

SPECIAL SESSION OF STATE SENATE NEXT WEDNESDAY

Governor McMullen Has Called Special Session To Act On Confirmation

NEW SENATORS TO TAKE OFFICE

A special session of the State Senate will convene at noon on Wednesday of next week to act on the confirmation of a newly appointed Chancellor and to transact such other business as may become before the body.

A proclamation providing for the special session of the Senate was issued by Governor Richard C. McMullen on Tuesday morning and copies were sent to each member. The ten senators elected at the recent general election will sit in the Senate together with the seven holdover members.

In issuing the proclamation, the Governor did not make any announcement in addition to the appointment of the new Chancellor, the Senate will act upon all of the appointments made by the Governor since the Legislature closed almost two years ago. These include the Democratic members of the Industrial Accident Board.

The new Senate will have a Republican majority and it is expected that all of the formalities attached to the organization of the Senate will be made at this special session so that the Senate will be organized when the regular session convenes in January.

"DELAWARE HIGHWAYS AND BYWAYS" ISSUED

The initial issue of "Delaware Highways and Byways", the official publication of the State Highway Department, has been issued and has attracted a large amount of favorable comment. The new publication according to Major Chauncey P. Holcomb, Secretary of the State Highway Commission, who is in charge of the publication, is to keep the public informed concerning the activities of the Department as well as dispense information that will prove interesting to tourists coming into the State.

The front cover of the November issue contains a view of the new Indian River Inlet with some of the proposed improvements designated on the sketch. A greeting to the tourists from Governor McMullen occupies page two, as does also an editorial setting forth the purpose of the publication, namely to "more clearly carry to the motorist, sportsman and amusement seeker, a picture of the pleasures to be found here."

A description of the executive branch of the State government with pictures of the State House and various State officials appearing with the story. Next follows an interesting outline of the tidewater town of Leipsic and the surrounding territory.

Delaware wild life, together with a list of existing hunting and fishing license fees, has a prominent place in the magazine, while a double page spread is devoted to various pictures of the University of Delaware.

An interesting story covering the development of improved roads in Delaware is presented. The history of the State Highway Department is covered in this article.

Other articles in this issue cover a description of the State forests available for outings and a historical narrative concerning Reliance, Cannon's Ferry and Patty Cannon. A mileage chart occupies the inside of the back cover, while on the back is a highway map of the State, together with some of "the rules of the road."

Persons desiring a copy of this magazine each month can procure it by writing to the State Highway Department at Dover.

Saulsbury Milbourn, aged 78, died Saturday afternoon at the Delaware Hospital, Wilmington, where he had been receiving treatment for about ten days. Services were conducted from the Boyer Funeral Home here Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock, in charge of the Rev. Robert E. Green, pastor of the M. E. Church, assisted by the Rev. E. H. Collins, of Marshallton. Interment was made at Hollywood cemetery. Deceased is survived by one brother, Jonathan Milbourn, of Wilmington.

Three Age Groups Where Tuberculosis Takes Heavy Toll

Babies under one year are safer today from tuberculosis than was the case in 1928. Ten years ago, 1,300 infants less than one year old died of tuberculosis in this country, while in recent years the annual toll has been 670. The disease is not inherited, but young children are liable to be innocent victims if they are exposed to persons who have active tuberculosis. Christmas Seals are enabling parents to learn more about tuberculosis, thereby protecting their children.

Young girls are especially susceptible to tuberculosis. Seals, are directed toward them to check the threat of this disease among young people. Many schools and churches throughout the country receive tuberculosis testing and X-raying to discover whether or not their students have tuberculosis. Out of 200 persons who die every day from tuberculosis in the United States, 83 are between the ages of 15 and 25.

While more women than men are victims of tuberculosis up to 30 years of age, the toll among men 40 to 65 years of age is approximately twice that among women of the same age. Medical authorities emphasize the importance of parents being free from tuberculosis in order to reduce the danger of infecting their children. The anti-tuberculosis movement receives its main support from Christmas Seals.

CENTURY CLUB NOTES

On Tuesday, November 29, the Harrington New Century Club met, with Mrs. Reynolds Wilson, first vice-president, presiding.

After a short business meeting, a welcome was extended the members of the visiting Seaford Century Club. An interesting entertainment given by the program committee was as follows:

A play entitled "The Grapes Hang High"; those taking part were: Mrs. O. T. Roberts, Mrs. S. M. Williams, Mrs. Nellie Jones and Mrs. Chas. Derrickson.

Following this, Miss Ann Maxym sang several solos. Hobbies of the various Harrington club members were displayed around the club room. Viola E. Ocheltree of Greenwood spoke on her exhibits of samplers. Mr. J. Adams, of Harrington High School, gave a talk on pewter, woodcraft and needlepoint, and Mrs. Ernest Raughley spoke on paintings of Delaware done by her husband.

Refreshments were then served. Those in charge of the program were Mrs. L. T. Jones, Mrs. J. C. Messner, Mrs. F. B. Smith, Mrs. Frank Witcher and Mrs. R. J. Emory.

The ways and means committee is in charge of next week's program on which date will be held a White Elephant Sale.

OUTBREAK OF RABIES IN NORTHERN DELAWARE

"Do not take your dogs into northern Delaware, or accept dogs from there," is the gist of a joint warning issued by the executive heads of the Game and Fish Commission and the State Board of Health. The warning was issued the latter part of the week as the result of the discovery, earlier this week, of a Wilmington dog believed suffering from rabies. The head of the animal was brought to the laboratory of the State Board of Health, Dover, and examination showed it to be infected. This dog is known to have bitten, or scratched two persons. They are under medical care.

A veterinarian was reported to have been bitten by a dog believed to have been rabid. The head of this animal was sent to the Veterinary School of the University of Pennsylvania, and thence to the Pennsylvania State Board of Health at Harrisburg.

Arrangements have been set up by the State Board of Health to furnish material for treatment of persons bitten by supposedly rabid animals. These materials will be furnished free of charge to indigent persons. Health authorities have urged that persons bitten or scratched by dogs that may be rabid, submit themselves to their private physician for immediate treatment. Physicians are advised to communicate immediately with the State Board of Health, Dover, to secure the necessary materials, at least for indigent cases.

If owners must take their animals into northern Delaware areas, they are advised to take extreme caution to see that they do not come in contact with other animals.

It is not necessary that an animal appear rabid to be infectious, nor need it bite another animal to transmit the disease. The disease may be passed on through transmission of saliva from an infected animal to a cut in the body of a non-infected one.

Owners are being cautioned to keep their dogs completely out of contact with other animals, lest there occur a transmission of rabies. They are cautioned against the practice of allowing pets to take "just a short run alone." No length of time is necessary for an animal to acquire the germs of rabies; the occasional solo run may prove as dangerous as a whole day on the loose.

Health authorities have repeatedly advised owners to consult veterinarians about the protective results to be expected from inoculation, but if this treatment is used, not to gain overconfidence and a feeling that it is the only preventive measure that need be put in effect.

A dog suspected of having rabies should not be killed, if avoidable, immediately when he shows the first supposed signs of the disease, according to a pamphlet issued by the State Board of Health. If possible, lock him in a secure place from which he may not escape and do any harm, and give him normal amounts of food and water; not all dogs, an amateur diagnostician states, having rabies are so afflicted, and the animal may recover. If he actually has rabies, he will die within a few days, probably within a week, by progressive paralysis.

Rachel Rebekah Lodge, No. 7, will serve a turkey supper in the I. O. O. F. Hall December 8. Price 40c and 25c. Serve from 5 to 7 o'clock. Wanted: General carpenter and repair work.—Ben Dean, Grant st., Harrington.

Residence for rent.—William Stokes.

ROTARY CLUB TO HOLD COMMUNITY MEETING DEC. 9TH

Meeting To Be Held In The High School Auditorium; Public Invited To Attend

DR. CHAS. E. BARKER TO SPEAK

Dr. Charles Barker will speak at the Harrington High School auditorium on Friday evening, Dec. 9, under the auspices of the Harrington Rotary Club. The meeting will begin at 7:30, and there will be no admission charge. The public is cordially invited.

Dr. Charles E. Barker, honored by universities with the degree of doctor of hygiene and physical culture, spent an hour a day with William Howard Taft while he was president of the United States keeping him fit for his job.

Following this distinctive national service, Dr. Barker began his work as a teacher of the principles of health and right living to the young people of the United States and Canada, and to their parents. His winters were devoted to lectures under the auspices of the International Committee of the Y. M. C. A. In the summer he was on the Chautauqua platform.

In recent years he has been working under the auspices of Rotary, and in this capacity has talked in over 2,000 communities in North America.

Without effort at preaching and without oratorical flourishes, Dr. Barker has left a profound impression on the lives of these millions of young people. His most popular lecture, "How to Make the Most out of Life", has been delivered to three million boys and girls of high school age. Almost three-fourths of the young people who have listened to this talk have come back to the auditorium the same evening to hear his address to mothers and fathers, and their sons and daughters, on "The Most Important Job in the World."

One of the secrets of the success of Dr. Barker as a lecturer to high school youths is his understanding of young people and his simple and understanding appeal to them. He makes his talks to youth to appeal to the idealism of youth, shows an appreciation of their problems, and from a lifetime of experience he speaks frankly, without offending. Many times educators have told him that academic tests of students a few months after his lectures have shown a remarkable increase in the students' grades. In the past quarter of a century he has probably talked to more high school students than any other man who ever lived.

Dr. Barker has been a member of the Rotary Club of Grand Rapids, Michigan, since October, 1921. He joined the staff of Rotary International on February 1, 1936.

APPLICANTS SHOULD FILE FOR UNEMPLOYMENT

All applicants for benefits under the Unemployment Compensation Law after January 1 of next year will be required to register for employment at an Employment Service office as part of the procedure in claiming benefits, according to Thos. Russell, manager of the Dover office of the Delaware State Employment Service.

Mr. Russell said: "A great deal of time will be saved and possible delays avoided if eligible applicants who are now unemployed will register at the Dover Employment Service before the first of the year. If this is accomplished, the only further registration necessary at the time of claiming benefits will be the filing of a claim for such benefits."

"The average time for an interview is 20 to 30 minutes. However, during the period of benefit payments it may be necessary to curtail the time allotted to each employee. It is therefore distinctly to the advantage of a worker unemployed at this time to have his interview as soon as possible in order that he may be available for any possible vacancy to which he may be certified by the service."

Mr. Russell also pointed out that the facilities of the service are available to employers and employees not only in the employment covered by the Unemployment Compensation Law but also in agricultural labor and domestic service.

CAP AND BELLS

LOOKED THAT WAY

"Now, how do you know that your friend Stiff is dead?" demanded Wiggs, counsel for the defense.

"Well, I don't know. It's pretty difficult to prove," replied the witness.

"Ah, there you are. Just as I suspected, you don't know whether he is dead or alive!" snapped Wiggs.

"As I was saying," continued the witness, "I don't know whether Stiff is dead or not, but what I do know is that they buried him a month ago, on suspicion."—Stray Stories Magazine.

What, No Apples!

An old Scottish gardener accompanied his employer, an artist, to an exhibition of pictures in London. Among them was one called "The Fall." He stood studying this picture so intently that his employer was moved to ask him his opinion of it.

"I think no great things of it," he replied. "Why, sir, Eve is tempting Adam with an apple of a variety that wasn't known until 20 years ago."

UP WITH THE TIMES

"So at last you've reasoned your self into the belief you must have a car?"

"Yes; auto-suggestion's a powerful thing—when the family's helping it out."

No Fast Friend

The big city lad was showing his country friend the sights, and during the course of the tour visited a French restaurant.

"These," he pointed out, as a dish arrived, "are snails."

"Snails?" cried the country boy. "We don't eat those things in Arkansas!"

"Of course you don't," said the city chap gently, "you couldn't catch 'em."—Washington Post.

Recluse

A friend called upon a guest at a hotel, knocked and asked him to open the door.

"Can't, door's locked!" the voice within announced.

"Well, unlock it!" the caller requested.

"Can't, threw the key away!"

"Great heavens, man! What will you do if there is a fire?"

"I won't go!"

Unbalanced Budget

Jones—How do you spend your income?

Smith—About 30 per cent for shelter, 30 per cent for clothing, 40 per cent for food and 20 per cent for amusement.

Jones—But that adds up to 120 per cent.

Smith—That's right.

Girls

Dick—How come you don't care for girls?

Doc—Oh, they're too biased.

"Biased?"

"Yes, biased. It's bias this and bias that till I'm flat broke."

New Racket

Hollowyng—Frisby has a new racket now.

Cryng—What? Is it something dishonest?

Hollowyng—No, he plays tennis with it.—Pathfinder Magazine.

PRECAUTION

Father—That young man you're going with is a bad egg.

Daughter—I know it. I'd dropped him long ago if it weren't for that.

Smart Groom

Gov's Bride—Why do you always want me to pull your ears when I kiss you?

Groom—So I can tell where your hands are. I lost my wallet four times the other way.—U. S. S. California Cub.

Danger Signal

"Rastus, I see your mule has 'U. S.' branded on his hindquarters. Was he in the army?"

"No, boss, dat 'U. S.' don't stand for Uncle Sam, it means Un-Safe."

Blessed Silence

Doctor—You say your wife has dislocated her jaw, Mr. Peck? I'll be right over.

Mr. Peck—Well, Doc, I phoned to say that you needn't hurry. If you're passing our way sometime next week or the week after, you might drop in and look her over.

Arithmetic and Grammar

Bill—I et five eggs for breakfast.

Big Sister—You mean "ate."

Bill—I guess you're right, Sis. I et eight eggs.

"What have you done toward fire-prevention in your home?"

"Failed to get any coal."

Quite Proficient

"Can you do double entry?" asked the employer of the prospective employee.

"I can do triple entry!" was the reply.

"Triple entry?"

"Yes—one entry for the working partner showing the true profits, another for the sleeping partner showing small profits, and a third for the income tax collector showing a loss."

IN THE DANGER ZONE

Grooming Aid To Business Girl's Career

By PATRICIA LINDSAY

BEAUTY is as beauty does in the office as elsewhere. Gradually there is being formed unwritten laws for office behavior and the girl who is aware of them, and obeys them, has a better chance of promotion than the girl who ignores them.

Take for instance the small matters of grooming. Small but important. Tidy appearance, personal neatness, never obvious dress or make-up. Those you are familiar with, or should be if you are in business at all.

But just recently a personnel officer of an important company voiced

Long personal conversations and smoking during office hours are strictly taboo if you want to hold your job.

A few more office rules which she says are as essential as the golden rule!

Rules for Office Behavior

"Remember that good manners and courtesy mark a person's true character in a business office as truly as they do at a dinner party."

"Be sparing in the exercise of your charm. Most bosses prefer to pick their own charmers—after business hours."

"Don't strive for too striking color combinations in your office apparel. Unless you have a very extensive wardrobe your confreres will become all too familiar with the rotation of costumes."

"Don't be a telephone chatter. Personal conversation in an office should be kept brief and subdued. Bill collectors and beaux should get the same impersonal attention from nine until five."

"Smoking during working hours is usually indulged in only by executives."

"Don't take out your bad temper on the switchboard operator, she can't talk back, and may have had a bad night, too."

"The person who makes a phone call should end the conversation. She is also the one to call back if the telephone conversation is disconnected."

"All personal belongings such as make-up kits, compacts, etc., should be kept out of sight. Do your touching up in the powder room."

"If you are in a dignified office never appear without stockings. It is not only bad form but your legs look better when clad!"

"Don't keep other employees from doing their work by telling them about your personal doings. Night-before reminiscences are for lunch-time chatter."

"The top of your desk should contain only the essentials for one's immediate work. Cluttered desks speak of sloppy work."

HINT-OF-THE-DAY

To Keep Eyes Sparkling

Eyes—the windows of the soul—are the most important feature of the face. To keep the eyes clear and bright requires constant attention, especially if you are outdoors much during the day, or work in an office under artificial light.

An eye wash is as important as a soap and water cleansing for your face. Make it a habit to cleanse the eyes in the morning, as regularly as you cleanse your skin.

An excellent eye bath is a herbal compound that soothes and cleanses the eyes in a magical way. There is an eye cup attached to the top of the bottle.

Another phase of eye health and beauty has to do with your eyelids. Crepey eyelids detract from your beauty and can be prevented. There is a cream especially blended for the eyelids which really does the work. You simply smooth it on the lids and leave it there over night. It helps replenish the oils which have dried out and restores the natural, youthful skin texture.

Most Northern State

Minnesota is farther north than any other state. The northern part of Lake of the Woods county, formed in 1922 from the northern portion of Beltrami county, is farther north than any place in any other state in the Union. This part of the United States cannot be reached by land without passing over Canadian territory.

Use of Term Tuberculosis

Consumption, phthisis, T. B., and tuberculosis are one and the same disease. The first three terms are used when speaking of tuberculosis of the lungs only. The general term tuberculosis has to be qualified by mentioning the part of the body affected.

Have Many Wild Animals

In the deserts of northwest Chinese Turkestan are to be found large herds of "kiang" or wild asses, wild horses and wild camels.

HOW TO SEW

Money making ideas for Christmas.

AN INTERESTING letter this morning says, "Our church bazaar is over and in winding up the last details and balancing my accounts I feel that I would be neglecting something if I did not express my appreciation for your Sewing Book No. 2, Gifts, Novelties and Embroidery. We found many ideas in it that were real money makers. Our annual Christmas sale is now in course of preparation. Could you publish some new ideas for toys in the paper soon?"

Unusually attractive toys may be made quickly and at little cost from cheap cotton stockings. This demure yellowish tan kitten with bright red or blue ribbon is made from a stocking leg. The secret of giving toys of this type character is in making the stuffing firm and tight. Cotton or small pieces of clean, soft rags may be used. Push the stuffing firmly in place with a blunt stick.

Complete directions for cutting and making the body are given here. For the tail, cut a piece 6 inches long and 2 inches wide. Stitch the lengthwise edges together, tapering toward the end, then turn right side out, stuff and sew firmly in place. Notice in the sketch how the eyelids curve, the shape of the mouth and how the whiskers slant.

Either wool yarn or mercerized cotton embroidery thread may be used—black or brown for the eyes and whiskers and red for the mouth.

NOTE: Are you ready for Christmas? Birthdays? And the next church bazaar? Do you turn time into money with things to sell? Mrs. Spears' Sewing Book 2 has helped thousands of women. If your home is your hobby you will also want Book 1—SEWING, for the Home Decorator. Order by number enclosing 25 cents for each book. If you order both books, quilt leaflet with 36 different stitches will be included free. Address Mrs. Spears, 210 S. Desplaines St., Chicago, Ill.

"POOR TRUST IS DEAD—BAD PAY KILLED HIM"

This sign with picture of "doggie," gone where all "doggies" go, hanging on the wall of a small store in a little North Carolina town which was plenty years ago, was my first squint at the hint to pay cash. Some need a hint while others need a kick to make good their I. O. U's. The owner of that North Carolina store the kids called "OLD MAN CASH." What the grown-ups called him, I dunno.

It was said that he was a mind reader because he was always able to arrange to be at the spot where you had to look at that sign, and him, too, when you wanted credit. His cold stare and that sign caused stuttering of "the promise to pay tomorrow." It was told that some could not even utter the stutter when facing him and his sign.

In later years, after his retirement, speaking of his experience, he said, "There was a time when I was a Santa Claus and some folks seemed to think every day was December twenty-fifth, and no week had a pay day and no month, a first. It was then I decided to change my store habits and if possible the habits of some of my towns-people."

After thinking things over awhile, I made up my mind to advertise. I reasoned it out that a general alarm in the WEEKLY, the only paper in town, to tell about my store, the goods and the new policy of paying, would hit everybody and it would help me save shame-faces—some might feel sheepish while reading my advertisements and have a heart.

I got interested in advertising. I found other people, some of them my customers, read advertisements, so I helped it along the best I knew how. I put gingersnap words in my advertisements and some humor, and that's how the idea came for the POOR TRUST IS DEAD sign.

I also found that good-name goods had repeat sales and that started me concentrating on staples with the result that fussiness over what kind, no longer confused or lked. Daily-dilly selling efforts, wasting time and costing money passed out.

Customers bought baking powder, soda, flour, soap and other articles bearing identification marks. Kids called them pictures. Carbons, boxes, bottles and cans. What an improvement in business and the dispositions of the customers. I even improved with conditions so greatly changed for the better.

NATURE'S CHRISTMAS GIFT

Two million Christmas trees come annually from Washington state, where a ranger (above) tags trees for cutters (below) who leave the stump and lower branches from which a new tree will grow.

Picture Parade

Left: Loaded on sleds, the trees are hauled through the forests by horses to a concentration camp (right) where they are bundled by size and grade. Butts are sawed even. Both tall and short trees are needed, the former for old-fashioned high-ceilinged homes, the latter for modern low-ceilinged houses.

Loaded into freight cars, Washington's Christmas trees are ready for shipment to three-quarters of the nation. The above load is destined for Atlanta, Ga.

In Washington, the tree that makes these youngsters happy on Christmas morning was not cut destructively. Instead it gave needed room for neighboring trees to grow faster and better.

HEADLINES FROM THE LIVES OF PEOPLE LIKE YOURSELF!

The Monster in the Box

HELLO EVERYBODY:
It seems to me, boys and girls, that all the interesting characters in the world are flocking to this corner of ours to tell us the big experiences of their lives. Take, for instance, Moe Aarons of New York City. Moe has been a circus man for most of his life, and for a good part of that time he has held down one of the most intriguing jobs in the circus business.
And did Moe lead the band, or swing the flying trapeze, or written up his face and do a clown act in the big arena? Not on your life. Moe didn't even travel with the show. For 25 years he has toured the Far East looking for animals with which to stock the menagerie. In that time, Moe has seen plenty, and had plenty of things happen to him. But none of his experiences can ever touch the one he had in October, 1931, with a 20-foot monster from the dark jungles of Burma.

Python Twenty-Six Feet Long.
"I was taking a cargo of unhandled snakes," says Moe, "from Singapore to France on the passenger steamer Az Reveau. The snakes were pythons of extraordinary size, some of them as long as 26 feet, as big around as a stovepipe, and capable of crushing horses to death in their coils. They were kept in wooden boxes four feet square, and I made regular rounds to see that they were all secure, for the steamer carried 800 people, crew included, and I realized my responsibility in safeguarding them from my reptiles."

But one day, to his consternation, Moe found one of his biggest pythons gone. To save his life he couldn't understand how that snake got out of his box—but at the moment that was the least of his worries. The thing to do was to find the reptile and get him back in the case again. Moe hurried to the captain, told him not to worry and asked for few sailors to help recapture the snake.

The captain assigned three sailors to help Moe. Moe searched the vessel for three hours before he found the python, on a shelf in a secluded corner of the deck. "There he lay," says Moe, "with his tongue going in and out of his mouth like lightning. There was something uncanny about his appearance. I was chilled at the sight. But the one thought in my mind was to get him back in his box as soon as possible. I got a stout stick about eight feet long, attached a rope-loop contrivance at one end, and instructed the sailors to pull the rope tight as soon as I got the loop over the reptile's head."

He managed to get the loop over the snake's head.

Moe advanced on the snake, stick extended. He was being careful not to get too close, lest the python strike and get him in its crushing coils. He got the loop over the reptile's head and yelled, "Pull!" While the sailors held the rope tight, Moe dragged the python down from the shelf, fell on him and grabbed his head. Then he turned to shout further orders to the sailors.

Sailors Left Him Holding the Python!

To his dismay, they had let go of the rope and fled!
Moe knew right then as he had never known it before in his life. "I had the snake by the neck," he says, "but the snake had begun to wrap me in his folds. I thought: Lord, I will be crushed to death if I don't get some help. But no one lifted a finger except my wife, Minnie, who was standing by near the box we had brought down to put the reptile in. She seized the tail of the snake and unwound one of the folds. She tried to push it into the box, but it came out as fast as she could get it in."

Again and again Minnie thrust that tail back in the box, but each time it lashed out again to coil itself around Moe. Meanwhile, Moe was on the verge of exhaustion. The coils that were already around him were all but crushing the life out of him. "My strength was ebbing fast," he says. "I was wringing wet with perspiration. Blood was flowing from my nose and ears. The folds of the snake had encircled every part of my body from head to foot. Lord, how could people stand around and see me crushed to death?"

"But no one made a move to help me. By now the place was crowded with onlookers, but they stood as if hypnotized—rooted to the deck."

Snake Prepared for Final Squeeze.

Moe's wife alone stuck to him to the bitter end. And Moe claims that it was she who saved him. It seemed as if the snake were preparing for one last, final squeeze. He had his tall around Moe, and Minnie was working with all her might to pry it loose again. Moe was ready to give up, but hope died hard. By that time he had worked himself close to the wooden box in his struggles, and with every ounce of strength he had left in his body, he threw the python's head and one or two of its coils into it.

At the same moment, Minnie succeeded in unwrapping the snake's tail. She threw that into the box, too. With his free hand, Moe slammed down the lid of the box and sat on it. That did the trick. Part of the snake was still outside the box, but when he felt the lid slam down on him he straightened out and began drawing the rest of him inside to keep company with his head.

"When it was over," says Moe, "I was all in—more completely exhausted than I thought a man could be and still remain conscious. I felt as though I didn't have strength to keep on living another minute. I couldn't open my fists and there was a vivid red line encircling every part of my body—marks of where the snake had entwined me. I had to lie in hot water for weeks before I was entirely recovered. And though, today, I am none the worse for my harrowing experience, the recollection of it never fails to send a shiver down my spine."

C. Houston Goudiss Describes Some of the Functions of Vitamin B.—Reports Recent Discoveries of Its Relation to the Gastro-Intestinal Tract

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

PERHAPS no more dramatic chapter has ever been written in the history of nutritional science than the discovery of the chemical structure of the vitamin now known as B₁ and its artificial synthesis.

Inasmuch as a deficiency of this vitamin may have extremely far-reaching effects upon human health and happiness, it is important that every homemaker should learn something of its functions, its characteristics and its sources.

The Anti-Neuritic Substance

Vitamin B₁ is known to prevent and to cure a nerve disease called beriberi.

The disease was known in Ancient times in the Orient. It occurred in other countries during the Nineteenth century. And even in the Twentieth century, some of the British troops stationed in Mesopotamia and the Dardanelles during the World War came down with the disease.

Even before this vitamin was identified, a European investigator was seeking to determine why a small portion of milk added to a diet containing protein, fats, carbohydrates and minerals successfully nourished individuals who did not enjoy good health when the milk was omitted.

Chemical Identification

Many investigators sought for years to fathom the secret of this mysterious substance.

After long research by many distinguished investigators, two Americans reached a milestone in the history of nutritional science when they discovered the chemical structure of vitamin B₁ and learned how to synthesize it.

A Regulator of Body Processes

In the course of their work with vitamin B₁, nutritional scientists have discovered many other important functions of this vitamin.

It has been determined that this substance is essential to growth and that it is also necessary to promote normal appetite. Laboratory experiments with animals revealed that when fed upon a diet lacking vitamin B₁, the animals lost their desire for food and refused to eat until the vitamin was restored to their diet.

There is also some evidence that vitamin B₁ is necessary for the maintenance of normal muscular tone of the large intestine.

Aids Gastro-Intestinal Tract

Chemical studies on 75 patients led one investigator to conclude that a continual slight shortage of vitamin B₁ leads to definite changes in the motor and secretory mechanism of the gastro-intestinal tract.

There is also evidence that the vitamin B₁ requirement increases with the rate of growth and with increased energy expenditure.

For this reason, active working men and women should be amply supplied with this vitamin, and growing children should also have generous quantities.

Further investigations are now in progress and it is quite possible that many significant new facts will be unearthed in the near future.

In the meantime, there is enough evidence to warrant the belief that the absence of vitamin B₁ results in cellular alteration in the nervous system, intestine, pancreas, stomach, salivary glands, liver and other tissues. The whole power of the body to resist infection appears to be decreased. This is especially true in the gastro-intestinal tract, probably owing to the action of the bacteria on its passage through the impaired alimentary tract.

Some Peculiarities of This Vitamin

Vitamin B₁ is soluble in water. For this reason, a large percentage of it may be lost if the water in which a food is soaked or cooked is discarded. Other ways in which this precious vitamin is lost are through refining cereals too highly, or when the natural acidity of a food is lowered by the addition of an alkali.

Preventing Vitamin B₁ Deficiency

It has been suggested that the health department of every village, town and city should not be content with protecting the local community against infectious diseases, but should be equally militant in endeavoring to safeguard its people against the dietary deficiency diseases which have been discovered through the recent advances in nutritional knowledge.

That is because many people who can easily afford the foods that furnish vitamin B₁ are consuming a diet deficient in this respect. This unfortunate situation may arise because they believe that their customary diet is adequate. Or, they conclude that appetite is a reliable guide to the meals that should be consumed.

Sources of Vitamin B₁

Investigation has established that foods yielding a good amount of vitamin B₁ include bran, milk, eggs, bananas, orange juice, carrots, spinach and cabbage.

One of America's outstanding nutritional scientists has stated that foods can be made to provide the necessary daily requirement of vitamin B₁ if half of the needed calories are taken in the form of fruits, vegetables, milk and eggs, and if at least half of the breads and cereals consumed are taken in the whole grain form. This suggests the advisability of adding some bran to muffins, waffles, and other quick breads when they are intended for the dietary of normal individuals. The same procedure can likewise be followed in serving hot or cold cereals.

Another distinguished authority holds that adequate amounts of vitamin B₁ can be furnished at a low cost if the homemaker will utilize larger quantities of the whole grain cereals and legumes. If the calories supplied by these foods are not desired—as when one is endeavoring to avoid gaining weight—vitamin B₁ may be obtained from suitable quantities of bran and the germ of the grain.

Foods That Help Promote Regularity

In addition to providing vitamin B₁, which helps to serve as a sort of intestinal tonic, bran and many fruits and vegetables help to add cellulose or bulk to the diet. Their fibrous framework is a great aid in promoting regular health habits.

Some foods are richer than others in cellulose or bulk. Good sources of this substance being notably bran, whole grain cereals, most raw fruits; dried fruits, such as prunes, figs and raisins; raw vegetables; such cooked vegetables as onions and leafy greens; and legumes, that is, dried beans and peas.

These foods, therefore, have a definite place in the diet of normal individuals. The homemaker should see to it that they are included regularly in her daily menus.

If that task is performed faithfully, it should help to develop a healthier and more vigorous race.

Questions Answered

Mrs. S. T. L.—Yes, you are correct. All kinds of fresh food furnish protein, and usually they also contain fat. The amount of fat, however, varies with the cut and with the kind of animal from which it was obtained. Many fresh foods have more fat than full cream.

Mrs. T. A.—If a year-old infant receives a quart of milk daily, he should obtain sufficient protein, calcium, phosphorus and vitamin A to meet his requirements. He will likewise receive substantial amounts of vitamins B and G, but he needs a supplementary source of vitamin C.

Despite the general castings Germany is receiving, there is one thing to be said in her favor—she has banned swing bands and singers.

"$7,000 City Neezy Can't Pay Rents", says a headline in the Wilmington Journal—and this statement is a lot of malarkey. The head of the house is supposed to be the only one liable for rent, and counting four people to a family, that would mean that 148,000 people are represented in these unable-to-pay-rent families. A lot of the duPonts are able to pay rent; in fact, we believe that most of them are—and Wilmington's population, duPonts and all, is only 116,000.

HUMOR—AND SMUT!

The "Arkansas Traveler", with Bob Burns and Irvin Cobb, shown at the Reese Theatre Wednesday and Thursday nights of this week, was one of the cleanest, one of the most entertaining pictures of the year.

Neither man patterns after the late Will Rogers; neither man has to pattern after anyone, because they have their own type of ability. However, both have many of the qualities of the lovable Will—a sprinkling of cornbread philosophy, seasoned with dry humor.

Almost two hours of wholesome entertainment, replete with laughs—and not one suggestive scene or line.

Let's compare them to some of the so-called comedians of the screen or radio:

Al Jolson is supposed to be a great entertainer. He demonstrates that alleged ability by swaggering from one side of the stage to the other, and back again, snapping his fingers and bleating like a goat in a cracked voice, something on the order of a goat, "M-a-m-m-y"—although his voice lacks the musical quality of the goat.

Eddie Cantor is a fair singer—but he wouldn't get very far with his singing alone, because America has hundreds of thousands of much better singers. Eddie is of the smart-Alec type and depends altogether on rolling eyes, smirks and suggestive lines.

Joe Penner is clean. His program appeals to children from five to ten years of age—and to very dull children as old as twelve years.

George Jessell, as an entertainer, is nothing but plain flith, and the same goes for Milton Berle and Lou Holtz, although Holtz is the filthiest of the three.

Jack Benny is suave, skilful and clean—one of the ablest entertainers before the public today.

Inasmuch as he writes his own hour-long program weekly, and puts it across with consummate skill, Fred Allen deserves more credit than any other comedian of this era.

Fibber McGee is wholesome and humorous—about the ablest of the slap-stick boys.

Still, all in all, we are for the wholesome, clean, down-home type of entertainer—a smile, a tear, a touch of philosophy—as exemplified by Rogers, Burns and Cobb.

TIBBETT, JOHNSON ARGUE ABOUT OPERAS IN ENGLISH

Lawrence Tibbett, distinguished baritone, believes that opera never will reach wide popularity in the United States until it is sung in English. So he says in the current Rotarian Magazine. But his contention doesn't go unchallenged. In a companion article, Edward Johnson, manager of the Metropolitan Opera Association, asserts that opera is most effective when sung in the language in which it is written.

"I believe the development of opera has been retarded to a considerable extent because it has been unintelligible to the people," says Tibbett. "As I see it, traditional opera has been transplanted here without being adapted to our peculiar needs and therefore does not find a soil favorable to its growth. The art has no national history here. In Italy, France, Germany, opera thrives naturally because it is not created by native writers, it has been adapted by translation into another tongue."

European countries, excepting England, would not listen to opera sung in a tongue other than their own, declares the opera-radio-cinema baritone, for opera as a fusion of music and drama must not only be seen and heard but also understood to be appreciated. In time, he asserts, a native opera will develop which will interpret American life with an intermingling of dialogue and singing. Stimulated by the scope afforded by motion-picture films and sung in English, he adds, American opera can give the world a characteristic form of drama in music.

Johnson counters with a question. "Isn't it to the credit of the United States that it is one of the few countries that present opera in the language in which it was written? Many countries require translations for nationalistic reasons and to make it easier for their singers. But great art is international and should not be nationalized."

Attempts to present non-English opera in English have been unsuccessful, the Metropolitan manager points out, for it does not depend upon words to convey its meaning. Then, too, translators seldom are successful in matching phrasing with English. Much more significant in making opera popular in the United States is the greater attention given music in public schools and also the enthusiastic reception of opera broadcasts. Both, he says, are helping to make America appreciate the best music more than ever before.

DELAWARE SAFETY COUNCIL

Just as ice, snow and sleet paint a new landscape, so winter weather brings changes to the driving pictures. With the changing of the seasons, the Delaware Safety Council warns the motorist to prepare for new hazardous conditions.

Chief of the winter driving dangers is that of skidding, on ice or snow-packed streets. Brakes in good repair and properly adjusted, good tires and chains are the best safeguards, but they cannot be substitute for the exercise of maximum care at all times and speed compatible with conditions.

Improperly aligned brakes are extremely hazardous on wet or icy streets. The motorist should try his brakes each day as he leaves the garage. He should also allow a greater margin of safety in making stops, even if his car is equipped with chains. Skid chains should be stored in the car for use when conditions warrant.

Tires should be examined often. If the treads are too smooth, the danger of skidding is greater. Ice on the windshield imperils visibility, so windshield wipers should be in good working condition. Drivers should be alert to the possibilities of falls in stepping to or from the running board of the car when the boards are ice-coated. The ice should be removed or the step sprinkled with sand or ashes.

Filling the radiator with good anti-freeze.

Complex—yet Simple

Imagine fifteen telephones all wired together so that each can be connected with each of the others.

Now multiply by a MILLION and scatter them all over the United States. But keep them all wired together! Or—to be more practical—add enough switching equipment so that any two can be connected instantly! You now have a simplified picture of the Bell System.

Perhaps this gives you some idea why there is $239 worth of plant and equipment for every Bell telephone in Delaware. And why we need more than 400 highly-trained people to serve Delaware's 42,700 Bell telephones. And why it takes careful, experienced management to give you—at low cost—the world's finest telephone service.

In spite of this amazing complexity, the use of the telephone is simplicity itself. You can reach an old friend hundreds of miles away in a minute or two. You'll hear clearly—as if talking face-to-face. You can call 100 miles (station-to-station) for only 35 cents any night after 7 or any time Sunday... Number please? WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON

NEW YORK.—In Europe, a few years ago, this writer met a friend who had just interviewed Gen. Ismet Inonu, who is today Turkey's key new dictator...

It was in 1920 that young Colonel Ismet joined Mustafa Kemal in Anatolia. By 1922, he had driven the Greeks out of Anatolia and Smyrna...

He was one of few men who retained the confidence of Atatürk to the end. He was a firm and exacting and, at times, ruthless ruler of the army...

It is apparent that Ismet Inonu is intent on keeping Turkey diplomatically liquid, that he fully realizes the bargaining power of Turkey's hegemony over the Moslem bloc...

TALL, austere Sumner Welles, a deft precisionist in career diplomacy, is merely unobtrusive of state, but off-stage he's the key-man of a critical international encounter...

His plea for joint defense against "any threat of attack" is in interesting contrast to his speeches of a year ago, when he appealed to the "nations of the world for a new world order, based on justice and law..."

Something like a picture of a western league of nations begins to emerge as the great imperialist turn toward the vast raw material storehouse of South America.

After his graduation from Harvard in 1914, Franklin D. Roosevelt, then assistant secretary of the navy, helped him enter career diplomacy.

ROBERT DONAT, the English actor on the up-take in "The Citadel" and other films, made so many unsuccessful tries at the screen seven years ago that they called him "Screen Test" Donat.

Luther's Wittenberg Visitors to Luther's city of Wittenberg in Germany may see the famous theses that he nailed on the church door in 1517. The doors are of metal and the text of his protest is deeply inscribed in the metal.

Motto of French Republic—"Liberty, Equality, Fraternity" dates from the first revolution, July 14-15, 1789. It was later accepted as a declaration of political principles.

Weekly News Review France Deserts Great Britain To Find Safety With Germany

By Joseph W. La Bine

International

Appreciating the potency of a strong Rome-Berlin axis, Great Britain and France have long sought to keep Germany and Italy divided. Now this clever trick of diplomacy has boomeranged.

Until a few weeks ago Great Britain and Germany were comparatively close friends, while Italy busied herself hurling insults in the general direction of London.

NEVILLE CHAMBERLAIN France no longer needed him.

Adolf Hitler has found it convenient to abandon his British friends and turn to France. Thus it was not entirely unexpected when France announced conclusion of a pact with Germany to outlaw war between the two nations and recognize the permanent integrity of present Franco-German boundary lines.

On the surface this appears to complement the Anglo-German "no war" treaty signed secretly by Hitler and Chamberlain at Munich. A more likely result is that it will cause bickering between France and Britain; by making peace with Berlin, Paris has figuratively abandoned the protectorship of British aristocrats and financiers.

Do the only new development which does not fit into this appeasement program is the Anglo-French decision to pool air forces and construct a fleet of 10,000 fighting planes by 1940. This contradictory move only emphasizes how little faith any modern European nation places in the sanctity of treaties.

Defense Though much talk has been heard of a multi-billion defense program in which the U. S. would place a steel ring around the entire Western hemisphere, President Roosevelt's armament requests are not expected to be that big.

Most of the committee's witnesses have gone on record opposing the "incentive tax" because it would impose either reward or penalty for an employer's decision on a matter which should be entirely voluntary.

Member yet advocates it, both Senators Vandenberg and Herring have been feeling out sentiment on an "incentive taxation" plan. Under it the government would give tax credits to profit-sharing concerns, meanwhile penalizing non-conforming firms.

Deer Herd's Leadership Won by Big White Rival The king is dead, long live the king. That's the cry heard-in that section of the Belle Isle zoo where the deer herd is kept, for Rex, an eight-year-old buck, has been dethroned as leader of the group and his place has been taken by a huge white buck of the same age, says the Detroit Free Press.

Three times these magnificent animals have tangled for the right to rule, and twice they were separated by police officers, attracted to the battle arena by the snorting of the enraged beasts and the fierce pounding of hoofs.

submitted to congress next January will run over $8,000,000,000. On this basis, and with anticipated revenues approximating those of the fiscal year ending last June, a deficit of about $1,500,000,000 may be expected during the government year starting next July.

Armsmen's share of the new budget must be paid with new taxes, and many congressmen advocate a two-year emergency income tax. This would pile a 10 per cent levy on top of the present income tax and provide $300,000,000 a year.

Labor Throughout the U. S. are about 2,500 manufacturing firms who share profits or managerial responsibility with employees. Proctor & Gamble workers contribute 3 per cent of their wages against a 5 to 15 per cent contribution by the management (based on seniority) and from this fund employees buy stock.

Aviation Because a major U. S. airline has allegedly refused to accept delivery on a new type 33-seat plane, aviation experts believe the advent of subtransoceanic commercial aircraft will be delayed several years.

Foreign The resignation of Premier Bela Imredy's Hungarian cabinet is a direct result of his failure to obtain the entire eastern half of Czechoslovakia, an aim which was opposed first by Germany, and now by Italy as well.

Miscellany Last congress' $1,500,000,000 WPA appropriation was specified to last until March 1, 1939, Administrator Harry Hopkins plans to drop thousands of "borderline" relief clients in the hope that revived private industry will find jobs for them.

Trend How the Wind is Blowing MERRY CHRISTMAS.—The U. S. will spend at least $1,200,000,000 on this season's Yule gifts, giving Santa Claus his biggest bag since 1929.

BOUNDARY BUSINESS.—Adolf Hitler's rise to power this year, plus the new imperialism of Japan and Italy, has forced map makers to work overtime preparing new releases. Almost every geography text now in use has been outmoded in the last six months.

VICTORY'S PRICE.—Aggression breeds hardship. Poverty-stricken German housewives are not allowed to buy apples or oranges until Christmas. Japan is enforcing the content of tobacco packages, as part of her "spiritual mobilization" program.

Secretary Wallace Orders Slash in 1939 Farm Crops WASHINGTON.—Secretary of Agriculture Wallace has ordered a reduction in the acreage of major farm crops for 1939. He set 275,000,000 acres as the maximum to be seeded next year in cotton, corn, wheat, tobacco, rice, and other "soil depleting crops."

The 275,000,000-acre goal compares with a total of 365,000,000 acres under cultivation this year, and the 1938 AAA maximum of 282,500,000 acres.

Establishment of the limit, Wallace said, is intended to avoid accumulation of crop surpluses. The allotted acreage, he said, would supply domestic requirements, export needs, and an adequate reserve of the principal crops.

The total acreage is divided among the principal crops. The 275,000,000-acre goal compares with a total of 365,000,000 acres under cultivation this year, and the 1938 AAA maximum of 282,500,000 acres.

Politics

Since last summer the public has cringed under a barrage of insults and name-calling hurled back and forth between Rep. Martin Dies of the house un-Americanism committee and members of the Roosevelt administration.

Alice Lee Jemison, a Yosemite Indian, told Mr. Dies' committee that Mr. Ickes was a member of the Civil Liberties Union. She said that Roger Baldwin, head of the group, once told another congressional committee that the organization upheld the rights of aliens to advocate murder, assassination and the overthrow of the government by force and violence.

This charge started the ball rolling. Admitting membership in the union, Mr. Ickes called Mr. Dies "the outstanding zany in our political history." Answered Mr. Dies: "The secretary's most recent fit of uncontrollable rage only emphasizes his unfitness for the high position he holds."

Potential 1940 presidential nominees will be well mulled over before the nominating conventions roll around, but a few straws are already in the wind. First: Missouri's new Sen. Bennett Champ Clark, a "middle-of-the-road" Democrat whom many of his partisans would like to see nominated for 1940, has inferred that his ambitions reach no higher than the senate, and that he will not run for the presidency.

Aviation Because a major U. S. airline has allegedly refused to accept delivery on a new type 33-seat plane, aviation experts believe the advent of subtransoceanic commercial aircraft will be delayed several years.

Bruckart's Washington Digest

Danger of 'Jewish Problem' for United States in German 'Purge'

Resentment of American People Aroused by Hitler's Harshness; Opening of Gates to Refugees Might Introduce Disturbing Influence.

By WILLIAM BRUCKART WNU Service, National Press Bldg., Washington, D. C.

WASHINGTON.—Press service wires and cables and radio from abroad have been clogged for several weeks with hundreds of thousands of words about the plight of the Jews in Germany.

While no one with a heart can fail to grieve to a greater or less extent about the indescribable harshness, the unforgivable meanness of Hitler, it occurs to me that we should begin to temper these waves of emotion somewhat. There are other factors to be considered, factors and consequences of the thing that is now called "the Jewish problem."

It is one thing to render aid. It is quite another thing to inject into our own bloodstream of national life additional elements without knowing what those elements are. After all, the damage is something that we did not cause; the injured are a people who have no knowledge of our way of doing things and may never co-operate with us, and we must prevent being dragged into the other fellow's fist fight.

'Purge' of German Jews an Exposition of Mad Power I suppose there are very few persons in the United States who do not believe that Hitler's "purge" of German Jews constitutes a blot upon modern civilization.

Some weeks ago, I had occasion in these columns to talk about the so-called "peace of Munich." I said then that Hitler was not through; that there would be further exhibitions as he and his henchmen maneuvered this way and that in order to maintain the iron grip of a dictator, the drive on the Jews is a part of that general scheme, a movement to maintain a support for the dictatorship, for, it is known, should Hitler's grasp be broken at any place or at any time, there would be a bloody revolt in Germany again.

These causes, however, do not help us in the solution of the Jewish problem. The unwanted race is simply the victim and a knowledge of how its members have had the sufferings brought upon them adds little or nothing to the search for a method to protect their lives. Where are they to go? That is the real question. Hitler doesn't care where they go or what happens to them. Some one else has to lead the way.

'Jewish Problem' for United States Might Be Result The whole situation is one which may contain "a Jewish problem" for the United States. It is one out of which a political issue may grow. It is to be remembered that religion became an issue in a presidential election not so many years ago. That shows that such things can sprout even in the United States. If it happened in the case of the Catholic religion, it can happen in the case of a racial question, especially with regard to the Jewish race. We ought not kid ourselves. There are many persons appearing allegiance to the United States who do not like Jews. Those persons may be otherwise good citizens, but they distrust a Jew because he is a Jew, making no distinction between individuals. It is stating nothing new to say that there has been almost a steady undercurrent of criticism of Mr. Roosevelt from certain quarters because Jews have been given prominent places in the New Deal.

Mr. Roosevelt has proposed removal of some of the immigration restrictions as a means of bringing into this country more German Jews than our immigration laws now permit. In so doing, he verged on politics himself. Any one familiar with the debates on immigration policies in the early 1920s must recall the severity of that battle. The issue was whether we, as a nation, were going to be haven for all comers and just hope that they would do things the American way, or whether we should restrict the number coming here to live to a number which could be absorbed into our national life.

Only Congress Can Let Down Immigration Bars Behind the scenes of the immigration restriction also was a determination on the part of Senator David A. Reed of Pennsylvania, then a senate power, to prevent introduction into the United States of all kinds of "isms." The senator foresaw the spread of radicalism by means of entry of the European backwash and rubbish. There was not much discussion of this phase because our government did not want to offend any foreign nation. It was a basic reason, however, and it is too bad that it was not given more public consideration.

Fortunately, there can be no change in the number of foreigners admitted from any nation without action by congress. The United States can take only so many—something like 30,000 a year—of those purged Jews, unless congress amends the law. And when I say it is fortunate that there must be action by congress before there can be a change in policy, I mean no inferences.

I believe Mr. Roosevelt is eminently correct when he says that there must be a "homeland" established for the Jews. The British tried to make one that sort of a base, it will be remembered, but they failed because Arabs don't like Jews. This experience then would seem to point to the necessity for the Jews being colonized quite alone. If the United States can extend help in doing that job, there ought to be no criticism of the course, even if it involves financial assistance. It would be a charity worthwhile, and a charity that would not involve us later on. I repeat that I believe there is real danger in letting down the floodgates for immigration whereas the other method would seem to be a humanitarian action again demonstrating our national sympathy for a downtrodden people.

Refugees Likely to Create A Disturbing Influence In consideration of whether we ought to let a deluge of refugees enter, I cannot help thinking of a possible spread of trouble. For example, if our definite national position of protest against Hitler's policies should bring retaliation, every Jewish refugee allowed in this country would be clamoring for the United States to take revenge on Germany and Hitler. Their influence would be great because they could tell what happened to them and give an idea of what is happening. You and I and millions of others would believe first hand information. There is no doubt about it. The germ of trouble could be incubated ten times more rapidly; instead of staying out of European troubles, we would be pushed in deeper and deeper.

As far as relations between Germany and the United States are concerned at the moment, all that can be said is that the United States has let the world know of its disapproval. When Ambassador Wilson was recalled, it was just the same as saying to the world of nations that Uncle Sam hasn't any respect for Hitler.

Chinese Soviet Dollars An interesting type of Chinese silver dollar has recently appeared on the market and will undoubtedly be rare, as only a comparatively small number was struck. The obverse shows a globe with a sickle and hammer superimposed, and the legend, "Soviet Government of All China," appears on the reverse.

SECRETARY WALLACE ORDERS SLASH IN 1939 FARM CROPS WASHINGTON.—Secretary of Agriculture Wallace has ordered a reduction in the acreage of major farm crops for 1939. He set 275,000,000 acres as the maximum to be seeded next year in cotton, corn, wheat, tobacco, rice, and other "soil depleting crops."

The 275,000,000-acre goal compares with a total of 365,000,000 acres under cultivation this year, and the 1938 AAA maximum of 282,500,000 acres.

Establishment of the limit, Wallace said, is intended to avoid accumulation of crop surpluses. The allotted acreage, he said, would supply domestic requirements, export needs, and an adequate reserve of the principal crops.

THE RIVER of SKULLS

SYNOPSIS

Alan Cameron, young trapper, Noel, his Indian partner, and Rough, husky Ungava sled dog, look in vain for the Montagnais trappers' camp in the desolate Big River country of Northern Canada. Their supplies destroyed by wolverines, they are forced to subsist on wolf meat until they come, amazed, to a substantial log house in the wilderness of Talking River, where they are greeted by a big blond man with a gun. Introducing himself as John McCord, hunter, the big blond man says he has to leave with him next year to the River of Skulls beyond the Stinking Lakes, where no man is said to have been before. Heather McCord, the daughter, who had come with him to the wilderness, wins the immediate devotion of Rough. On the eve of Alan's departure for Fort George, McCord suddenly tells him to bring back some dogs, and to keep his mouth shut to questions. He gives the boy money, warning him not to show it. Fort George, and promises to explain, all later. Returned to Fort George, Alan meets McCord and Slade, Provincial police, with Arsenic Rivard, clerk, and Alan's rival for Berthe Dessane, with whom he is in love. The police are looking for a black dog in the Big River wilderness. Accidentally Alan drops one of McCord's bills and when questioned, insists he has got a dog from Neil Campbell, at Whale River, two years before. He realizes he must make good his lie by going north and seeing Campbell before anyone else has had a chance to talk to him. Berthe's father tells Alan the police are after a man wanted for murder, and have hired a boat to take Alan and Heather to Whale River. Alan beats the police to Whale Island, en route to Richmond to get his dogs. Alan returns to Fort George. Another government agent, secretary, Mrs. Hanbury, arrives by plane, tries to bargain with him to tell her the whereabouts of McCord and his daughter. The only outcome is Berthe's jealousy. Miserable over Berthe's coolness, Alan suspects Rivard of poisoning her mind. When McCord asks Alan when they start north, Alan agrees—saying they will leave as soon as they can be prepared. Alan says good-bye to Berthe, Alan and Noel, McCord, Slade, Trudeau and Goyette make the long journey to the Three Forks Junction of the Mad, Conjuror and Talking Rivers, all of which McCord intends to cover in his search. When he decides on the Mad first, Alan pretends that his headquarters are the Mad, Slade and plots with Noel to mislead McCord and Slade, and head across to Talking River to warn McCord of the danger. Alan is warmly welcomed by McCord and Heather, but tells John privately of the search for his father. McCord tells his story, identifying Mrs. Hanbury as former Army mate, McCord and Slade as former Army mates, who know of his secret map of the River of Skulls country, left him by his army buddy.

"And they've followed you like wolves ever since!"

"And I'm going to give them what wolves deserve," McCord lapped. Alan sat with chin in his cupped hands while McCord resumed his narrative.

From time to time this man Maddock had caught fragments of their conversation and now, with the evidence of the sketch and map, knew that the two friends were concerned with a gold strike in Labrador. From then on, he had hounded them with his curiosity. The last week of McCord's stay in the hospital Aleck Drummond had had a secondary operation from which he died. Before he became unconscious he gave McCord his sketch map and his blessing.

"So that's how you happen to be on the Talking River?"

"Yes."

"You decided to go in from the headwaters of the Kokoak—if you could find them?"

"Yes."

"Did McCord know that Drummond went in from Chimo?"

"He overheard Drummond speak of Chimo and told me so."

"But we may starve before we find the headwaters of the Kokoak."

"Let me finish my story; then we can go into that," said McCord, cracking his pipe out on his moccasin and going on with his narrative.

On their return to Canada after the war, McCord had hunted him up and made repeated overtures to be taken as a partner on the expedition he knew McCord contemplated, and was refused. Following this, McCord's wife, who had deserted him, suddenly appeared at his mother's home in his absence and man-

Alan sat, brows furrowed in thought. Then he asked: "How did you get away without McCord finding out that you'd come by Hudson's Bay?"

"You see I fooled them. They knew that I hadn't arranged to sail, last summer, on either the Hudson's Bay Company's or the Revillon Freres' supply ship that stops at Chimo and they heard that I was in the Hurrinanaw bush with Heather, prospecting. I took good care that they would hear it. It couldn't have been until some time in the winter that they learned that we had gone to Moose and in from Rupert House. Knowing that I was somewhere in this big headwater country, they came to Fort George to get Indian guides. And then they ran into you. As police they could command any kind of aid, so they carried forged papers. Later, she followed them by plane to help them, but, if I know her, to keep an eye on them as well."

"They might not be here now, if I hadn't dropped that bill."

"Yes, they would. They know where we're headed and this is the way there." McCord's eyes suddenly went hard and cold as he said, bitterly: "Now it's war to the knife, Alan! I've worked years to get here and if Jim McCree and his pair of half-breeds try to follow us to the Kokoak to steal our gold, I'll wipe them out as I would vermin."

After a long interval, McCord asked: "Crazy—am I? If you've changed your mind—Alan—it's pretty wild, I know—this plan of mine—why—"

Alan looked sharply at the other. He rose, thrust out his hand and gripped the one that met his.

"The River of Skulls or—bust!" he cried. "But we ought to send Heather back to Fort George, John, before we start inland!"

McCord slowly shook his head. "It would break her heart."

Leaving Rough with Heather, Alan and John took the puppies and dropped downstream to meet Noel at the Forks and bring his heavy cargo up the strong water of the Talking.

When the sudden chill of the early September dusk settled on the river valley and Rough had had his supper, he followed Heather into the cabin and, while she ate, lay on the floor at her feet.

Suddenly the husky raised his head, his ears pointed and nostrils working.

"What is it, Rough—a wolf come to call on us?"

The dog stalked on stiff legs to the door, his back hair rising, and sniffed through the crack at the bottom, then sucked his breath in a low snarl.

"Why, what can it be!" exclaimed the girl, standing in the middle of the room, listening. At dusk she had dropped the heavy cross slab of birch which made the door secure, into its seats on each of the door jamba. With a step she reached the gun-rack, drew her 38 revolver from its holster and slipped it into the hip pocket of her whip-cords. Then she seized her 30-30 carbine, cocked it, and stood beside the uneasy dog.

Presently the husky flew into a veritable frenzy. Hair bristling, he scratched frantically at the door sill, voicing his anger with snarls of rage.

"Roughly, Roughly, what is it, boy?" she whispered. "I can't open the door, Rough! I don't dare! What's there, boy?"

Shortly, above the dog's growls, rose a voice outside the cabin.

"Kekway! Kekway!"

Heather froze where she stood grasping her rifle. Indians! It was the Montagnais salutation to friends or strangers. Were they McCord's men? Did they know she was alone with Rough? What should she do?

Again came the call:

"Kekway! 'aloi!"

Then Heather got control of her nerves. These men had come in the night to a camp. By the law of the north, from Labrador to Alaska, they would be welcomed and fed, if they were hungry. She must tie Rough up, open the door and see what they wanted.

Fairly dragging the reluctant husky from the door, she secured him to the spruce upright of the bunk with a heavy rawhide, then lifted the cross bar and opened the door, still holding her cocked rifle.

"Kekway!" she called as the faint light from the single candle illuminated the doorway.

From the gloom of the clearing came the reply: "You tie husky?"

"Yes, he's tied up! Who are you?" Heather demanded in the calmest tones she could muster.

"Hunter from Conjur Riviere!" came the reply in the unmistakable voice of an Indian. "We roll canoe rapid—lose all meat we shoot. Water spoil flour."

Two blurred figures emerged from the murk of the clearing to stand in the doorway where the suspicious girl nervously fingered the trigger of her 30-30. Inside, the angry Rough filled the room with his snarls.

"Where's your canoe—your camp?" she asked, doubtful of this story of a capsized in the rapids above the camp.

"We save canoe 'an' mak' fire on de shore, here. Den we fin' path. Eet was dark—we not see eet, before."

The light from the door lit the swart faces of the Montagnais as they stared in amazement at the tall, blonde haired girl in men's breeches holding the rifle. She had seen many Indians but there was something in the mink-like eyes of these men she did not like. From the Conjur Riviere, they said, this meant nothing to the girl whose heart beat with apprehension. Why had her father left her alone!

"He must have had a streak of luck with the deer."

The following year the supply ship of the company brought Aleck Drummond to Fort Chimo. There they warned him he would never reach the mythical River of Skulls and, if he did, he would starve because he couldn't hunt for gold and caribou at the same time. And he'd have to find the deer, or starve. But Aleck had reached the River of Skulls and he had found gold, and had not starved.

"You mean to tell me that he poled and tracked hundreds of miles into the interior, found gold and got out to Chimo before the ice?" demanded the doubtful Alan, thrilled with anticipation of what was coming.

"I do. If you'd known Aleck you'd realize that he was one of the few men who could have done it."

"He must have had a streak of luck with the deer."

"He did. And he had a streak of luck locating the River of Skulls. It looked at first," went on McCord, "as if he wouldn't find the river. He got into several, but finally followed a trail of blue clay and rusty quartz up a river and came to an alluvial flat below a gorge. The river was full of sand and gravel bars and he dug out some skulls and bones. Then he went to work panning the bars and struck it rich. Late in September, when the snow was falling and the small lakes frozen, he worked with his pan below that gorge, and as luck would have it part of the deer migration crossed below him. So he shot meat for his trip to Chimo. But he didn't show at the post the dust and nuggets he had in his pack bags and he would not admit he had found the river. An accident to the ship which delayed her return from Hudson's Bay saved him from whispering at Chimo, and he reached Montreal. Then, before he could find men with the backbone to travel with him to this River of Skulls and bring back a fortune, the war broke out."

"How much dust and nuggets did he manage to bring back with him?" demanded the excited Cameron. The mystery surrounding John McCord's presence on the Talking River was clearing.

"Around twenty thousand dollars' worth to show for a few weeks' panning."

"Twenty thousand dollars?" Alan's jaw dropped in amazement.

"Yes. You see he'd struck a regular bonanza. He took a lot of heavy nuggets out of those sand-bars. And he didn't scratch the surface. The river had been washing that gold downstream from open quartz veins in the rock, from possibly as far as a hundred miles above, for centuries."

McCord continued his story as Alan refilled and lit his pipe.

Through their conversation McCord and Drummond had studied the sketch map that the latter had carried on his body through the war; they made plans for the long journey into Ungava on their return. With them in the hospital were two men of their own battalion, who had enlisted under the names of Maddock and Sanford. They manifested marked curiosity in the whispered conversation of the two friends. One day, as John and Aleck were comparing Aleck's sketch with a map of Labrador they had obtained from London, they looked up to find Jim Maddock (now calling himself McCQueen), who had noiselessly approached on slipped feet, staring over their shoulders.

"What did you do?" demanded the indignant Alan.

"What could we do in a hospital, except send him about his business?"

"So that's where Mr. McCQueen comes in, eh?"

"Yes, he and his partner, Sanford, known as Slade."

Embroidery Is Lavished on Gowns of Rich Silk Weaves

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

THE elegance of the past is being revived in fashions of today. Fabrics as sumptuous as looms can produce, luxurious furs, splendid jewelry, glamorous accessories, plus a lavishness of glittering embroidery, designful applique, cunning quilted motif and other ornate handwork declare fashion to be in the "dress-up" mood of "a lady." Yes, and the term "lady" has been revived along with other elegancies of the past.

Fabrics especially bespeak a new era of elegance. There is that stately quality about the new silks that reflect the glories of the romantic past.

Again our gowns and our wraps are being made of stiff "stand-alone" moires and heavy silk ottomans and failles. Again the sweet music of rustling taffeta is heard, and again rich brocades and scintillating metal cloths are fashioning the stunning new jacket blouses so beloved this season. Velvets of grand and glorious texture, tailored for daytime suits and for night, sweeping through ballroom with queenly grace are a present fabric highlight.

Commensurate with the beauty of these handsome materials is the lavish embellishment of embroidery and other ornamentation that adorns this season's modes. The trio of high-style fashions pictured expresses admirably the new feeling for decoration that now prevails. The dress of green silk canton crepe centered in the foreground forfettels of dinner parties and theater engagements such as a winter season is sure to bring forth. The sleeves are the new three-quarter length. Note also the fashionable high shoulder line. The gold embroidery that enhances this costume is typical of the new trimming trends. And the ostrich muff! A muff is inevitable this season. You'll be carrying a muff with your tailored suit or coat by day and by night. Matching ostrich feathers in the hair of the young socialites pictured adds to her endearing charms.

Smart for dinner and theater wear is the black silk crepe dress with a fitted long-sleeve jacket heavily bead-embroidered as illustrated to the right in the group. Note the perfectly squared shoulders. The simple dress underneath is unbelted and is worn with a large gold pin at the neckline.

The afternoon dress shown to the left is of rust uncut silk velvet with triangle shirring at the waistline. Gold leaf embroidery extends across the flattering bateau neckline with particular accent on shoulder interest. A Persian velvet turban and a velvet bag add befitting finesses.

One of the most pleasing fashions promoted this season is the afternoon dress styled of fine quality-kind silk crepe on whatever material you may choose, the sleeves of which are entirely and elaborately allover embroidered. With a touch of embroidery at the waistline and wearing clips or other costume jewelry at the simple untrimmed neckline, you'll be gownned most becomingly.

Star Dust

★ Chorus: Gene Autry!
★ 'Discover' Nancy Kelly
★ Gary Cooper, Merchant
By Virginia Vale

SINCE quizzes are so popular these days, here's one for you movie-goers. The amusement you get out of it, (if any), will be your only reward.

1. What motion picture actor gets the most fan mail—almost 5,000 more letters each week than either Shirley Temple or Clark Gable?

2. What motion picture star is the most popular one now making "westerns"? (He's just about as popular as any star making any kind of pictures.)

3. What star who, according to owners of theaters in villages and small cities, draws good audiences when other, better publicized stars fail to do so, receives but $12,599 a picture, when stars getting far larger salaries draw many thousands more?

4. What star—but what's the use, when you know by now that the answer to all the questions is Gene Autry, Republic's singing cowboy.

Exhibitors in the smaller cities have been much smarter, apparently, than the ones in the big towns where Autry was concerned. They've shown his pictures for some years, and made money on them. The big towns haven't discovered him yet; his pictures aren't shown in the big movie palaces of the land.

He used to be a telegrapher for a railway; later he played the guitar and sang ballads for various small radio stations. Republic engaged him to make westerns, and immediately he was a success; now some of the other motion picture companies would like to get him away from that studio and can't do it.

His latest picture is "Rhythm of the Saddle"; his next will be "Western Jamboree."

Nancy Kelly thinks it's pretty funny that Hollywood "discovered" her after she made "Submarine Patrol," as she already had 52 pictures to her credit, was for a time the best-known actress on the radio, and had made an outstanding success on the

NANCY KELLY

New York stage. (And she is just seventeen!)

Her career started when, at the age of three, she won a "healthy baby" contest. That resulted in her becoming a photographers' model. Then she made pictures, in the East. When she acted in "The Great Gatsby," with Warner Baxter, he used to introduce her as "my future leading lady." They're both under contract now to Twentieth Century-Fox, so maybe he was just a little bit previous about making a perfectly good prophecy.

While he was working in "The Cowboy and the Lady," Gary Cooper designed a saddle. The man who made it for him had orders for others like it before he finished the first one, so they're going into partnership to market the "Gary Cooper saddle."

Luella Manners has always thought she'd like to make a name for herself on the concert stage. Now she's had grand offers from South America and Australia—and can't accept them because of her radio commitments.

When Alan Deavitt, who plays the part of "Wong," the Oriental servant in "This Day Is Ours," answers the phone at home, he protects himself from telephonic time-wasters by answering in the dialect that he uses on the air. The other day Templeton Fox and Jay Jostyn were lunching with him and he didn't want to be disturbed. So, when he had to answer the phone, he resorted to his usual trick. "Velly sorry, Missa Deavitt no home," he said.

Then he almost collapsed. For the man at the other end of the wire had said: "Well, I'm just in town for the day and I wanted to repay the fifty dollars I borrowed from him two years ago," and then hung up!

ODDS AND ENDS—Priscilla Lane is crazy about the number "seven"; wears a little gold one on her coat lapsels, has it embroidered on all her clothes, for luck. . . . Wonder if anyone has heard her that Lina Basquette went in heavily for "sevens" years ago, on rings, bracelets, etc. . . . It's rumored that Constance Bennett doesn't intend to be the Marguerite de Falaise much longer. . . . "The People" maintains a large field organization to call upon people who apply to go on the program and look into their stories.

Use of Musical Tones

Although there are at least 11,000 musical tones that can be distinguished by the human ear, says Collier's Weekly, only a relative few are used in music because the scale is based on the human voice with its various limitations.

Phosphate in Arctic Circle

Within the Arctic circle lies Kir-ovsk, an eight-year-old town of 35,000. It has a huge output of apatite, from which phosphate and industrial phosphoric acid can be obtained.

HOUSEHOLD QUESTIONS

Time to Wax Floors.—Wax finishes on floors should be renewed every four to six months, depending on the amount of wear on the floor.

Preserving Linoleum.—To keep linoleum in good condition, rub it with linseed oil once or twice a year, during spring and fall house cleaning.

To Stiffen Taffeta.—Taffeta is apt to become limp when washed. To stiffen it, wring a sponge or cloth out of borax water and wipe on the wrong side of the silk; then iron, when nearly dry, on the wrong side.

Save Climbing Stairs.—A small table or shelf placed at the foot of the stairs and another at the head will save endless trips up and down. Articles intended to be taken up or down, as the case may be, can be placed on the table and then taken up in one trip.

Raisins and Nuts in Cakes.—If you will roll nut meats in flour before adding to the cake mixture, nuts will not fall to bottom of cake. This should also be done when raisins are used in cakes.

Native wit in a backwoodsman delights the cultured more than all the smartness of their associates.

Mail Order Denture Business Victorious In Court Decision

False teeth may be measured and sold by mail as readily as in a dentist's chair, according to a court ruling, says a recent news item in the Chicago Daily Tribune.

The United States Dental Company of Chicago reports that its business both in the United States and outside is growing very rapidly; that its quick, easy, economical way of fitting and constructing dentures from finest materials, with expert craftsmanship, at very low prices, is an achievement of this age. Thousands of grateful letters in its files from satisfied customers all over the country testify to this.

This is a distinctly worthy service to people who work in the fields, mountains, or other places where it is inconvenient for them to find local dentists to make good teeth for them at low prices. Adv.

Our Main Props

The objects that we have known in better days are the main props that sustain the weight of our affections, and give us strength to await our future lot.—Hazlitt.

Wait, Mother—Ask Your Doctor First

Never give your children unknown "Bargain" remedies to take unless you ask your doctor.

A mother may save a few pennies giving her children unknown preparations. But a child's life is precious beyond pennies. So—Ask your doctor before you give any remedy you don't know all about.

And when giving the common children's remedy, milk of magnesia, always ask for "Phillips' Milk of Magnesia."

Because for three generations Phillips' has been favored by many physicians as a standard, reliable and proved preparation—marvelously gentle for youngsters.

Many children like Phillips' in the newer form—tiny peppermint-flavored tablets that chew like candy. Each tablet contains the equivalent of one teaspoonful of the liquid Phillips' 25¢ for a big box.

A bottle of Phillips' liquid Milk of Magnesia costs but 25¢. So—anyone can afford the genuine. Careful mothers ask for it by its full name "Phillips' Milk of Magnesia."

Gay Campus Knits

Get busy knitting these cunning sweater and cap sets. Very inexpensive if you make them yourself. The classic skating sweater at the top goes fancy and gets itself ornamented with gay bits of colorful embroidery, with a trick little calot hat to match. Here it is done in brightest red knitting worsted, warm and durable. The little cap is "different" and notable for its practical earflaps that will defy the coldest breezes. The campus cardigan jacket below is also knit of warm germentown wool. It features bold horizontal stripes in two contrasting colors.

Indian Beadwork Popular in Paris

Beadwork is once again poking itself into the fashion foreground. Old Indian Joe himself would grunt with surprise if he happened along the Avenue Victor Hugo and saw a certain beaded belt, wide, supple and fringed and tasseled at its ends. Only the non-Indian feature of the belt is the fact that its beaded design is more like an old French tapestry than a Navajo rug!

Another bit of beadwork seen on the boulevards is a beaded bolero jacket with solid turquoise background and a geometric pattern of gay colors made more brilliant by the addition of a few violet sequins.

Hoods Will Keep Your Ears Warm

Hoods to wear with sports clothes will be leading accessories this season, so there's no reason to freeze your ears. Molyneux makes big Beaver and nutria hoods to go with cold sports coats. Schiaparelli makes closely fitted ones of bushy fur that tie under the chin.

Alix has her own way, which is to combine sidecurtain ties with a pillbox hat. One model is a black pillbox hat with combined tawny ocelot fur and black wool jersey making the curtains that tie under the chin and keep the ears warm-heated even in the worst cold snap.

For Evening Clothes

The new beaded and paillette trimming which Schiaparelli indorses for evening clothes is reflected in evening bags that shimmer and are brilliantly colored. The bags are covered with bugle beads, iridescent paillettes, enameled paillettes.

"Fly-Away Hats"

Tiny hats with "fly-away" effects are the newest and most striking fashions.

Tips From Studios of Famous Designers

New suits have three-quarter jackets flaring sharply from a fitted waist.

Worth is showing trailing night-gowns completed by straight-hanging coats, ankle-length, in the same fabric.

Perhaps the most startling change in the fashionable world, aside from the lavish use of jewelry, is the return of all the primary colors.

The sky's the limit, fashionably speaking.

Pastel tints reign supreme in the lingerie world.

Pillbox hats, so popular this last season, have survived the stylists.

Red, green and black all jump to an early lead in the fall color race.

A Persian influence was noted in metal brocades and embroideries shown at Paris fall openings.

Car owners, however, should remember that an anti-freeze mixture containing an inflammable fluid may send up inflammable vapors from the radiator when the cap is removed. Fire of any kind, even if from a cigarette or pipe, may cause an explosion or burst of flame if the radiator vapors come in contact with it. During storms or fog, one should make free use of his horn to warn pedestrians and other drivers. Headlights should come into use whenever necessary to make sure that the driver will see and be seen. For that reason, the driver should have extra bulbs on hand.
Every automobile motor produces carbon monoxide gas. It is invisible and odorless. A few breaths will kill. A motorist should never start his car or run the motor when the garage doors are closed. He should check exhaust and manifold heater connections carefully to be certain that no gases can escape into the car. He should never crawl beneath the car when the motor is running.

'Chevrolet Takes Big Strides Ahead for 1939'

New Aero-stream styled bodies combine with major mechanical improvements to provide new beauty, safety, comfort and operating ease, in the 1939 Chevrolets, presented October 22, and featured at the big auto shows this month. The new models are offered on two chassis, the Master De Luxe and the Master 85, both of which are powered with Chevrolet's famous six-cylinder valve-in-head engine.
A new vacuum gear shift mechanism with steering column control, optional on all models at small extra cost, does 80 per cent of the work of shifting gears. The Master De Luxe series features a new riding system, in which a brand new Chevrolet Knee-Action mechanism is scientifically co-ordinated with new ride stabilizer and double-acting hydraulic shock absorbers to furnish a smooth, soft ride.
