing crop such as Italian ryegrass, wheat, oats, barley, rye, clover, alfalfa, or lespedeza. These crops purify the soil and produce grazing.

Fences on the Contour

Get Rid of Point Rows

Contour farming in a square-fenced field usually makes a number of short rows or point rows in the corners. Many farmers in demonstration areas are getting rid of the point rows, which are a nuisance to cultivate, by rebuilding fences to parallel the curvature of the contour, says Charles R. Enlow, chief agronomist of the soil conservation service.

One farmer, who had a permanent pasture adjoining a cultivated field, added the point rows to the pasture and added some of the pasture to the upper swing of the contour to the cultivated portion of the farm. In the end he had about the same acreage of pasture and cultivated land as before. He protected the grass by not moving the fence until the grass was firmly established.

East Front Laying House

An east front laying house is preferred to the common south front structure, by the Ohio experiment station, after seven years of experience. During ten months of the year, direct sunlight can enter the east front and penetrate to practically the entire interior. On the other hand, direct sunlight can enter the south front only during the winter months, when it is less potent and the weather is such that the windows are closed most of the time.

Along the Windrows

Thin-shelled eggs indicate a lack of minerals or of vitamin D in the hen's ration.

Wheat raised in Argentina in the 1937-38 season weighed nearly 6,000,000 tons.

It takes 34,000 acres to produce the corn required by the Oregon poultry industry.

Using a magnet from an old tractor a farmer can remove metal objects from feed.

Since the composition of eggs is two-thirds water, a gallon of water is required to form 100 eggs.

Sleeping sickness among horses was first recorded in Germany in 1880 and appeared in United States about 1890.

Some poultrymen, with a special market, have found capons profitable. The work should be done when the birds weigh about two pounds.

Forty-five pounds of corn are required to produce a case of eggs.

Where alfalfa or clover can be grown satisfactorily and economically, dairymen should grow these legumes or legume mixtures instead of grass hay.

To make sure of supplying enough vitamin A for good growth in chicks, poultrymen should include 5 per cent alfalfa meal or alfalfa leaf meal in the ration, especially if the ration contains no cod-liver oil.

Guinea hen eggs hatch as well as turkey eggs under the exact conditions, but generally a day quicker.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON

NEW YORK—Mrs. Joseph P. Kennedy has been an effective social and political ally of both her father, former mayor of Boston, and her husband, the ambassador to the court of St. James. But the news that, in accordance with her husband's decision, she presented only seven American women at court is one of her rare appearances in the headlines.

The 11 engaging Kennedys have been viewed more or less en bloc in the news and Mrs. Kennedy has never been in a very sharp lens focus.

She was one of the prettiest of Boston debutantes, 30 years ago, a rollicking girl with black hair and eyes of Irish blue. Back home from her convent training, she taught her father "Sweet Adeline."

He was John F. (Honey Fitz) Fitzgerald, and in his campaigns he sang his way to memorable political fame—riding like a surferboard the long, lingering "swipes" of the song taught him by his daughter—"the flower of his heart."

Joseph P. Kennedy, her childhood playmate, was twenty-five years old when they were married in 1914. He borrowed $2,000 for a down payment on a $6,500 house. Their fortunes grew as their family, with Mr. Kennedy president of a bank, in a year or two after their marriage.

Mrs. Kennedy once told a Boston drygoods clerk that she bought 200 suits and dresses a year. It takes a heap of shopping to make a home, like the Kennedys', and she became known among her friends as a paragon of household efficiency comparable to the one in Solomon's oft-handled apostrophe to such skills and virtues.

Now she is mistress of the "castle" which was once J. Pierpont Morgan's home; also of a beautiful mansion in Bronxville, N. Y., a huge summer estate at Hyannisport, Cape Cod, and a villa at Palm Beach, built by one of the Wanamakers.

She is slender and girlish, comely and vivacious, weighs 115 pounds and takes size 14 in dresses. Vionnet makes her gowns and she is envied by other women for her magnificent jewels—notable among them being a ruby and diamond bracelet which, it is said, is matched only by the one the Aga Khan gave his princess. But she never lets the children run to unseemly display, holding them to restraint in regime and dress. Even without all these adventitious fixings, say her friends, she would be an admirable ambassador's wife, with her own quite adequate equipment of tact, charm and intelligence.

MAN and boy, this journeyman has helped process a lot of explorers' and adventurers' copy through the news mill. If it was ghost-written, it had only sick and synthetic excitement, like Ersatz pastry, and if it wasn't it was usually dull. Happily in contrast are the doubtlessly authentic and personally written yarns of W. H. Tilman, leader of the British Mount Everest expedition, now getting under way.

These stories from the Tibetan base camp have a professional ease and fluency, along with a ring of integrity which gives assurance that Mr. Tilman is really writing them. There is no ghost on the job here.

Mr. Tilman is thirty-nine years old, a keen-faced, hard-muscled Britisher of medium stature, who has been exploring ever since he left college.

He has climbed mountains in the Alps and in Africa, including Mount Kenya, Kilimanjaro and Ruwenzori. This is his fifth expedition to the Himalayas. The entrants in this high altitude event are not youngsters. N. E. Odell is forty-seven, F. S. Smythe is thirty-seven and the others are all over thirty.

Bull Terrier, White Dog

When bull baiting was abolished by law in England, sporting men developed the bull terrier for dog fighting and badger baiting. About 1875, dalmatian and pointer blood were introduced in the strain, making them look less like bulldogs. The bull terrier is always white, has a long tapering head, wide, deep chest, stiff, glossy hair and tapering tail. He is gentle and good natured, but fears nothing and is a good watch dog.

WILLIAM MACLEOD RAINE'S To Ride the River With

COPYRIGHT WILLIAM MACLEOD RAINE—WNU SERVICE

SYNOPSIS

Ruth Chiswick of L. C. ranch, obsessed by fear of danger to her outspoken father, Lee, Sheron Howard, decides to save him by eloping with young Lou Howard, Sheron's son...

CHAPTER IV—Continued

He pulled on his boots and swiftly examined his revolver. That the weapon rested lightly in its holster so that there would be no hindrance to a quick draw he made sure...

CHAPTER V

Their host maneuvered Norris to a rocking chair, Howard to a straight-backed one. Curley he seated at the foot of the bed. Gray stood in a shadowy corner farthest from the window...

rickon that's not information to yore friends." "Meaning me?" asked Norris, his eyes slitted. "Meaning only that this has been talked over among you. Someone took a crack at Chiswick. Whoever it was, I could just see his figure in the alley, and I ripped loose at him."

Howard looked affronted. "If a man throws in with us, we don't betray him." "Is that a promise?" Gray asked, looking to the others for confirmation.

"No objections to you staying here, Mr. Gray."

nose, light red hair, gray eyes, scar on back of left hand. Will probably fight desperately before being taken.

Curly lifted his eyes and grinned at Gray. "Certainly reads like it might be you, unless you've got a twin brother the spittin' image of you, even to the scar on yore hand."

"I'm not drawing a pay-check to be his bodyguard," Gray drawled. "It's straight goods what he says, Sheron?" Curly demanded. "I reckon so, Curly. One of the boys got impatient and cut loose at Chiswick."

"Who?" "I don't know who. I'm telling you only what I've heard." "All right," Norris said. "This busted leg of his. Do we have to take it on faith?"

"How do you know?" Lee Chiswick demanded. "Ran across the tracks of a bunch being driven up Box canyon, the Mexican said."

"Sure they were driven—that they weren't strays?" asked Dan Brand. Tony explained that five or six shod horses had followed the cattle. "Too late to catch the thieves or pick up the stolen stock," Brand mourned.

Ruth gathered all the food she had cooked, had Nelly grind two packages of coffee, chose a side of bacon, added flour and corn meal, as well as salt, pepper, and sugar.

Her brother roped a pack-horse and put on a cross-buck. With a lash rope he threw a diamond hitch expertly over the supplies.

"Bring your slickers," the boss snapped. "No war-sacks. We're traveling light. You won't be sitting on your spurs any this trip. Got to hot-foot it over a cold trail."

At the entrance to Box canyon Lee found Sorley, Conrad, and his son Bob waiting for them. Sorley was sniffing over the ground like a dog looking for a scent.

Lee Chiswick studied the foot-mark. "Here it is again. Begorry, I'd swear to that on a stack of Bibles. Gray's roan made it."

AN EXPERT

The young man with the high-powered sports car had come to take her out for the day. Her mother, a thoughtful woman, was making a few preliminary inquiries.

"I'm not drawing a pay-check to be his bodyguard," Gray drawled. "It's straight goods what he says, Sheron?" Curly demanded.

A SQUARE MEAL

Mrs. Wood Borer—I wonder if I can get something to eat in there? Mr. Wood Borer—Sure, don't you see that sign, "Tables reserved for ladies?"

The teacher was explaining the difference between the stately rose and the modest violet. "You see, children," she said, "a beautiful, well-dressed woman walks along the street, but she is proud and does not greet anybody—that is the rose."

He was just back from a trip to Africa as cabin boy on a liner and his girl friend met him at the dock. "Honey," he whispered, after a bit, "I'm sorry—I had the cutest little ape to bring to you but the captain wouldn't allow it."

"What's the matter with that old hen that makes her act so funny?" "She's been shell shocked," he said. "Why, I never heard of a hen being shell shocked."

Visitor—I suppose you've been in the navy so long that you're used to sea legs. Sailor—Lady, I wasn't even looking.—U. S. S. Maryland Catapult.

First Caddy—What's your man like, Skeeter? Second Caddy—Left-handed, and keeps his change in 'is right' and pocket.

Miss Pump—How much, do you love me? Mr. Oxford—With all my sole!

Restaurant Patron (crossly)—Waiter, what are those black specks in my milk? Waiter—I dunno, suh—unless dey's some ob dem vitamins dey's talkin' so much about.—Safe Driver.

Minister (to prisoner)—Remember, my good man, that "stone walls do not a prison make, nor iron bars a cage!"

Only Qualification County Agent—What kind of a hired man do you want? Farmer—Well, I ought to have one with big feet till I can get around to fixing the holes in the bottom of the hayrack.

How did your curfew law work out in Crimson Gulch? "Right interestin'" answered Cactus Joe. "They hired a jazz band and turned the jail into a night club."

Looking Up at the Old Man of the Mountain.

"Second Greatest Show on Earth" Barnum Called New England Range

Prepared by National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.—WNU Service.

SINCE 1866 visitors to the White mountains have ascended Mount Washington, New England's highest eminence, to scan the sea of northern New Hampshire peaks.

It was just 22 years after the Mayflower had deposited its human cargo on the shores of Massachusetts when Field struck out from the coast on one of his many trips into the unknown wilderness that lay immediately behind colonial villages.

Many New Englanders, dyed-in-the-wool White mountain fans who insist that nowhere has nature endowed a region with such fascinating heights, on first thought questioned Barnum's judgment.

However, when they recalled the showman's love for his trained animals, gaudy trappings, and strange creations of nature that drew millions into his acres of canvas, they felt that his exclamation was the highest praise.

How and when the White mountains got their name is as mysterious as many of their often-told legends. "White mountains" appeared in a manuscript as early as 1672; and even before that time they were called the "White hills" by mariners on the Atlantic, 60 miles away, for whom they formed an important landmark.

To modern eyes, too, the name seems apt, whether it be derived from the white mist that often hangs over the higher peaks, from the whitish-gray effect of the sun upon the timberline, or from the snow that normally covers the peaks of the Presidential range for eight or nine months of the year.

Between Plymouth on the south and the vicinity of Gorham on the north is the high mountain region where every year more than two million men and women enjoy testing their leg muscles among New England's highest peaks, motoring on excellent highways, and utilizing the scores of recreational facilities, or just looking up from spacious hotel verandas toward the lofty emences sweeping from quiet valleys.

Beyond Gorham is a challenging wilderness with Dixville notch its crowning glory and Berlin its only parade population center. Here is the paradise of the sportsman searching streams and lakes for trout, salmon, pickerel, horned pout, perch, and small-mouthed bass. The forests shelter bears, deer, and ruffed grouse.

It is the high mountain area that has been the White mountains' chief lure to vacationists for more than a century. Praised by the Great, "We know our mountains are not the highest in the East," a resident recently remarked to a visitor. "Mount Mitchell in North Carolina and several peaks in the Great Smoky Mountains National park slightly top Mount Washington. Here is the impression of Hawthorne, Whitier, General Grant, Webster, Mark Twain, Winston Churchill, and scores of other men outstanding in politics, literature, and the arts of their day certainly warrant the enthusiasm of those of us who see the White mountains in every mood."

"But Grant came to the mountains for relief from hay fever," said the visitor. "That is true, but he, like many others, then and now, came here without knowing the mountains, and left with an indelible impression of

SAFETY COUNCIL NOTES

In a few more days thousands of school children will be free again for the summer months, which means many new chances will suddenly be created for automobile accidents. But thanks to the recognition in many schools of the value of safety training, children are not so liable to death and injury on the highways as they were a few years ago, but all the training in the world will not assure the safety of every child, unless the motorist realizes his responsibility and does his share by driving with extra caution, whenever he sees a child or group of children in or near the street. The Delaware Safety Council is certain that much could be done for the promotion of safety if the driver would remember that the youngsters are not capable of thinking things out for themselves, at least as well as the adult. For, even though the children are being trained, there are exceptions to every rule, dull pupils in every class and thoughtless youngsters in every group ready to create an emergency which the motorist must be prepared to meet.

Games to tag which send youngsters scurrying suddenly into the street intent only on escaping this one who is "it"; baseball games which occupy childish attention to the exclusion of everything else, even to an approaching automobile or warning blast from a horn; bicycle riders and roller skaters whose courses at best are often times erratic; and just plain every-day youngsters crossing the street with their mind on something else; all are danger signals which must be heeded if the summer accident toll among children is to be kept within the bounds.
