HARRINGTON HIGH GRADUATES CLASS OF 35 STUDENTS

Dr. J. D. Blackwell, Of Salisbury, Md., Addressed Graduates Here Last Night

OVER 700 ATTEND EXERCISES

Emphasizing determination and ability as two important factors in attaining one's goal, Dr. J. D. Blackwell, president of State Teachers College, at Salisbury, Md., addressed the June graduation class of Harrington High School at commencement exercises in the school auditorium last night. "Personal Leadership" was the topic of his address.

Dr. Blackwell declared there was always room at the top for those who had real ability and determination and used the lives of Abraham Lincoln and Will Rogers as examples. Lincoln, he said, achieved his goal by determination after having been defeated for almost every public office in the state of Illinois. Rogers won fame because he could do some things better than anyone else, the speaker declared.

The graduating class comprised 35 students and was the largest in the history of the local high school. About 700 relatives and friends attended the exercises.

The program opened with an organ prelude with James Darbie at the console. The Rev. Robert E. Green, pastor of the Harrington M. E. Church, gave the invocation. There was a musical program and Philip Decker delivered the salutatory address and Robert H. Smith the valedictory address.

Two seniors, Noah M. Cain and Hazel L. Johnson were cited for 12 years of perfect attendance.

BREAKWATER FISHING ATTRACTS LARGE CROWDS

Hundreds of visitors flocked into Lewes last Sunday for fishing in the Delaware Breakwater. Shortly after sun-up every party boat in the Lewes Anglers Association was engaged as well as others operated by private parties.

Automobiles lined the wharves along the Lewes-Rehoboth canal and almost filled the new parking space on the north side of the Lewes Yacht basin near the anglers' docks. Catches were reported good.

The new docks for the boats of the Lewes Anglers' Association are now completed. Activity along the canal is greater than in many years, with each boat slip marked with a powerful arc light that can be seen at night from vessels entering the harbor of Lewes.

Adding to the seafaring atmosphere of the town was a group of sailors who came ashore from the new battleship cruiser Savannah, which arrived around 5 A. M. at the Delaware Capes and anchored for the day in the breakwater.

FISHERMEN STILL FIGHT STATE GAME BOARD

Delaware pleasure fishing boat operators are continuing their campaign to have the tactics of the Delaware Game and Fish Commission, in arresting New Jersey boat operators for coming on the Delaware side of the bay halted in the interest of the pleasure fishing business.

Tuesday a large group of Delaware fishermen accompanied by three New Jersey fishermen, appeared before Governor Richard C. McMullen, in his office at Dover and presented their case to the Chief Executive and implored his aid in having the matter settled.

These fishermen explained to Governor McMullen how, on a Sunday several weeks ago, a party of fishermen from Pennsylvania went to Forsecue, N. J., where they had engaged a boat, and went out into the bay. Later they were picked up by a patrol boat of the Delaware Game and Fish Commission and the entire party brought to the Delaware shore.

While the game wardens were taking the captain of the boat to a magistrate at Camden, members of the party were looking for ways and means of getting back to their automobiles on the Pennsylvania side.

They left on the Delaware side to make their way to their homes in Pennsylvania the best way they could.

This situation, Governor McMullen was told, can only lead to a bad impression about the State of Delaware on the part of people from outside of the State.

The Delaware fishermen renewed their discussions on the question as to why the law is suddenly being enforced this year when it had been on the statute books for six or eight years and why the State should interfere with a business that is being handled on a friendly basis between the interested people of the two States.

Governor McMullen asked numerous questions during various discussions and finally wound up with a statement that he would go into the matter and see what he could do.

In the meantime, the Delaware fishermen plan to continue their efforts in every way possible to have the regulations changed, while the Board of Fish and Game Commissioners continue to explain that they are not responsible for the enactment of the laws but only for their enforcement.

ACCIDENTS KILL MORE TOTS THAN DISEASE IN THE U. S.

More to be feared than the diseases of childhood is the peril of child accidents. For every one child that is taken by the most vicious diseases, two little lives are snuffed out by an accident.

Where do these accidents happen? Everywhere—on the street, in school, on playgrounds and, right in their own homes. The Delaware Safety Council says that little acts of thoughtlessness bring about most of these tragedies. A little fellow runs out in the street after an elusive baseball—and is run down by a speeding driver.

A curious little girl pulls a kettle of scalding water off the stove and is fatally burned. A tiny tot, taking its first steps, falls head foremost down an unguarded stairway.

More than 18,000 children under 15 years of age are accidentally killed in one way or another each year. Traffic accidents alone take between seven and eight thousand lives. We must reduce this terrible toll of human life by every known method.

The bright side of the picture is that child deaths are not generally increasing in proportion with those of older persons. Records prove that children are away ahead of their elders in escaping pedestrian accidents. They are taught in school to look up and down the streets before they start across. They wait until the road is clear. They are taught to take no chances.

Safety education is getting results. Let us have more of it, more parental guidance. Then the future generation will not have to face the accident problems that trouble us.

KENT & SUSSEX FAIR LISTS FOUR NEW RACES

In addition to the regular race card which has been a great attraction in previous years, the management has just announced that the four early stake races have been filled. This should be good news to the race fans along the Peninsula, as it will be the result of bringing many speedy horses to the Kent and Sussex Fair grounds which have never raced there before.

There are fifteen horses entered in the 2:14 trot, sixteen horses entered in the 2:20 trot, thirteen horses entered in the 2:20 pace and fourteen horses entered in the 2:14 pace. Each of the above stake races is for $600 purses which will be divided four ways, 50 per cent, 25 per cent and 10 per cent. The race committee believes that these races will be more keenly contested than the open classes.

The half mile track at Harrington has been rebuilt this spring and it will be faster and provide better footing for the races.

167 CHILDREN PLACED IN FOSTER HOMES BY BOARD

No more children can be provided foster home care by the State Board of Charities while it operates under the present budget, C. Rollin Zane, executive director reported Monday at the monthly meeting of the board of directors held in Wilmington at the State Board branch office, recently opened.

During the month of May, Mr. Zane reported 508 children were assisted, of whom 167 are living in foster or adoption homes. He pointed out that the cost of maintaining a child in a foster home is approximately $300 a year. An appropriation of $67,780 was made for the use of the board for the 1938-39 fiscal year, out of which a number of social welfare organizations received grants.

The board discussed the advisability of setting up specific qualifications for persons employed in social work. Seven social workers are now employed, working throughout the State. These qualifications are expected to be adopted at the next meeting July 11.

Dr. Charles L. Candee, president. Other members attending were: Mrs. William S. Bergland, of New Castle; Mrs. Harry Mayer, of Dover; J. Thompson Brown, of Wilmington, and the Rev. R. Y. Barber, of Laurel.

DEFECTIVE TEETH AND TONSILS CAUSE WEAK HEART

"Defective teeth and infected tonsils are serious conditions, even in children of pre-school age, and may easily result in bad heart conditions," according to a statement issued today by the State Board of Health; this warning was prompted by the discovery of three Wilmington first grade children with bad hearts, believed directly traceable to infected teeth and tonsils.

The children had been examined a year ago, defective teeth and infected tonsils discovered, and notes sent to their parents advising them to have them cared for by their family dentist and physicians; however, examination last week, a year later, disclosed that no curative action had been taken, and in the meanwhile heart conditions had developed.

While not necessarily dangerous at this time, these conditions may result later in serious heart diseases. As stated by one of the physicians who made the examinations, children having such conditions may live to a ripe old age, but it is a known fact among the medical fraternity that such ailments get worse rather than better, and that any source of infection in the body will tend to impair the heart action and the general health of the child.

ORCHARD SPRAY NOTES ARE BEING SENT GROWERS

As has been the custom during the past twelve years, the fruit growers in Kent county are receiving again this year from the agricultural extension office mimeographed copies of orchard spray notes which contain timely recommendations in regard to control of plant diseases and insects on all fruit crops including apples, peaches and grapes.

These spray notes for the 1938 season are being prepared by Dr. T. F. Maans, plant pathologist for the University of Delaware and the State Board of Agriculture, in cooperation with Dr. L. A. Stearns, entomologist of the Delaware experiment station, and are being distributed to the fruit growers through the office of County Agent Russell E. Wilson. In addition to the information on spray materials and spraying, these orchard notes contain also comments on general weather conditions as influencing plant disease and insect prevalence.

The orchard spray notes which were mailed to Kent county fruit growers on Tuesday of this week were the ninth edition to be sent out this year and they referred to the fourth cover spray for apples, the control of curculion on peaches, and the ten-day spray for grape vineyards for the control of berry-moth.

Referring to the apple situation at this time, Dr. Maans advises that since an increase in codling moth activity is anticipated with warmer weather, coverage should be renewed by the application of the fourth cover spray. For this spray the growers are advised to use wettable sulphur with the addition of 4 pounds of arsenate of lead, 5 pounds of hydrated lime and 1 pint of fish oil for each 100 gallons of spray material.

For those apple varieties on which fruit spot, blotch or bitter rot have been severe the previous season, growers should use a 3-10-100 Bordeaux with fish oil and 4 pounds of arsenate of lead with additional lime. Those apple growers who intend to band their trees as a supplementary control measure for codling moth should have the trees scrapped and the bands in place by June 15 in order to trap the first brood larvae.

10,000 TURF FANS AT OPENING OF DELAWARE PARK

A Total Of $280,332 Is Played Through The Mutuels On Opening Day

VANDERBILT HORSE WINS RACE

A total of $280,332 was played through the mutuels as the 28-day race meeting of the Delaware Steeplechase and Race Association opened at Delaware Park, Stanton, Wednesday. While the total was below that of the opening day last year—Saturday—it was more than $70,000 higher than that of the first Wednesday.

The highest play of the day was recorded on the eighth race when $41,027 passed through the 'tote'. The daily double drew a play of $11,704, while the average play, exclusive of the daily double was $33,593.

Displaying the speed which characterized his two-year-old career on the turf, Airflame, a four-year-old son of Ariel, presented his newly married winner, Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, prince of the racing paddocks, with a wedding present when he came through with an easy victory Wednesday in the $4,000 Wilmington Handicap at Delaware Park, opening feature of the meet.

Vanderbilt and his bride, the former Manuela Hudson, who were married at Sands Point, N. Y., Wednesday morning, were not among those present for the inaugural, but the crowd of 10,000 summer-attired fans apparently believed it was good luck for the young Maryland sportsman. They backed his colt into favoritism at slightly more than 2 to 1 and Airflame did not disappoint them.

With Raymond (Sonny) Workman doing the guiding, Airflame took the lead at the start of the six-furlong event and never was headed. At the finish he was two and a half lengths in front of Infantry, recently acquired by D. J. Sullivan, of Texas from the Millsdale Stable. Hal Price Headley's Dreaminent, carrying top weight of 132 pounds in the field was third, another half length back.

The Vanderbilt colt, former holder of the world record for three furlongs when he ran the distance in 33 seconds as a two-year-old, packed 116 pounds over the slow track in 1:13 3-5 to win the purse of $4,425. Those in the crowd who backed Airflame received $6.30 for a $2 straight mutuel.

Tuesday night's heavy rain did its best to mar the opening for the crowd which journeyed from Maryland, Virginia, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, the District of Columbia and other points but when the first field faced Starter Palmer at 2:47 P. M., Wilmington time, the track was heavy but drying fast.

The best race of the day developed in the Bridgeville, a five-furlong dash for two-year-olds, when Briarlet, carrying the yellow and purple silks of the Christiana Stables, owned by Harry W. Lunger, of Wilmington, came through with a photo finish verdict over W. H. Berri's Star Runner.

Racing stride for stride the entire distance over the heavy track, they thundered down the stretch to the roar of 10,000 throats and it was the son of Sun Briar-Superette in front by a whisker at the finish, although the official photograph was necessary to separate them.

The victory gave Jockey Maurice (Moose) Peters a double for the day. Peters was up on A. G. Weston's Amhurst, which won the opener at the lucrative mutuel of $21.30 for a $2.

The Tall Trees Stable from Kentucky produced the winner of the second in Frozen Mask, which returned a $12.90 mutuel to form a daily double combination worth $102.10, the third lowest on the board.

STATE of WHEAT and OIL

Giant Sun Dials in Dodge City, Kansas.

Kansas, Once Battleground of Settlers, Rich in Farming, Oil and Industry

Prepared by National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.—WNU Service.

CROP control measures are of vital interest in Kansas, where the corn crop is ripening and the problem of limiting wheat acreage is due for discussion in the fall of this year.

Until Mennonites settled in Kansas in 1873, little wheat was grown. From Russia, however, these immigrants brought a new variety—a red winter grain so hard that millers at first had trouble grinding it.

Since that time, the best kinds of wheat grown here have come through selection or hybridization, from Turkey, or from other imports of Crimean wheat similar to Turkey's. Now agents of Soviet Russia's government come here to buy seed of this improved wheat, taking it back—after all these years—to the regions it came from.

To Kansas from Asia came white blossom sweet clover; from Manchuria the soybean.

In fact, most plants of economic value in Kansas are from other lands. This is true of orchards, vegetable, and flower gardens. Few plants were introduced accidentally.

The pioneer's covered wagon, carrying horse feed, may have been the means of first bringing in bluegrass; influx of noxious weeds may also be traced to accident.

As you near McPherson, silvery domes of oil refineries glint in morning sun like mosques on a Babylonian plain. Heavy tank trucks, loaded with new-made gasoline, speed west for Denver.

One of the newest scientific oil-hunting methods is use of the sismograph, which works more or less like the echo-sounding machines used by ships now to measure ocean depths.

When the oil hunters have made enough shots and got enough "echoes" in a given area, they draw a chart, based on the time in seconds or split seconds that it took echoes to bounce back at different spots on the area tested.

This contour map shows at depths anywhere from 1,000 to 6,000 feet the major underground "hills" and "valleys," just as a common topographic map shows hills, valleys, and drainage on the earth's surface.

Wichita is a Busy City. Wichita has one of the West's finest airports, with airplane shops that build planes for our army and navy, and some for export.

Supplanting its pioneer fires of buffalo chips, a gigantic factory here makes oil stoves and lamps that are sold to world's end. Tall flour mills pierce the skies, and crowded stockyards, noisy with bawls, grunts, squeals, and bleats, handle trainloads of meat-bearing animals.

From all over the South buyers flock to Wichita's busy mule market. "Missouri mockingbirds," they nickname these agile, shapely, but sterile hybrids, whose quick heels pack a lot of dynamite.

Metropolis of this state is Kansas City, Kan. On the Missouri side; shops that sell boots, big sombreros, and horse gear; on the Kansas side; a big, busy town of mills, packing plants, soap factories—and the fine homes of many who ride over to daily affairs in the big Missouri town across the river.

rence, type metal from the Herald of Freedom, thrown into the river by a previous mob, was fished out and molded into cannon balls.

One event in border war Kansas will never forget; that is Quantill's guerrilla raid on Lawrence, when that Missouri hothead sacked and burnt the town and slew some 150 citizens.

Even after Kansas was admitted as a free state, in 1861, and after the Civil war ended, it was plagued for years by Indian raids, county-seat fights, and bad men who rode up the great cow trails from Texas.

Writers still argue as to whether Dodge City, in its wild days, was more wicked than Abilene.

Scenes in the Oil Fields. Day and night, oil field bedlam, as at Russell field near Hays, fills the air with clatter and shouts. Big strikes quickly cover empty plains with new, unpainted pine shacks, tents, new stores, lumber yards, machine shops, auto camps, big piles of new pipe, "walking beams" of working pumps, black pools, frightful-looking dense smoke clouds from burning waste, long lines of tall steel derricks that march like big skeletons to far horizons.

You see slinky waitresses at quick-lunch counters; gnomelike electric welders, in ceaseless movement, wearing odd helmets that ward off heat and blinding torchlight; and crowds of men in overalls so greasy that they seem to have just been baptized by total immersion in the smelly black oil now pumped from the world's deep, dark, greasy bowels—oil that means more cash to Kansas than her boasted wheat crop.

As you near McPherson, silvery domes of oil refineries glint in morning sun like mosques on a Babylonian plain. Heavy tank trucks, loaded with new-made gasoline, speed west for Denver.

One of the newest scientific oil-hunting methods is use of the sismograph, which works more or less like the echo-sounding machines used by ships now to measure ocean depths.

When the oil hunters have made enough shots and got enough "echoes" in a given area, they draw a chart, based on the time in seconds or split seconds that it took echoes to bounce back at different spots on the area tested.

This contour map shows at depths anywhere from 1,000 to 6,000 feet the major underground "hills" and "valleys," just as a common topographic map shows hills, valleys, and drainage on the earth's surface.

Wichita is a Busy City. Wichita has one of the West's finest airports, with airplane shops that build planes for our army and navy, and some for export.

Supplanting its pioneer fires of buffalo chips, a gigantic factory here makes oil stoves and lamps that are sold to world's end. Tall flour mills pierce the skies, and crowded stockyards, noisy with bawls, grunts, squeals, and bleats, handle trainloads of meat-bearing animals.

"Whereupon the Governor of North Carolina Said to the Governor of South Carolina . . ."

THE TWO GOVERNORS
(From the original painting by John Mulvany in the Brevoort hotel, Chicago, and here reproduced for the first time, by courtesy of the management of the Brevoort.)

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON
© Western Newspaper Union.

"It's a long time between drinks!"
Everybody knows that's what the governor of North Carolina said to the governor of South Carolina.

But who knows, for sure, which governor said it, to whom it was addressed, or when and where and under what circumstances it was uttered? For, as so often happens in the case of an historic utterance, there's some dispute about all those points.

Down in North Carolina, however, there's no doubt on any of them. Natives of that state will tell you the incident which started that saying on its way to immortality took place just a hundred years ago this month and if you happen to be traveling on Route 70 between Raleigh and Durham they will point out to you the house where Gov. Edward B. Dudley of North Carolina said to Gov. Pierce Mason Butler of South Carolina "It's a long time between drinks!"—only he inserted another word in that sentence to make it more emphatic!

Here is the North Carolina version of the story:
The hospitable home of the widow, Mrs. Nancy Jones, between Raleigh and Durham was accustomed to notable visitors. However, on a June day in 1833 there was a great flurry in the household for not one governor, but two, were approaching. While Mrs. Jones supervised preparations for dinner, Laney, dean of the household servants, hurried to the mint bed at the back door and dispatched another slave to draw some cool water.

While Gov. Edward B. Dudley of North Carolina and Gov. Pierce Mason Butler chatted over their glasses, Laney hovered nearby. As the old woman listened, a terrible indictment of the home's hospitality assailed her ears. She flew back to the kitchen.

"Miss Nancy, did you heah 'em?" the horrified servant whispered. "Did you hear what dey say? Mistah Governor Dudley done said 'It's a damn long time between drinks!'"

Legend says that there was such a grubbing in the mint bed, such a drawing of water, and such a scolding of the butler that thereafter there was no occasion for such small talk.

Table Preserved.
Not only will North Carolinians show you the Nancy Jones house on the Durham-Raleigh road but if you go to the latter city you may be permitted to see the very table at which the two governors did Vance of North Carolina making the famous reply to Gov. Wade Hampton of South Carolina, while another credits it to Gov. John M. Morehead of North Carolina without identifying the governor of South Carolina.

Still another version says that Governor Morehead made the remark, not to a governor of South Carolina, but to Henry Clay. "The remark had political significance, meaning merely that the party to which both of these gentlemen belonged had not been in power for a long time. Hence the metaphor: 'It's a long time between drinks!'"

A Different Locale.
And finally here's the version which takes the locale of the incident away from either of the Carolinians although agreeing with a version already cited in having Governor Vance of North Carolina and Governor Hampton of South Carolina as the two participants. It says that the incident took place at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., where in 1858 was built a hotel known as "Old White," predecessor of the present Greenbrier hotel at the place.

For years White Sulphur had been the favorite summer resort of all the smart people of the South and it soon became the custom for the governors of the southern states to meet there for two weeks during the summer.

Vance and Hampton had been friends long before the Civil war but after they had been elected governor of their respective states state rivalry had kept them apart, especially in social intercourse. During one of these summer meetings they met at the bar in "Old White" where a famous mint julep was the favorite drink. Then it was that Hampton is supposed to have said to Vance: "It's a hell of a long time between drinks!"

Incidentally, the bar at which they are supposed to have stood on that occasion is still preserved at White Sulphur. When the Greenbrier was built in 1913, "Old White" was partially dismantled. The oak bar-top, said to have been 60 feet long and in one solid piece, was cut up to make the front desk of the present hotel there.

Off-Told Tale.
The principal evidence in support of the belief that Dudley and Butler were the two governors involved in the famous "long-time-between-drinks" incident is the testimony of Joel D. Whitaker. Whitaker was the grandson of the Widow Jones, from whom he often heard the tale as it is related here, and the father of Mrs. C. Trenholm McClenaghan of Raleigh to whom he handed down both the tale and the table previously mentioned in this article.

Mulvany, the painter of this picture, was noted for his delineation of historic scenes. One of them was his "Custer's Last Rally." To this picture Walt Whitman paid this tribute: "A dozen of the figures are wonderful, altogether a Western, autochthonic phase of America and the frontiers, culminating, typical, deadly, heroic, to the utmost. Nothing in Homer, nothing in Shakespeare; more grim and sublime than either, all native, all our own, and all a fact."

If indeed it was Governor Dudley of North Carolina and Governor Butler of South Carolina who were responsible for this famous bon mot, they are worthy of more than passing mention, especially since both men had interesting careers.

Dudley was born in Onslow county, N. C., December 15, 1787, the son of a wealthy planter who had represented his county in the state legislature for several years. The son grew up on his father's estate and succeeded to its ownership.

He entered public life at the age of twenty-four when he was elected a member of the legislature from Onslow county and in 1814 he was sent to the state senate. In 1816-17 he represented the borough of Wilmington in the legislature and in 1829 he was sent to congress as a Jacksonian Democrat. He served until 1831, then declined re-election, declaring that "congress is no place for an honest man."

In 1834 he again represented Wilmington in the legislature and was the last man sent there by that ancient town since the system of borough representation was abolished by the convention of 1835. This convention also changed the method of electing a governor. Previous to that time it had been done by the legislature but after 1835 the state executives were chosen by the people and Dudley was the first governor chosen under the amended state constitution.

At the end of his second term Dudley retired from public life and died in Wilmington October 30, 1855.

Soldier and Statesman.
Equally distinguished and more versatile was the governor of South Carolina—Pierce Mason Butler. He was born in the Edgefield district of South Carolina on April 11, 1798, the son of William Butler who served in the Revolution under General Lincoln and became a brigadier-general in the Continental army and later a major-general of militia.

Young Butler was given a military education and entered the army in 1819. He rose to the rank of captain but resigned his commission in 1829 to return to Columbia and become president of the Columbia bank. He was a banker for six or seven years, then returned to his first love, the army. He became a lieutenant-colonel of a South Carolina volunteer regiment with which he served throughout the war against the Seminole Indians in Florida.

In 1836 Butler was elected governor of South Carolina and served for two years. During his administration the era of railroad building in that state began and a charter was granted to the Great Western railroad which was to connect Charleston with Ohio, Kentucky and the Mississippi valley. After his term expired, Butler was made agent among the Cherokees in Indian Territory and was entrusted with a special commission to the Comanches in Texas.

While he was engaged in this work the war with Mexico began and Butler immediately resigned from the Indian service and organized a regiment of volunteers known as the "Palmetto regiment." He distinguished himself by his leadership at the battle of Cerro Gordo. At Churubusco he was wounded in the leg but insisted on leading his men in a bold and hazardous charge against the enemy. During that charge he was shot through the head and instantly killed on August 20, 1847.

WHAT to EAT and WHY

C. Houston Goudiss Warns Against Food Fads and Fallacies
Nationally Known Food Authority Explains How They May Endanger Health

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS
6 East 39th St., New York City.

AS SCIENCE and civilization have progressed, painstaking investigators have sought to replace ignorance with knowledge, to substitute truth for superstition. But in spite of their efforts, our eating habits are still influenced by a multitude of food fads and fancies, which should have no place in this enlightened age.

Some of these are harmless; others may endanger health. And the homemaker must learn to distinguish between fact and fancy.

Fish Is Not a Brain Food

One of the most persistent fallacies is the notion that certain kinds of food are especially beneficial for certain parts of the body. Many people believe that fish is a brain food and celery a nerve tonic. Lettuce is thought to be a soporific. None of these things is true.

The idea regarding fish probably arose because fish contains phosphorus and the brain also contains phosphorus. How simple it would be if one could increase brain power merely by eating fish. Unfortunately, there is nothing to it! The brain, like other parts of the body, requires a balanced diet. No case has ever been reported of a man soothing the irritated nerves of his wife by feeding her celery.

And as for lettuce, it is a fine source of minerals, vitamins and gentle roughage, but it does not contain any narcotic drug that induces sleep.

Not Necessary to Sip Milk

Another false idea is the widespread notion that milk must be sipped slowly or it will be difficult to digest. This has been refuted by a widely known investigator who made many tests. One day he fed a man a pint of milk in 10 seconds. The next day the same man was fed the same amount of milk in 10 minutes. On both occasions the contents of the stomach were examined a half hour later.

It was discovered that the milk which was drunk in 10 seconds had formed smaller curds than the milk which was sipped in 10 minutes. And in both cases, the curds were of practically the same consistency.

Water With Meals?

It is widely held that water should not be taken with meals, the argument being that it dilutes the gastric juice and thus interferes with digestion. This sounds logical and many people have been fooled. But the truth of the matter is that water stimulates the flow of the digestive juices and careful research has established that normally, water taken with meals in reasonable quantities aids digestion.

Questions Answered

Mrs. A. F. R., Jr.—Light corn syrup yields nothing but energy values, but dark corn syrup is a good source of iron. Pure molasses is rich in calcium and iron.

Miss M. F.—Nut protein is similar to the protein of meat and fish and nuts may be used in place of these foods when desired. They should not replace milk and eggs; however, as with few exceptions, they are low in minerals and cannot compare with eggs or milk as a source of vitamins.

State Auditor Wise urges the citizens of the state to buy at home. About the only time this advice is heeded around here is on election day.

A candidate for county office, who announces that he is running on the Democratic ticket, but who, in his present minor capacity, is throwing all of his patronage to the Republicans, is in high glee because some of the Republicans have kidded him into such a state that he believes they are going to vote for him in the DEMOCRATIC primaries—which they WILL NOT do. But, considering such a remote possibility, by the same token, a lot of Democrats say that his action in attempting to court the favor of the Republicans will cause him to lose hundreds of Democrats who might have supported him. Only a Gargantuan of gullibility would fall for such. Losing the Democratic vote, in order to gain the Republican vote, in Kent county is political suicide. Republicans can't help you in a DEMOCRATIC primary!

MAC PARKER'S SOLUTION OF THE KIDNAPING MENACE

Mac Parker, radio commentator of WCAU, takes a peculiar angle of the kidnaping menace—and probably the right one.

His idea will encounter much opposition, because it seems heartless; yet he believes from the viewpoint of ultimate good, it will best serve society. It is his contention that parents and other relatives of kidnaped children should not be permitted to negotiate with the kidnapers with any idea of paying ransom. He admits this would require Spartan fortitude on the part of the relatives, but believes that even the sacrifice of two or three children would be better than the ever-present dread of kidnaping so menacing to the American parents of today. Let the parents of all kidnaped children refuse to pay ransom, and the racket will stop, Parker believes. And to somewhat soften the stark declaration, he says, and correctly so, that practically all kidnaped children are dead before the fiends contact the parents.

HARRINGTON CAN—IF SHE WILL

Seven members of the graduating class of the 1934 Dover High School have received diplomas from various colleges this year—which achievements call for the sounding of cymbals by the Dover papers.

What about Harrington's class of 1934? Miss Katherine Rash and Lyman Jacobs graduate from the University of Delaware, Miss Eloise Chipman from Western Maryland, Alden Ramsdell from West Chester

Teachers' College, Billy Day Scott from Lehigh University. Harrington has only five to Dover's seven—but Dover has three times the population of Harrington.

It's about the same situation as that existing in Rotary Club gains in membership. Haddonfield, N. J., with its suburb, Haddon Heights, won the cup for the largest gain in membership in this district during the past year. These two towns have FIVE times the population of Harrington, yet their gain in membership exceeded the gain of the Harrington Rotary Club by only three members.

Harrington may be little—but it's loud—when it tries—which it seldom does. It's greatest handicap is the lack of initiative and leadership. Give it these qualities and it has enough talent to wallop any town twice its size from Dan to Beersheba.

AFRAID TO GO HOME

Frazier Hunt, one of America's ablest writers, spends part of his time on his farm in Connecticut, but spends a few months each year on his ranch in Canada, which tract is close by the ranch of the former King Edward of England. Hunt and the now Duke of Windsor have been intimate friends for years.

Like O. O. McIntyre, who never returned to the two towns of his childhood, Plattsburg, Mo., and Gallipolis, Ohio, because he wished to remember them as they were in his childhood, Hunt has never returned to the town of his birth, New Manchester, Ind. Charley Driscoll has an explanation of this in his syndicated "New York Day By Day" column:

"The home town lives as a dream village in Hunt's memory. He has never been back since he graduated from high school. He doesn't intend to return. He's afraid he might find Eel River shrunken to something less than the proportions of the Hudson."

Many people, and in this category include the editor of the Journal, never go back to their childhood homes for different reasons. They are not afraid they will find the town shrunken; they are afraid the town will find them shrunken.

WE ARE YEARNING FOR THAT ECSTATIC THRILL

In September, before the last general election, we spent some two or three hours talking with a kindly, elderly gentleman on the boardwalk at Rehoboth. Many people observed that we were on friendly terms—so, two months later, they elected him governor.

Several months later we walked into his office at Dover and extended this somewhat laconic greeting: "Governor McMullen, I am the most unique critter you've met since you became governor; I am a Democrat who asks no favors of you; I do not come to intercede for a friend; I do not want any office or appointment—for I would not accept any office from United States Senator down, or UP (the man makes the office), to bridge tender. I merely came to pay you a social call and to extend belated congratulations to you on your election."

Governor McMullen seemed dazed at meeting a real Democrat—and we are not sure that he has recovered from the shock.

But we've changed our mind about not wanting an office. We have been observing the actions of some of the holders of the more obscure offices—and we'd like to be appointed to one of the most insignificant offices in the state. We have no particular office in mind, but the more insignificant the office, the better—but we'd reserve the right to resign within fifteen minutes. You see, we'd like to know, even for only fifteen minutes, how it feels to be a big shot.

So long as officers are elected the night before the election, as they are at present, do not expect much from them. Officers should be elected twenty years before the election—or rather, on their records as citizens over a period of many years.

SUSSEX JURY DEMANDS CROSSING WARNING SIGNAL

A coroner's jury meeting at Bridgeville last Wednesday evening, recommended that a warning signal be placed at Snyder's crossing, near Greenwood, at once.

The jury was impaneled by Coroner H. E. Hardesty to probe the accident in which Mrs. Mary R. Arnold, New York, was killed when the automobile in which he was riding collided with a Pennsylvania Railroad express train.

The jury found that Mrs. Arnold came to her death through the fact the crossing was partially obstructed, and unprotected. The jury then recommended that flashing lights should be placed at the railroad crossing at once.

William H. Arnold, husband of the victim who was at the wheel of the car when the accident occurred, was seriously injured. He is confined to the Milford Memorial Hospital.

WE were pretty sure we had a great car when some months ago we checked the final blueprints on the 1938 Buick.

It had the new and mighty DYNAFLASH engine for sparkling action—the sensationally desirable TORQUE-FREE SPRINGING for a lullaby of a ride.

Looking ahead in that promising day, we figured we had every chance of getting our sales share by reason of what this car gave the buyer for his money.

Now, when times are sterner, it appears we built better than we knew—we've got a car folks just won't do without!

This great new Buick was first introduced to the public last fall. Through September, October, November, it sold in steadily increasing volume.

In a period when sales of other cars were sliding off it went ahead, in one month actually outselling one of the Big Three of the lowest-priced field.

It's still going ahead—not car Number Seven or Eight, as one might expect by its price-class, but one of the season's Four Best Sellers!

There is only one explanation of such a record when made by a car in the thousand-dollar bracket.

Such a car is so good—has so much of value in it—people just won't do without it!

They buy it not only in preference to other cars—they buy in preference to waiting for easier times and readier money-to-spend!

That's the convincing sort of car you're about to drive when you first take the wheel of a 1938 Buick.

If you haven't yet handled a new Buick, you ought to—just to see what such a car is like!

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON

NEW YORK.—President Getulio Vargas of Brazil is a far-western frontiersman in his youth, still wearing "bombachos," or gaucho trousers, Pres. Vargas for informal dress, Handy With Six-Shooter and quite in character pumping a six-gun at the palace, and putting down a Graustarkian revolt.

A swarthy, stocky little man, quick on the draw, he has never been gun-shy, and impromptu shooting has been an occasional obligato in his rise to supreme power.

When he established his totalitarian state on November 10 of last year, there were those who said he was dealing in the dark of the moon with the green shirts—that here was where Germany and fascism got a toe-hold on this continent.

The green shirt revolt and its vigorous suppression by Sr. Vargas seems to be an answer to that, even if he had not previously made it clear that his authoritarian state was not of the European model.

Brazil has a complex racial makeup which provides no proscribed group or racial Home Talent myth, the first requirement in fascist technique, and furthermore, when it comes to strong-arm government, all South American countries have plenty of home talent and indigenous skill.

Sr. Vargas recruited his political following as a liberal. He denounced monopoly and promised the overthrow of the "coffee plantation kings."

He seized power in 1930 by the overthrow of President Washington Luiz, with the aid of his lifetime friend, old General Aurelio Monteiro. Luiz had won the election against him, but Vargas raised a cry of fraud.

From the first he ruled partially by decree, now entirely, since the adoption of the constitution of November 10. His reorganization of the country followed established dictatorial practice in the formation of labor "syndicates," the fixing of maximum and minimum wages, and the denial of all rights of free press and free assemblage.

Denies All Rights of Free Speech He is a famous orator, speaking a fluent and flowery Portuguese, using the radio a great deal in national appeals. He is credited with just about the shrewdest political intelligence in South America. In his prairie town, he attended a private college, later enrolled in a military college, but was diverted to the law.

His rise through minor offices to the national congress parallels the standard career chart of our congressional record biographies—district attorney, state legislature and all the rest of it.

THE make-believe war in which the eastern seaboard was defended against "black" expeditionary forces from overseas was the first large-scale work-out of our "flying fortresses" under a unified command. Major General Frank M. Andrews, running the show, is one of the few flying generals.

He gathered up the strands of the unified service when the GHQ air force, which he commands, moved into the huge air base at Langley field, March 1, 1935.

Called the "handsomest man in the service," he is quietly effective and the last man in the world to be called a swivel-chair officer. He warns the country against a shortage of fliers and urges civilian training. He was not an A. E. F. flier.

In 1934 he made the unusual jump from lieutenant-colonel to brigadier-general and was a major-general in 1935. He was graduated from West Point in 1908 and was with the cavalry on the Mexican border, before he found his wings.

The Mayflower was followed the next year by the Fortune of 55 tons, which arrived at Plymouth in November, 1621, with some 30 additional emigrants. In 1623 the Ann and the James of 140 and 44 tons, respectively, arrived with 60 more members for the colony. The passengers in these vessels completed the list of those who are usually called first-comers.

BETWEEN VISITS TO YOUR SALON

HERE'S an "in-between" facial treatment which costs practically nothing, is no trouble to speak of and leaves you with a feeling that you've just walked out of an expensive salon. It's designed for a quick half hour some afternoon, perhaps before a party. There's only one rule: You must keep a straight face even though the treatment does make you look a bit silly.

1 Here's the first step. Mix three tablespoons of starch, the white of one egg and enough milk to make a nice firm consistency in a small bowl. The egg yolk may be saved for cake or custard.

2 Then wash the face thoroughly with pure soap, or use a good cleansing cream and then steam it for a few minutes over very hot water. This is an old trick which never fails.

3 Now the skin is clean and softened, all ready for the starch and egg mixture. Apply it generously to the face and neck. Use freely. For safety's sake, lean over the wash basin.

4 Now for a 20-minute cat nap until the mixture dries. Don't smile or "cracks" will occur. And for the sake of glamour, don't let anyone see you like this. They'd probably faint.

BEDTIME STORY
Buster Bear Looked Cruel But He Surprised Mr. Toad

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

Pray do not tip your nose in scorn at things which others eat. For things to you not good at all To others are most sweet.

THERE are ants, for instance. You wouldn't want to eat them even if you were dreadfully hungry. Neither would I. But Old Mr. Toad and Buster Bear think there is nothing much nicer. Now, Buster Bear had found Old Mr. Toad catching ants one at a time as he kept watch beside their home, and it had tickled Buster to find some one else hungry," said he in a very faint voice.

Buster Bear didn't seem to hear. He hooked his great claws into the old log and gave a mighty pull. Over rolled the log, and there were ants and ants and ants, hurrying this way and scurrying that way, more ants than Mr. Toad had ever seen in all his life before.

"Help yourself," said Buster Bear politely. Old Mr. Toad didn't wait to be told twice. He forgot all about his fright. He forgot all about Buster Bear. He suddenly found that he was hungry after all, and he jumped right in among those ants, and for a little while he was the busiest toad ever was seen. Then he remembered Buster Bear and looked up a little fearfully. Buster was smacking his lips and there was a twinkle in his eyes.

"Good, aren't they?" said he. "The best I ever ate," replied Old Mr. Toad, with a sigh of satisfaction.

"Come and dine with me again," said Buster Bear, and somehow Mr. Toad didn't mind because his voice sounded grumbly-rumbly.

"Thank you, I will," replied Old Mr. Toad.

who liked ants. Right away he had invited Old Mr. Toad to dine with him. But Old Mr. Toad had been frightened almost to death when he heard the deep grumbly-rumbly voice of Buster Bear, for he had been so busy watching for ants that he hadn't seen Buster coming. He fell right over on his back, which wasn't at all dignified, and made Buster laugh.

But there was no way to escape, and after a little while Old Mr. Toad thought it best to be polite, because, you know, it always pays to be polite, and so he said in such a faint voice that Buster could hardly hear him that he would be pleased to dine with Buster. Then he waved his legs feebly, trying to get on his feet again. Buster Bear laughed again. It was a low, deep, grumbly-rumbly laugh and sent the cold shivers all over poor Old Mr. Toad. But when Buster Bear reached out with a great paw with great, cruel-looking claws on it, Mr. Toad quite gave up.

What do you think happened? Why, he was rolled over onto his feet so gently that he just gasped with surprise.

"Now," said Buster Bear in a voice which he tried to make sound pleasant, but which was grumbly-rumbly just the same. "I know where there is a fine dinner waiting for us just a little way from here. You follow me and we'll have it in no time."

So Buster Bear led the way and Mr. Toad followed as fast as he could, because he didn't dare not to. Presently Buster stopped beside a great big decayed old log. "If you are ready, Mr. Toad, we will dine now," he said.

Old Mr. Toad didn't see anything to eat, and his heart sank again and he shook all over. "I—I'm not

Making Your Home Out of Nothing Is a Joyous Task If You're Clever

By BETTY WELLS

"NEVER you mind," Anna Lee had insisted when everybody turned up their noses at the little house. "I'll make a pretty home out of it yet. And I won't spend much doing it either."

We were dying with curiosity to see it when she called to say she'd finished it and wanted us to come out for supper. You see, the house itself was discouraging to begin with. Because it was really nothing more than a two-car garage with a room and bath above. It had been built by some people who meant to live in it a while, then build a big house later on a lovely wooded plot of ground. But things happened, and the big house was never built.

Anna did most of the work herself.

When we arrived, we were delightfully surprised with what they'd accomplished.

The first thing, of course, came a coat of paint—white because there weren't so many windows and they were high. The white paint brightened the effect a lot. Then they got black and white linoleum in big squares; not expensive inlaid linoleum, but the felt base kind that looks very crisp and fresh but doesn't cost so much. The curtains she made on rings so they could be pulled back and forth. That way they served as both shade and curtain. She chose a scenic patterned cotton in bright red ground with the design outlined in white. This made a gay slip cover for an old sofa, and also did for slip covers on the old kitchen chairs that were to do for dining. The trestle dining table Ed made himself and rubbed down to a nice hand finish. The little bedroom upstairs she made as gay as anything with yellow walls and yellow percale for curtains and bedspread.

So she did it—made a pretty home out of the little house and didn't spend much either.

Gracious Lady

"Oh, my grocery man and I are the best of friends," remarked Marcia when we asked her recently how she took care of a big house and a big family, helped in civic projects and still managed to be a gracious lady.

"You see, I have eliminated all the time-wasting jobs, such as marketing," she explained. "Oh, I know it's fun to go to the store, and it's the path of least resistance to send for a pound of butter or a box of salt when you happen to run out. But I don't have time to throw away like that."

"And so on every Friday morning I make up the week's recipes and the week's grocery order, which includes all staples we're running short of, replenishes any canned goods we've used up during the week and covers all items on the menu. I divide the list in half—ordering part on Friday and part on Tuesday. And always on the phone. I know a lot of people will say I could do better if I went to the store, and maybe I could save a penny or two a week. Though I doubt that. Because I always deal with the same grocer and butcher, and they take pride in giving me nice fresh things and good values."

PHILIP LA FOLLETTE

When old Bob La Follette east around for a successor he chose his eldest son, young Bob, taking him to Washington for training. For his other son, Phil, old Bob apparently had nothing in store. But through the years since his father died in 1925, Phil has shown himself just as astute a politician and executive as his brother. Phil is now governor of Wisconsin while Bob is senator from that state.

Phil is in the news because he backs the National Progressive party which he hopes will carry him to the White House in 1948. He has come a long distance since he graduated from the University of Wisconsin, taught a while, thought of entering the ministry and ended up being elected district attorney of Dane county, where Madison is located.

Since 1930 he has been Wisconsin's governor three times, in 1934 leading the new Progressive party to success. His career in the state house has been stormy, at times unpopular.

FARM TOPICS

FATTEN COCKERELS FOR EARLY MARKET

Poultryman Notes Ages for Economy and Quality.

By J. C. Taylor, Associate Extension Poultryman, New Jersey College of Agriculture.—WNU Service.

When is the best time to fatten cockerels to market direct to butcher shops, hotels and homes? The answer is: For most economical gains in weight, fatten them at eight weeks of age. For best quality meat, fatten them between the ages of 12 and 20 weeks.

The United States Department of Agriculture found that when cockerels were fattened for two weeks beginning at the age of eight weeks, they gained about 48 per cent in weight, compared with a weight gain of about 18 per cent in a two-week fattening period beginning at 20 weeks of age. Between the ages of 12 and 20 weeks, the older cockerels were when fattened the less efficiently they were able to put on extra weight. For each pound of gain during fattening, the eight-week-old cockerels required about four pounds of feed, the 12-week-old ones about four and one-half pounds, and the 20-week-old ones about six pounds. The 12 and 20-week-old cockerels had the advantage of a larger proportion of choice breast and leg meat. The younger cockerels had a smaller proportion of choice meat after fattening, as well as before. Cockerels of all ages put most of their additional fat into edible portions other than leg and breast meat. Only a small part of the additional fat went into the breast meat. The proportion going into the thighs and the "drum sticks" also was small.

Cockerels used in the tests were obtained by crossing White Leghorn males with females from a cross of Barred Plymouth Rock males and Rhode Island Red females.

Herds of "Super-Cows," New Government Program

If the bureau of dairy industry reaches one of its objectives, the United States presently will have half a million "super-cows." With the help of federal funds earmarked for this purpose, and with the cooperation of state and local dairy organizations, the bureau has launched a project to breed 30,000 herds of superior cattle. As the essential part of the program, it is hoped to obtain for each farmer interested a proved sire, or the son of a proved sire, for his herd.

Approximately 30,000 dairy farmers are now co-operating in the program. Particular emphasis is placed on securing accurate birth records. Herds involved, located in nearly every state, will be known as "pilot" herds, setting a standard course which the owners of other herds may eventually emulate. The Department of Agriculture has recently published pamphlet entitled "List of Sires Proved in Dairy Herd Improvement Associations." Though the names of the owners of the listed sires are omitted, a farmer interested can get the information from the agricultural college in his state, where the records are on file. The publication contains the names of nearly 1,600 proved sires.

Of Interest to Farmers

Dirty eggs that are washed do not keep well when stored.

Out of every hundred dollars the typical New York farmer spends for operating expenses, thirty dollars goes for feed.

A campaign has been started in Ireland to improve the quality of the famous Irish potato.

Someone has figured that 50,000 eggs are laid every minute of the production part of the day.

Twenty-five thousand chicks were flown from Barneveld, Holland, to London in less than 25 days.

A serious problem of the poultry industry is the lack of proper feathering of broilers in many of the heavy breeds.

Australia's wheat crop is expected to be 163,000,000 bushels, or 12,000,000 bushels more than last season.

A production record of 308 eggs per bird in 51 weeks was established by ten hens entered in a New York egg laying contest.

Much of the mortality that is common to the average pen of chicks comes during the first three weeks.

Grass alone is not enough for high producing cows. Without supplemental grain they will drop in production, or lose body weight, or both.

Feed and sunshine are so important to egg production that on many up-to-date poultry farms, hens get cod liver oil as regularly as if they were children.

See to it that green feed is provided for poultry. Alfalfa hay is excellent.

The soy bean is used to make macaroni, milk, soap, feed, fertilizer, enamels, varnish, linoleum, printing ink, celluloid, and lubricating oil.

Many poultrymen scatter an absorbent, such as acid phosphate, land plaster, or peat litter, on the dropping boards after they are cleaned.

HOUSEHOLD QUESTIONS

Improving Meat Flavor.—The flavor of boiled ham, salt beef or tongue which is to be served cold is much improved if meat is left in the water in which it was boiled until it is cold.

Protecting Hat Band.—A strip of cellophane, folded and placed under the inside hat band, will prevent perspiration and oil from staining the outside ribbon or band.

Firm Pie Crust.—To prevent the lower crust of a fruit pie becoming soggy, brush it over with the white of an egg before putting in the fruit filling.

When Tying Bundles.—Twine used in tying bundles should always be dampened. It will tie much tighter and will not slip when knots are made.

Sparing the Tablecloth.—Use white waxed paper under the child's tray on table. The paper saves the tablecloth and is barely noticeable.

When Fat Catches Fire.—Never throw water on burning fat. Use flour instead. Water only spreads the blaze.

Pressing Pleated Skirt.—Wire paper clips may be used very successfully to hold pleats in position when pressing a skirt.

To Stiffen Meringue.—A generous pinch of soda added to the egg whites before they are beaten will make meringue stand up better.

For Light Muffins.—When making muffins in iron pans, grease the pans and heat them in the oven before putting the batter in. Your muffins will then be much lighter.

"I'll find out what I can," Frank said.

Inside of an hour they would be giving full blast. Around the poker table sat six men.

Howard reached for a gun. The fingers of Frank's left hand closed on his wrist and twisted the arm.

All through the night rain poured down. The campers rose in the morning wet and stiff.

Mile High glanced at Chiswick hastily, to see if he had caught the slur.

Frank had no feeling of elation at what he had done, but he could not blame himself.

Chiswick divided his men. One half of them he sent with Dan Brand to comb the Flat-Tops.

Frank Chiswick took a room at Ma Presnall's the only place at Tail Holt which offered accommodations.

Out of the back door Frank passed into a night-roofed by a star-peppered sky. He cut across a vacant lot and walked up the narrow, dusty road leading to a crooked canyon road black with which opened in front of him.

At the end of the second day he went back to his boarding-house completely bored.

At the long table in the dining-room Ma Presnall put him next a crooked-stranger with reddish hair.

complished. Looking back to the troubled days when the HOLC granted its loans when the average borrower was two years delinquent in both principal and interest on his then existing mortgage and far in arrears in taxes, General Manager Charles A. Jones revealed records which show three-fourths of the million harassed persons who sought aid are on the road to debt-free home ownership. More than 100,000 others still are being aided in their struggle, while more than 30,000 already have paid their loans in full.

The records of those borrowers not only brought from Mr. Jones a tribute to men and women who could fight their way back from the worst depression in American history, but an endorsement of the present housing drive and its offer of the most liberal terms to encourage home ownership.

"The home owner has been proved good security," said Mr. Jones. "Many arguments are being offered the home buyer today—arguments that he should take advantage of the best terms and the lowest interest rates ever offered. Those arguments are true. At the same time, it should be pointed out that American home owners have shown they deserve and can be trusted to carry out those liberalized contracts. The records of the HOLC are adequate proof."

Revealing that HOLC borrowers already have paid back $386,358,705, or 12.6 per cent of their principal indebtedness. Mr. Jones declared collections had been "remarkable" even in recent months. In March they were 97.5 per cent of billings; in April, they dropped to 87 per cent, but figures for May, still incomplete, show another upswing.

"The experience of the HOLC not only has shown that present home owners are determined to keep their properties, but that there is a renewed desire for home ownership," said Mr. Jones. "There has been brought about by the new conditions for which HOLC has been largely responsible.

"In the old days, a great share of American home seekers never expected to completely own their properties. They assumed not only one mortgage, but usually two and sometimes three. They usually paid off the second and third, with extortionate fees, but renewed the first mortgage time and time again. "The HOLC popularized the direct reduction loan. It introduced a 5 per cent interest rate. It helped abolish the second mortgage. Its borrowers are becoming home owners in the complete sense—and the home seeker today is getting advantage of the same processes. These modern contracts, all favorable to the home seeker, have renewed the desire for home ownership."

Reverting to the assertion that American home owners are good security, Mr. Jones referred to the homes taken over by the HOLC.

"It is true that the Corporation has acquired about 85,000 homes," said Mr. Jones, "and it will be forced to take over more. But the million loans granted by HOLC were to distressed people. Their plight did not end with the day their loans were granted; many of them have struggled for years for a normal living and many of them lost their fight.

"Out of those million persons whose homes the HOLC savaged, about 620,000 today are either entirely current or less than three months in arrears. About 138,000 more are meeting all current bills and making regular month-payments on their arrearages in addition. Far more than 100,000 others still have a chance to save their homes. There were, of course, thousands who just couldn't make the grade—and some who wanted something for nothing.

"HOLC foreclosures still are far below the rate of comparable private lending groups. HOLC had to take bad risks; it was doing an emergency job. On the other hand, private lenders now are being approached by home seekers who can be regarded as good credit risks, persons with jobs and futures. If 80 per cent of HOLC borrowers are 'coming through', with the difficulties they had to overcome, the only conclusion to be drawn is that the home owner is the best kind of security."

Mr. Jones stressed that thousands of the borrowers saved by HOLC were salvaged because of the leniency which such an agency could grant and the aid which it was able to give. Foreclosures have not been made nor will they be made, he asserted, where a borrower has a chance to save his home. The average HOLC foreclosure came only after borrowers were 20 months delinquent in both principal and interest, with taxes mounting to a point where the Corporation, in protection of bondholders and taxpayers was forced to act.

5 SEIZED AS VIOLATORS OF BOAT LICENSE LAW

5 men were arranged before Judge Earl D. Willey in the Court of Common Pleas Monday on a charge of operating fishing boats in Delaware Bay without a license. They were arrested Sunday by wardens of the Delaware Fish and Game Commission.

E. H. Bostic and Earl T. Booker, of Kent County pleaded guilty and were fined $50 each. John Shaffer, of Wintfred, Pa., was fined $100. Harry Blades, of Kent County, who pleaded not guilty, will be given a hearing later. The case of Harvey B. Short, also of Kent County, was continued after he testified he had sent for a license last week.
